Council Discusses 1980 City Improvement Project

Informal discussion of various projects that may be considered for 1980 was the main concern of last evening's Thief River Falls city council meeting.

Representatives of the planning commission were also present to review the policy regarding capital improvement costs on new development construction.

Improvements on various streets and alleys in Thief River Falls were put on a list for consideration in the near future. Street construction projects pertained to a number of streets in Thief River Falls including Oriole avenue, Cardinal Drive and Cardinal avenue, with recommended construction on the streets consisting of the construction of curb and gutter and plant mixed bituminous pavement.

Another listed street to be improved was Kendall avenue (Third street to Taft street) with recommended construction consisting of the complete reconstruction of the street. Recommended construction on Fourth street would consist of constructing concrete curb and gutter and plant mixed bituminous pavement. Construction on Brooks avenue would include the same as work done on the previous listed street, with the inclusion of a storm sewer.

Arena parking lot construction would consist of excavating unsuitable soils, backfilling with aggregate base, and constructing concrete curb and gutter and plant mixed bituminous pavement.

Construction on Jerome street and Columbia avenue (Greenwood street to Parkview street) would consist of excavating unsuitable soils, backfilling with aggregate base, construction of concrete curb and gutter and plant mixed bituminous pavement.

Work on Greenwood cemetery would include excavating unsuitable soils, backfilling with aggregate base and constructing plant mixed bituminous pavement. Construction was recommended for improvements on the Hartz, hospital, Elks, Bjorkman, and Ace Hardware alleys in Thief River Falls. Construction would also be done on Crocker avenue to the east line of Freeman's addition only.

Two representatives of the planning commission, Duane Walton and Don Barron, discussed present drainage facilities in Thief River Falls including those on Cartway drive and Sherwood avenue in the city which presently do not have adequate drainage systems to accommodate surface runoff. The question arose as to what kind of policy should be established concerning improvement costs on

TRF Allotted $132,178 In Street Funds

Thief River Falls is one of 106 Minnesota communities sharing the 1980 municipal state-aid street (MSAS) fund of $34,012,618, according to Gordon Fay, director, office of state aid, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Thief River Falls' allotment for 1980 is $132,178.

Yearly apportionment, which represents nine per cent of the funds available for distribution from the highway user tax distribution fund, is alloted according to a prescribed formula to municipalities having populations of 5,000 or more. Highway user tax distribution fund is composed of monies from the state motor fuel tax and motor vehicle registration fees.

The municipal state-aid street fund makes available to the communities $29,082,865 for construction and $4,929,753 for maintenance of the 1,889-mile MSAS system.

This year's apportionment is approaching five times the initial apportionment of $7.3 million made to 58 communities in 1958. Since then, more than $386.5 million have been shared by the state's municipalities with more than 5,000 population.

The anniversary celebration was hosted by the couple's children: Mr. and Mrs. Clarence (Betty) Amiot of this city, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas (Janette) Weber of Newfolden, Mr. and Mrs. Leo H. (Vernice) Nelson, and Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Bakke, all of Thief River Falls.

All the children were present as were the couple's 17 grandchildren and one great-grandchild: Mr. and Mrs. John Nelson and Joshua; Mr. and Mrs. Joel Nelson, Jed, Jay, Jared, Jana and James Nelson; Mark, Dean Dawn, Mike and Marie Weber, Mr. and Mrs. Mark (Shari) Larson, Douglas and Bryan Amiot and Ryan and Sarah Bakke.

Special guest was Bakke's sister, Mrs. Agnes Tunheim, who was attendant at the couple's wedding on Dec. 18, 1929, together with Edward Tunheim, now deceased.

Adding interest to the celebration were bulletin boards, featuring pictures of the couple, their family, relatives and friends. Also of interest was a Christmas tree trimmed with 50 fan-folded one-dollar bills tied with gold string. The money-tree was a gift from the grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and also featured their pictures, circled with gold filigree borders.

Also of special interest was a memory quilt with the blocks designed and finished by the children, and grandchildren. Blocks were also designed by relatives in Norway, Texas, California, Washington and Ohio, as well as in this area. The blocks were then assembled, joined and tied by Mrs. Clarence Amiot, assisted by her brothers, sisters and Mrs. Ruby Englesrud of Newfolden, sister-in-law of Mrs. Bakke.

During the open house, the guests were registered by Dawn and Marie Weber. At the punch bowl were Joel and Kim Nelson, John and Carol Nelson, and Mark and Shari Larson. The thank-you folders, featuring the honored couple's pictures taken recently and 50 years ago, were distributed by Jana Nelson and Sarah Bakke. All are grandchildren of the couple.

The anniversary cake, baked and decorated by Mrs. Donald Rupprecht, was cut and served by Mrs. Ruby Engelsrud. Mrs. Agnes Bakke, Newfolden, Bakke's sister-in-law, poured the coffee. The kransekake, the traditional Scandinavian wedding cake which was served with the punch, was served by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bakke of Thief River Falls, a brother and sister-in-law. Mrs. Rodney Liedberg led the table prayer.

The following evening, the couple's children sponsored the "Trumpet of Truth" radio program in honor of their parents' anniversary. Union Meeting Well Attended

Attendance at the regular meeting of Local 4-348 of the International Woodworkers of America Tuesday in Thief River Falls was about triple the normal attendance at the monthly meetings, according to Wayne Bjornrud, business agent for the local.

Local 4-348, comprised of Arctic Enterprises employees under union contract, is being affected by personnel lay-offs being accomplished within the company. Included in the members being placed on lay-off are an unspecified number who have lengthy histories of full-time employment with the firm.

"We don't represent employees who are not members of our union," Bjornrud said, "so we are not in a position to discuss lay-offs of non-union employees. From the standpoint of union members, we can state only that we expect it to have an effect on 1981 model production and this will have impact on our people."

Local 4-348 now operates under a contract which will not expire until June 15, 1982. The contract has no provision for employment protection against lay-off, but does specify the procedure to be followed. Seniority by department and classification is the basic determination. The seniority provision for recall extends for 20 months past the lay-off date.

Bjornrud told the members at Tuesday's meeting that a reduction in production is expected and that a tentative date for start-up of the production line had been mentioned as July 1. Last year the line started in January for production of 1980 models after a shut-down of only a few weeks. Production ran through the end of November.

The business agent also noted that the Arctic garment manufacturing plant at Karlstad is now closed with employees placed on lay-off at the end of November not yet recalled. Start-up there is projected for March but is not definite, he said, as the company is reassessing all its operations at this time. Normal lay-off at the Karlstad plant is about a month.

The Clearbrook plant employees, also represented by Local 4-348, are also presently on lay-off. The Clearbrook plant manufactures crates and track and does not normally operate unless the main plant here is in operation.

A special meeting of the local could be called in the near future to have company officials discuss the situation with employees after decisions affecting 1981 model production have been made.

Arctic Future Discussed By New President

program so that the company can make a fresh start on the future.

"We can't afford to wait. We've faced the facts in the past and we will have to face them in the future. We're prepared to do it. My job is to get our people motivated toward meeting the challenges that face us. Pride is involved. Arctic has made a good comeback from some trying times and our expectations for third quarter sales below market projections is another temporary set-back.

"There's no such thing as an easy business these days. We have to do what is necessary to survive. People are our most important resource, but we must manage all resources to survive. This has always been done," he emphasized.

Severinson also said that the total Arctic operation is under scrutiny and affected by personnel management decisions. Thief River Falls is only one place in the company's system where changes are being made.

Last year the company manufactured about 74,000 snowmobiles of 1980 models. It is currently involved in a program of promotion with dealers and the public to stimulate sales and reduce the inventory remaining unsold. Within the next week or two a decision is expected as to what the production will be for 1981, and it is expected to be somewhat below that number. No projection on production is available at this time.

Severinson also affirmed that the company is involved in the dealer recall of specified models of 1980 snowmobiles which require modification of the hydraulic brake system. About 10,000 machines are affected in the recall, some of which are still in dealer inventory and some of which have been sold to the public. Purchasers are being notified under recall provisions established by government regulations. The recall has been in effect for about three weeks.

Severinson said that company management continues to be concerned that Arctic Enterprises is a good citizen and that every effort will be made to carry on the company's tradition of quality, honesty and fairness with its employees and the public.

Council Airs Programs For Coming Year

off-site and new development construction sites.

"In speaking of new development areas, there is presently no ordinance that states that the developer of a project has to be responsible for additional runoff on his property," Jim E. Walker, Jr., consulting engineer said. "Consequently, we have no consistent guidelines to go on, from the engineering point of view."

Following lengthy discussion on the issue, it was resolved that a taxation and finance committee of the city would meet with the planning commission and engineering firm to pursue the project further.

Further discussion continued from the January 14 council meeting concerning First street and First street bridge widening. The question remained as to whether or not procedures should continue with the original plan to construct signal lights for that area to be designed for a widened First street, according to Walker. Preliminary drawings for the project would not be available until June, Jim J. Walker stated.

The county purchased plans with the assumption of widening the bridge, while the city is in charge of widening the street, Jim J. Walker said. Project consideration of street and bridge widening continued on the basis of preliminary plans that will arrive at a later date.

In further council action, the resolution was introduced by alderman Ole Engelstad to update engineers on the preliminary report of the costs and assessments on the liquor store project with the liquor committee. It was also mentioned by Mayor Bob Carlson, following discussion with all council members, that only a small percentage of calls have been received at this time concerning utility rate increases.

Discussion also continued on airport development aid project (ADAP) applications for miscellaneous airport improvements including handicapped remodeling in the Thief River Falls regional airport terminal, development of a Crash Fire Rescue (CFR) road out of the CFR building, addition to the CFR building for equipment storage, blacktopping a 300 foot strip from the runway, and an apron extension for the CFR building.

Airport projects also included the pre-application for grants to prepare an environmental impact assessment report (EIAR) for a possible cross-wind runway at the airport, at a cost of $16,000 with the city to pay 10 per cent of that cost.

The resolution offered by alderman Milan Borsheim and seconded by alderman Bill Penning to approve pre-application for ADAP funding improvements at the airport, carried. A second resolution, introduced by alderman Don Goodrich, stated that plans would continue with EIAR at the previous stated costs. Following a vote by all council members, the second resolution carried, with six "yes" votes and one "no" vote for alderman Penning.

Jim E. Walker, Jr. was designated as consulting engineer for the city of Thief River Falls, and the resolution introduced by Alderman Ambrose Wysoski to enter into an agreement with the city and Stewart and Walker firm for engineering services carried.

It was resolved to turn the request for office space by Merle Lindberg, representative of the Minnesota senior federation, over to the building committee.

In final council action, it was further resolved that council members would no longer pursue the possibility of bidding out the present city garbage pickup employees. Next regular city council meeting was scheduled for February 12.

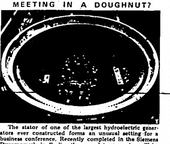
MEETING IN A DOUGHNUT?



The stator of one of the largest hydroelectric generators ever constructed forms an unusual setting for a business conference. Recently completed in the Siemens Dynamowerk in Berlin, the complete generator will be assembled at a power plant in Guri, Venezuela. The generator, which is 55 feet wide, 20 feet high and weighs 2500 tons will have an output of 805 MVA enough electrical power to supply the needs of more than a million people in their homes and at work. Containing as much space as a one-family house, the stator has an inner diameter of 45 feet and is machined to an accuracy of one-tenth of a millimeter. The Power Engineering Division of Siemens Corporation in Iselin, New Jersey participates in major international contracts such as these.

CAB Reports Guarantees On Air Service

clude a summary of the Thief River Falls airport situation as presented in testimony at hearings held earlier. It notes that this community is located approximately 350 road miles (seven hours driving time) northwest of Minneapolis-St. Paul and 65 miles east of Grand Forks, ND. Bus service is available to Fargo, ND. with connecting bus to the Twin Cities and total trip time of about 12 hours.

Republic airlines serves the city with 48-seat Convair aircraft, provides two daily one-stop flights to Thief River Falls from Minneapolis-St. Paul (one of which stops in Bemidji and the other in Brainerd) and one daily two-stop flight from Minneapolis-St. Paul through Brainerd and Bemidji. It also provides three daily flights from Thief River Falls to Minneapolis-St. Paul via Bemidji and Brainerd.

Testimony by the community indicated that its essential air service should be provided to Minneapolis-St. Paul as its major political, educational, medical and social community of interest. Service by Republic was considered adequate, but reduced fares were projected as likely to result in significant traffic growth. Suggestion was made that the essential air service should consist of three round trips a day on aircraft with a capacity of 80 to 100 persons since Republic's present planes are at times not able to accomodate existing traffic.

Origin and destination data for 1978 supports the community's contention that the Twin Cities is a primary area of interest. That year 12,280 passengers, or 34 a day, and 5,990 connecting passengers, or 16 a day used the Twin Cities facility. Altogether, 79 per cent of Thief River Falls' total traffic during the period moved in the Minneapolis-St. Paul market.

Because of the traffic percentage, the CAB selected the Twin Cities as the essential air service hub for Thief River Falls and requires that at least two round trips a day be provided to this hub.

"Since the distance between Thief River Falls and Minneapolis-St. Paul is 262 air miles and since several eligible points lie between the cities, we will allow this service to be operated on a nonstop, one-stop or two-stop basis," the CAB determination states.

Because of the average traffic of 34 passengers enplaning here a day in 1978, the CAB guarantees Thief River Falls a total of 136 seats a day (68 inbound and 68 outbound), enough to accomodate the demonstrated traffic at 50 per cent load factors.

Only requirement on aircraft to serve the community is that it be of a type to meet the standards defined in the board's guidelines. These require that essential service be provided with aircraft having at least two engines, two pilots and unimpeded cabin entry through airstair doors or similar type access.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

The other evening I received a call that my business in Thief River Falls had the fire alarm ringing. I checked my watch and it was 7 p.m. I phoned the fire department and in moments, as I arrived at my place of business, I was greeted by a complete crew of firefighters and all of their equipment.

It was a false alarm bell, thank goodness. But as I looked around in the 20 below zero cold, I couldn't help but notice all of the familiar faces of the volunteer firemen.

I thought to myself on the way home from the garage how all of these volunteers had already worked a full day and then some. Finally home with slippers on for a bit of relaxation with their families, they had to respond to the needs of others as quickly as they did for us.

It's a great feeling to know we have these people in our city and with this being the year of the Olympics, the Thief River Falls firemen certainly deserve a gold medal.

March 16 Set As Pedestrian Safety Sunday

Governor Quie has declared Sunday, March 16, to be pedestraian safety Sunday *throughout Minnesota to in*crease public awareness of the problems and safety practices relating to pedestrians.

John P. Sopsic, Minnesota department of public safety commissioner, urges Minnesotans to focus on pedestrian safety on Pedestrian Safety Sunday, and throughout the year. "For far too many years there have been over 100 pedestrian fatalities per year in Minnesota. Unofficial number for 1979 was 110. The average number of pedestrian fatalities per year over the last 15 years has been almost 138 per year. 1980 would be a wonderful year to bring the pedestrian fatality figure below one hundred starting a new decade of continuing pedestrian safety," stated Sopsic.

Pedestrian safety Sunday is a speical day of concern initiated by the Minnesota VFW auxiliary, in cooperation with the Minnesota safety council, Minnesota council of church, Minnesota Catholic conference and the Minnesota department of public safety. Besides standard publicity methods, special emphasis is placed on presenting the message of pedestrian safety through church bulletins, Sunday school classes and announcements from the clergy.

Reduction of pedestrian fatalities requires that both driver and pedestrian cooperate and concentrate on being observant and observed. Drivers must do their part and use their headlights whenever advantageous, especially during the hours around dusk and dawn. Pedestrians must also try to make themselves visible by wearing light clothing and reflective tape. Safety demands seeing and being seen.

Winter can cause problems with slippery roads and slippery sidewalks and crosswalks. Pedestrians must watch carefully for vehicles making turns, just as motorists must watch for persons in the crosswalk while they make turns.

"Year after year, the groups that suffer the highest number of pedestrian accidents and deaths involve children, young adults and senior citizens. Department of public safety statistics also reveal that the drinking pedestrian has become a continuing traffic risk. Pedestrian Safety Sunday is a good starting point for making Minnesota safe for all runners, joggers and walkers," said Sopsic.

Durenberger Chair's Hearing On Energy

Balancing energy production with environmental protection was the focus of a Senate governmental affairs committee hearing chaired by Sen. Dave Durenberger recently.

The hearing — one of a series the governmental affairs committee is conducting on the department of energy — dealt specifically with the activities of the office of the environment within the DOE. Durenberger focused the hearing on how the development of energy technology affects the environment, the extent of public participation in DOE decisions and specific cases where energy and environmental concerns conflict, such as oil shale development and sulfur-emissions from new coal burning electric power plants.

"We have doubled and redoubled our efforts at energy production and alternative sources. Some people feel that it must be at the expense of the environment. . .but that is not the view of this senator," Durenberger said. "Redoubling our efforts for domestic production should call for a redoubling of our commitment to en*vironmental quality* and the search for safe technologies."

Durenberger said increased domestic energy production is critical and cited three elements necessary to achieve the objective: "First, a national policy designed to reduce demand as well as increase supply; second, technological advances to meet the need for greater energy production, use the limited supplies efficiently and protect the environment; and third, public understanding and acceptance of energy projects."

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.), chairman of the governmental affairs committee, asked Sen. Durenberger to chair the hearing even though it is unusual for a member of the minority party to chair a committee. Ribicoff made the request because of Durenberger's extensive involvement in energy and environmental issues.

Summer Food Program Rules Are Issued

Final rules issued by the U.S. Department of agriculture set a priority system for admitting sponsors in the summer food program for needy children and target benefits of the program to rural areas.

Summer food program provides meals for needy children during summer months when schools are closed. Public and nonprofit organizations sponsor the program and are reimbursed by state agencies with federal funds.

Public and private non-profit sponsors who prepare their own meals, or purchase meals from a public facility have first priority for admission in the program. These include public and private non-profit school food service systems as well as colleges and universities. There will be special efforts to obtain sponsors from these categories.

Private non-profit organizations that purchase meals from commercial vendors have lowest priority. They will be admitted to the program only if other sponsors aren't available and they can document a record of reliable and honest community service in feeding programs.

New rules allow states to identify rural areas within metropolitan regions. Sponsors in theses areas, where transportation costs are higher, can receive additional administrative reimbursement for their costs of operating the program.

Also, states now have the option of using statistical sampling to monitor the performance of the summer program. This is to ensure that sponsors meet department requirements, such as serving meals that conform to departmental standards.

Proposed rules were issued October 30, and November 20, 1979 and the department received approximately 80 comments which were considered in developing final rules.

Final rules were published in the January 8 Federal register and are effective immediately.

'80 Heart Fund Goal Set At $1,500,000

The 1980 Heart fund campaign goal for Minnesota has been set at $1,500,000, it was announced by James Pehler, 1980 State Heart fund chairman.

In February, American Heart association, Minnesota affiliate volunteers will donate their time, energy and enthusiasm to collect money and distribute life-saving information on heart diseases. These funds will be used for the Heart association's many programs in research, education and community services.

"Deaths due to heart disease continue to decline in Minnesota," Pehler said. "Hovever, heart disease still causes 51 per cent of all deaths in the state."

"Heart association volunteers are the embodiment of neighbors helping neighbors working to stop this number one killer," Pehler added.

The American Heart association, Minnesota affiliate, Inc., is a statewide health agency and is part of the American Heart association which is represented by 55 affiliates in all states and territories of the U.S. It is the only statewide voluntary health agency dedicated to the reduction of premature death and disability caused by heart and blood vessel diseases.

Voluntary leadership comes from medical, paramedical, and other professional groups, and from business and lay persons throughout the state.

Hopes To Ban Trading Of Potato Futures

Congressman Arlan Stangeland announced today he is cosponsoring a bill which would ban the trading of potato futures on commodity exchanges.

"Potatoes are not suitable for futures trading for the simple reason that they are perishable and cannot be stored like wheat, corn, cotton or wool. This deterioration factor places constant pressure on the market, producer, shippers and traders, and it effects the ability of farmers to properly market their potatoes and the prices they receive," Stangeland said.

In addition, the bill also seeks to eliminate potential abuses and manipulations of the potato futures market which have hurt the potato grower in the past. A 1956 report on both onions and potatoes by the House agriculture committee said that fluctuations of the futures market have at times affected the cash price of onions and potatoes, and that unless the futures market could be operated in such a way as to prevent injury to the producers of such commodities, futures trading should be prohibited. Trading in onion futures was banned over 20 years ago but potatoes trading has not been halted.

Congress set up the commodity futures trading commission in 1974 and at that time it was felt abuse dealing with potato futures was a thing of the past; however, repeated abuses have taken place. As a result, many major potato grower organizations, including the national potato council, have expressed strong support for banning potato futures trading.

"Potatoes play an important role in the agricultural economy of the Seventh district and continued trading of potato futures will stifle future economic growth and stability and threaten the entire well-being of the potato industry," Stangeland said.

Library Host To Display Of Illustrations

Original illustrations for children's books will be shown at the Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls beginning Sunday, February 17.

"Once Upon a Time: Illustrations of Children's Tales From Around the World," is the title of the exhibition which was organized by the University of Minnesota gallery from the university's Kerlan collection.

Pen and ink drawings, woodcuts, lithographs and watercolors by such artists as Margot Zemach, Maurice Sendak and Minnesotan Wanda Gag are included.

Illustrations of familiar tales like "Peter Rabbit" and "The Snow Queen" will be shown with those of more exotic works like Japan's "Sea of Gold." Many are from books that won national and international awards.

Lise Lunge-Larson will speak at the library Thursday, March 6, at 7:30 p.m. on "Tales Told of Norway." Lunge-Larson is a native Norwegian and University of Minnesota student who has told stories about her heritage nationwide. She is also one of the exhibit's organizers.

The exhibition will run through March 10 after an opening reception from 2 to 4 p.m. February 17. Regular viewing hours will be 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

The exhibit is circulated around the state by continuing education and extension and the agricultural extension service at the university with support from the Minnesota state arts board.

1979 Traffic Death Toll Is Down From '78

Commissioner John P. Sopsic of the Minnesota department of public safety announced that the 1979 traffic death toll is down substantially from the previous year.

Though final figures for 1979 have not been compiled, a preliminary comparison with 1978 indicates a 14 per cent reduction.

The most recent report shows 843 deaths in 1979 compared to 980 in 1978. Included in the 843 fatalities in 1979 were 105 pedestrians, 96 motorcyclists, one moped operator and 14 bicyclists.

Chief Roger Ledding of the Minnesota state patrol said the lower fatality figures are very encouraging. "We feel that the Minnesota state patrol's effect in the enforcement, education and public awareness aspect of the traffic situation contributed to this reduction. However," he added, "we cannot afford to relax in our enforcement program nor our effort to seek voluntary compliance with the 55 MPH limit if we are to reduce the number of traffic fatalities even further in 1980."

Road deaths in the other years were : 1977 — 856; 1976 — 809; 1975 — 777; 1974 — 852; 1973 — 1,024; 1972 — 1,031; 1971 — 1,024; and 1970 — 993.

During the recent New Year's holiday, a 36-hour period, there were four fatalities reported and an additional 19 persons injured, according to the preliminary report filed with the Minnesota state patrol.

The 55 MPH speed limit took effect March 2, 1974.

MnDOT Tests Liquid Calcium To Remove Ice

Reduced chemical use on state highways could result from experiments being conducted in three Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) districts, according to Commissioner Richard P. Braun.

"The aim is to cut down on the amount of chemicals applied to the roadway when removing ice-glaze, while still providing a safe driving surface," he said.

A solution of liquid calcium chloride is being experimented with to remove ice from the road surface more quickly with less chemical. The liquid solution is poured over a truckload of sand and salt, thoroughly coating the sand throughout the load, Braun said.

The usual practice has been to mix calcium chloride pellets with sand. But when winds come and vehicles pass, sand, salt and pellets blow off the roadway. When the new method is used, more of the mixture sticks to the roadway to provide greater melting action because all of the material is a source of heating or melting action. With the old method, only the pure calcium chloride pellets and salt provide melting action.

The new method should reduce the need for recurrent chemical application. This will mean less chemicals on the roadway and roadside vegetation, he said.

The liquid calcium chloride method is being tried in Mn-DOT's Rochester maintenance area for the first time. The Virginia area, which tried the method last year with promising, but inconclusive, results, is continuing the experiment this year.

A salt brine application method is also being experimented with in the St. Cloud maintenance area under a grant from the federal highway administration.

The features here are a salt brine solution and a spray bar that is located under the box of a sanding truck. Salt brine is sprayed forward at a flat angle to the roadway under high pressure, Braun said. "This provides a 'liquid-cutting edge' or blasting action that penetrates the ice-glaze and literally blows it away," he said.

"We will have to wait for test results to see if we can actually accomplish our goal of cutting down on chemical use on our roadways and still continue to provide a safe driving surface," he said.

For further information, contact Larry McNamara, state maintenance engineer, or Marvin Bates, maintenance engineering coordinator, at (612) 296-6761.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Most everyone knows that the problem of drugs and other chemicals is very serious, especially in regards to the young people.

I doubt if there is any time in the past when the youth of that day were as intelligent or as well informed as the youth of today, and yet many of them are and will "fall by the wayside" because they will turn to some chemical, rather than face an unpleasant reality or resist the pressure of their peers.

There is hope, however, as people are taking more interest.

Our school system, the A.V.T.I., churches and other organizations are getting involved in teaching parents and children a better understanding, of each other.

I think that parents owe it to their children to attend as many of these informative meetings as they can, and learn as much as possible about the situation, so that they can talk with more credibility should their children decide to discuss the problem.

"Our" group has had two meetings. The Thief River Falls law enforcement center presented a very informative presentation on hard drugs, marijuana and an extensive array of smoking devices at the first meeting.

The second meeting was conducted by Sheriff Charles Richards and Judge Larry Jorgenson, giving a presentation on laws, apprehension and sentencing pertaining to drug violations.

Our third and last meeting will be a "double" or "split" meeting, with students and other young adults in one room and older adults and small children in another.

Bruce Bomier of Minneapolis will be speaking to one group on the various aspects of drugs and chemicals, the effects, the recovery, etc., while Rick Ramsey of the Northwestern health center will present the program to the other group.

I think this meeting will be well worth while attending, and will be a little different than the other local meetings. It is a rare opportunity to hear speakers of this expertise.

Although our "Tough on Drug Pushers" group will still be active, this will be the last public meeting and will be held this coming Tuesday, February 12th in the lower level meeting room in the city auditorium in Thief River Falls at 7 p.m.

Sincerely,
Mrs. L. Carpenter

"$3,700-/a Month"

Recently, your local school board received a bill for $3,730.89. This bill was from a St. Paul lawyer, John Roszak, for services that were rendered during the short time period of November 3rd through November 30th, 1979.

This money could be used in your local school district to help maintain the quality of your child's education.

Shouldn't your tax dollars be used locally?

If you agree — show your concern, contact a school board member and stop this flow of money to St. Paul.

THIEF RIVER FALLS EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

Public Ideas Being Sought On Rail Plan

Public comment is being sought on a proposed revision of the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) state rail plan, according to commissioner Richard Braun.

Comment from shippers, community officials and other interested persons will be heard during a series of public meetings conducted this month. Proposed changes will be made in light of the comments made at the public meetings before the rail plan is submitted to the federal railroad administration.

Meetings will be conducted February 12 at Owatonna, February 13 at St. Paul, February 14 at Marshall, February 19 at Bemidji and February 21 at Alexandria. Bemidji meeting will be at the area vocational technical institute, Roosevelt and Pershing, Bemidji.

Principal change from the 1978 rail plan is the process used to analyze the financial strength and marketing potential to determine which lines will receive state and federal project funding to improve existing rail service. The financial and marketing analysis will also be used to determine if rail lines proposed for abandonment should receive project fungins.

Braun said the planning process has been changed to give more emphasis to cost-benefit analysis and marketing potential than to geographic coverage and to bring the plan into greater conformance with the state's overall transportation plan, which is also being revised.

The rail plan was developed primarily to enable Minnesota to receive funds from the federal local rail service continuation program.

Rail plan determines how Mn-DOT establishes positions on rail abandonments submitted by railroads to the Interstate Commerce commission (ICC). To be eligible for subsidy aid under the federal program, a rail line must be approved by the ICC for abandonment.

Options under the federal program include subsidizing continued operation of the line, rehabilitating the line to improve its level of service or providing alternative service such as increasing highway load carrying capability if such action would be less expensive than continued rail service.

Under the federal program, Minnesota joined with North and South Dakota to fund the rehabilitation of the Milwaukee road main line between Jonathan, Minn., and Miles City, Mont., to assure coal shipment to the power plant at Big Stone, S.D., which generates much of the electricity used in western Minnesota.

Other projects funded by the federal program include a two-year operating subsidy of the Chicago and North Western line between Redwood Falls and Sleepy Eye and upgrading the roads serving the communities of Good Thunder and Wanda from seven to nine-ton capacity to offset the impact of rail abandonments.

On maps filed with the ICC, railroads have listed 1,173 miles of state rail lines as subject to abandonment within three years.

Persons unable to attend the meetings may send written comments to Minnesota State Rail Plan, Room 820, Transportation Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Copies of the rail plan and the proposed revision are available at Mn-DOT district offices and at the offices of the state's regional development commissions.

Old Arena To Get Artificial Ice

Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA), after coming up with a $12,000 remodeling job in the old arena over the summer, has decided to go ahead with plans to add an artificial ice plant for the building, an ambitious project that will cost in the neighborhood of $35,000.

And to get things going, TRFAHA plans a kick-off fund rally this weekend, starting with the publicized benefit hockey game Friday night matching the Warroad Lakers against the Japanese Olympic hockey team. Proceeds from the game, after expenses, will go to the sponsoring TRFAHA program. A big turnout that night would get the fund-raising program off to a strong start.

Then on Saturday, TRFAHA is planning an open house in the old arena where visitors can take a look at the bright remodeling project, talk hockey, watch hockey games involving youngsters from the 5-6-year-old Tiny Mites to Bantams and discuss fund-raising projects.

Free coffee and doughnuts will be served throughout the open house that starts with Squirt In-House games at 8 a.m. and includes the 7-year-olds at 10:30; 8-year-olds at 12 noon; 5-6-year-olds at 12:45 p.m.; a Pee-Wee B game vs. Detroit Lakes at 2; and a Squirt A game vs. Warroad at 3:30.

Parents, relatives and family friends are urged to attend the open house to see what has been done and to find out what has to be done. The arena, while greatly improved this year, has lost about six weeks of ice time because of the unusually warm winter temperatures, and that includes the cancellation of the Pee-Wee A portion of the annual Arctic Cat Pee-Wee A and Bantam A youth hockey tournament in December — one of the feature attractions of the year for the TRFAHA teams.

TRFAHA is to be commended for the arena remodeling project and encouraged for the plans to install an artificial ice plant this summer. However, while TRFAHA heads the fund-raising operation, it will have to be a community effort to make it a success. Crookston raised funds for a new arena; Warroad and Baudette raised funds for arena improvements; Red Lake Falls raised funds for a Zambonni machine; and Hallock has come up with money to add artificial ice next year. The community of Thief River Falls should be able to work together for the old arena ice project that will expand the use of the facility that is already a winter haven for the youth of the community.

NWAC Basketball Race Is Jumbled

Thief River Falls has made a mess out of the Northwest Athletic Conference basketball standings. Winless and in last place two weeks ago, the Prowlers ran off three straight wins over Fergus Falls 58-57 in triple overtime, East Grand Forks 65-55 and Bemidji 56-45 to gain a share of the NWAC lead with Bemidji and throw the thing into a five-team scramble.

We wrote recently that Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks and Fergus Falls were all but eliminated from the NWAC picture and that it would be a title showdown Friday when Crookston and Bemidji meet at Bemidji. Well, it ain't so. The Prowlers, Green Wave and Otters are all very much in the pennant picture, although those three will have to pray extra hard over the next two weeks to win it.

With 3-2 and 3-3 records, respectively, Bemidji and Thief River Falls are current co-leaders with four points apiece in the NWAC basketball race where a single season encounter against conference opponents is worth two points and a home-and-home series makes games worth a single point. But the Lumberjacks and Prowlers have just one point remaining to be played for in the NWAC while preseason favorite Crookston, now 3-1 for three points, still has four points on the docket.

There are four NWAC games remaining, with Crookston involved in three of them. Crookston will be at Bemidji and Thief River Falls will be at Crookston Friday. On Saturday the Pirates host Fergus Falls in a two-pointer. The conference season ends Fri., Feb. 15, with East Grand Forks at Crookston.

The winning combinations are seemingly endless. Even East Grand Forks and Fergus Falls, with just two points right now and only two more available, could sneak into a title tie with the right — if improbable — breaks.

Crookston, of course, can win the thing with victories over Bemidji, Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks. The Pirates, in fact, could pick up a title tie even if they lost two of their final three NWAC games. The rest can't afford to lose a game the rest of the way.

Region 8A District Play Opens

Post-season tournament play begins this week in Region 8A boys basketball. Tournaments in Districts 29, 30, 31 and 32 will lead to the Region 8A tournament February 29 and March 1 at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks.

Bagley is the No. 1 seed and looks like a favorite in District 29 where the Flyers are the defending champions.

District 30 looks like a three-way scramble between defending champion Fosston, Ada and Mahnomen, with the 13-4 Greyhounds facing the 14-3 Vikings Friday at Ada in a Pine-to-Prairie Conference title showdown.

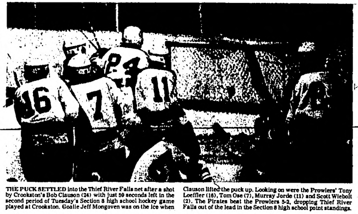
It's a Warren-Argyle toss-up in District 31. But the defending champion Ponies lost a pair of 34-32 and 37-34 decisions to the Eagles this winter.

Lake of the Woods, although routed 48-29 at International Falls last week, is the overwhelming favorite in District 32 with a current 14-1 record.

Any combination of those seven teams would make for a wide-open Region 8A tournament.

Miscellaneous

+A Thief River Falls coaches association was formed last week, which includes all varsity coaches and assistant coaches for both boys and girls teams from the freshman level on up. Charlie Cornell was elected president of the group, John Hustad, vice-president; and Sharon Stauss, secretary-treasurer. The association was formed "to promote, maintain and improve athletic programs for the students of School District 564," said Cornell in a prepared statement.



THE PUCK SETTLED into the Thief River Falls net after a shot by Crookston's Bob Clauson (24) with just 59 seconds left in the second period of Tuesday's Section 8 high school hockey game played at Crookston. Goalie Jeff Mongoven was on the ice when Clauson lifted the puck up. Looking on were the Prowlers' Tony Loeffler (16), Tom Ose (7), Murray Jorde (11) and Scott Wiebolt (2). The Pirates beat the Prowlers 5-2, dropping Thief River Falls out of the lead in the Section 8 high school point standings.

Crookston Wing Gets Hat Trick; TRF Goalie Has Back Problem...

Pirates, With Clauson, Beat Prowlers, Without Jury, 5-2

Goalie Bill Jury, who has made headlines in the Thief River Falls nets for the past three years, made news Tuesday when he came out of the nets and watched from the bench as the Prowlers lost a 5-2 game at Crookston that cost them their lead in the closely-bunched Section 8 high school hockey point standings.

Jury, who has been bothered by a back problem for the past couple of weeks, played the first period and stopped two Crookston breakaways in his typical all-section style. But the pain that had a produced a pre-game visit to the University of North Dakota athletic trainer in Grand Forks became too great and he spent the rest of the game as a spectator.

That put junior Jeff Mongoven into the Thief River Falls nets for the first time since January 4.

And Mongoven suddenly found himself staring Crookston's high-scoring Bob Clauson face-to-face. The big winger, who was left uncovered in front of Mongoven, received a pass from behind the Thief River Falls net and put the Pirates' first shot of the second period past the netminder at the 36-second mark.

Both coaches said the quick second period score was a key play in the outcome.

"The quick goal was the thing. It had a psychological effect on both teams," pointed out Crookston coach Mike Lundby who also used the word psychological when describing Jury's departure. His absence, he said, was an upper for the Pirates and a downer for the Prowlers.

Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand agreed, but defended his back-up netminder. "I don't think Jury would have stopped that one either," he said in reference to Clauson's second period quickie. "We have confidence in Mongoven. I wasn't panicky when we had to put him in the game. I don't think we helped him any."

It became 2-0 when sophomore Dan Hoff scored from the slot at 4:18.

Sakting shorthanded, Thief River Falls cut the gap to 2-1 when defenseman Brian Ranum's effort along the boards kept the puck in play for the Prowlers and Jeff Ulrich was in front for a goal at 7:53.

But Clauson, after opening the scoring the first minute, ended the scoring in the last minute of the second period. Standing in heavy traffic in front, the strong senior lifted the puck up from point blank range for a 3-1 game at 14:01.

The Prowlers lost control when Tom Johannson, who was among a pile of players in front of the Thief River Falls net, scored at 3:27 for a 4-1 game.

Ranum made it 4-2 when he drove a hard slap shot from the blue line off Crookston goalie Gary Vaudrin's pads at 9:57.

Clauson got a freebie for a hat trick when he put the puck into the open Thief River Falls net from the center red line at 14:15.

"We are very happy with the win," said Lundby. "We played very well defensively, that's the most important thing. When you can limit a hockey team like Thief River to two goals you're doing a good job defensively."

Vaudrin picked up some of the praise, but Lundby gave most of the credit to his defense. "Our defensemen played real well," he mentioned. "They (TRF) didn't get many rebounds."

Both coaches agreed the game would have had a different look with Jury in the nets for 45 minutes. "Definitely," answered Grand. "I don't think anyone in Section 8 would deny that."

Jury was joined on the injured list by wing Paul Drees, who has missed the past 2½ games with a shoulder injury suffered at East Grand Forks Jan. 15. He joined Jury at the UND trainer's office yesterday. In addition, first line wing Jim Thompson is slowed by a leg injury suffered in football.

Their status for Saturday's showdown against Roseau in the sports arena is uncertain. Jury is the key. "We're scared," admitted Grand when he talked about Jury's back problem. "It's not an uncommon thing for goaltenders to have back problems. Hopefully it's a muscle thing that can be taken care of with rest."

Goddard, Sabo, Jorde With Warroad...

Japanese Olympic Team, Lakers Play Here Friday

Japanese Olympic hockey team, currently on a pre-Olympic tour of the United States and Canada, will make Thief River Falls its last stop Friday before going to Lake Placid, N.Y. and the 1980 Winter Games.

The Japanese will face the Warroad Lakers Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Thief River Falls sports arena. The game is sponsored by the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association and procedes from the contest will go to the TRFAHA youth hockey program.

The Japanese, led by 31-year-old forward Tsutomu Hanzawa and 26-year-old defenseman Koji Wakasa, are in Grand Forks, N.D. tonight (Wednesday) to face the University of North Dakota. They played in Duluth last night against the University of Minnesota-Duluth.

Arriving in the United States Jan. 27, the Japanese began their current tour with games against U.S. International University in San Diego, the Canadian Olympic team in Calgary and the Spokane Indians.

Warroad, meanwhile, went undefeated through the month of January to climb atop the Canadian Central Amateur Senior Hockey League. The Lakers lost a 10-0 exhibition game to a strong United States Olympic hockey team Sunday at Warroad. Two days earlier the Japanese lost a 9-3 game to a Canadian Olympic team that took three out of four games against the U.S. this winter.

"I think it's going to be a good match-up Friday," said Cal Marvin of the Lakers. "I think the fans are going to enjoy it. We're certainly looking forward to it."

Warroad's line-up will feature three former Lincoln high school hockey stars: Tom Goddard, Scott Sabo and Marv Jorde. Goddard and Sabo are regulars with the Lakers. Jorde, after writing to Marvin about his desire to play the Japanese in his hometown, was invited to join the Lakers who can use the additional manpower after running into a rash of injuries that forced them to play most of the past month with a 14-man roster.

Hanzawa

Wakasa

Jorde, an all-stater on the Prowlers' 1954 state championship team, wanted another crack at the Japanese. He took his United States senior champion St. Paul Parkers team to Japan two years ago for a tour against club teams and lost all nine games.

Sabo, like the Lakers' team, has come on strong after a slow start in the tough CASH league competition, scoring nine goals and collecting 15 points in his last nine games to lead Warroad from fifth to first in the six team league that also includes the Thunder Bay Twins, Steinbach Huskies, St. Boniface Mohawks, St. James Flyers and East Kildonan Millionaires. He had a hat trick against Thunder Bay last week as the Lakers handed the Twins their first loss of the year, 7-2.

"Scott has really come on strong," noted Marvin. "He's learning to take a check and he's learning to use his wingers more."

Centering Gary Ustalo, a Michigan native, and Dick Boelter, a Massachusetts skater, Sabo has drawn the attention of college recruiters from the University of Minnesota and Michigan Tech.

Goddard has been playing with the Lakers since completing his four-year hockey career at the University of North Dakota in 1977 and is one of the team's top two-way performers.

"You gotta like the game of hockey to do what Tom is doing," praised Marvin when he talked about Goddard's constant travel that keeps him away from his business and family through much of the winter. "We put some gas in his tank and give him something to eat, that's all," mentioned Marvin. "He had 56 road games last year and played in all but two of them, when he was injured — and he attended those two."

Goddard plays on a line with Tim McKinnon of Warroad and Bemidji high school hockey coach Bryan Grand. But Grand will have his Lumberjacks in Crookston that night to play Mount St. Benedict. That might put Jorde on Goddard's line.

Warroad is 17-11 overall with a roster-full of familiar players, including player-coach Scott Marvin, Jack Ganyo, Frank Krahn, Mike Marvin and Billy Christian of Warroad, Mike Stone of Roseau and goalie Pete Waselovich of International Falls.

It's a young line-up — outside of the 42-year-old Christian, a star on the United States' gold-medal winning 1960 Olympic team — and Marvin admits it'll be a challenge to remain the CASH league front runner.

"It's going to be tough," noted Marvin. "We just don't have the depth like most of the teams do."

Tickets for the game, priced at $3 for adults and $1 for students, are on sale at TG Sporting Goods and Bjorkman's. They'll sell for $3.50 at the door Friday night.

"We hope that the game is a success for the youth hockey program in Thief River," said Marvin, "and we hope the hockey fans will want to come out to see some of their local players in action."

TRF, Roseau Meet Saturday...

Schedule

Fri., Feb. 8 — [illegible] at Mount St. Benedict (4), TRF at Fergus Falls, Lake of the Woods at Red Lake Falls.

Sat., Feb. 9 — Roseau at TRF, Crookston at Moorhead, Lake of the Woods at Fergus Falls, [illegible] at Hallock, Brainerd at Red Lake Falls (4).

Tuesday night results in Section 8 high school hockey produced a new leader in the tight Section 8 point standings that determine post-season tournament positions.

Thief River Falls, the Section 8 leader the past 3½ weeks, lost 5-2 at Crookston while Roseau out-shot Mount St. Benedict 43-21 and out-scored the Blue Wave 3-1 at Roseau to take over first place.

Roseau, 9-5-1 for the year, is 20-6 in the Section 8 points won-lost category for a first place .769 winning percentage. Thief River Falls, 10-4-1 for the year, is 24-8 in the points department after last night for a .750 winning percentage.

Both of those Tuesday affairs were worth four points in Section 8 play where single regular season meetings double the prize that is two points for a home-and-home games.

That sets the stage for Saturday night's 7:30 p.m. game in the sports arena matching Thief River Falls against Roseau. The Prowlers blanked the Rams 4-0 earlier this season.

Thief River Falls has twice as many points remaining to be played for (12-6) in Section 8 play than Roseau, but that won't hurt the Rams since the standings are based on a winning percentage.

Top four regular season finishers in the Section 8 point standings will be seeded into the 1980 Section 8 hockey tournament, scheduled to begin in Thief River Falls Fri., Feb. 29. The other 13 teams must battle for those other four Section 8 berths by advancing through sub section playoffs that start Mon., Feb. 25.

Looking at the scramble in the Section 8 standings, Crookston coach Mike Lundby said, "I don't think there's going to be a clear cut favorite until March 8." The Section 8 championship game is March 7.

A BREAKAWAY BY Crookston forward Steve Johnson was stopped by Thief River Falls goalie Jeff Mongoven at 13:22 of the second period during Tuesday's high school hockey game played at Crookston. Mongoven was playing in place of starting Bill Jury who left the game after a scoreless first period with a back injury. The Pirates beat the Prowlers 5-2.

Skippers Shoot 72% In 67-64 North Border Win Over Nordics

Middle River shot a sizzling 72 per cent from the field Tuesday in a 67-64 win over neighboring rival Marshall County Central to take second place away from the Nordics in the North Border Conference high school basketball standings.

The Skippers, who missed just six shots over the last three quarters, finished the game 31-for-43 from the field.

"They scorched the nets the whole game," described Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "They really blistered them. They really played well."

The Middle River win reversed an earlier 55-42 loss to Marshall County Central and improved the Skippers' North Border Confrecnce record to 9-2. The Nordics finished their North Border schedule 9-3, but can still gain a second place tie with the Skippers who must face unbeaten conference leader Lake of the Woods Friday at Baudette. The Bears drilled the Skippers 74-54 in their first meeting.

Middle River ran up an 18-8 first quarter lead on the visiting Nordics Tuesday. It was 38-21 at halftime and 58-34 after three quarters.

But Marshall County Central made it close by outscoring Middle River 27-9 in the final eight minutes. While the Nordics were scoring the Skippers were missing free throws — making just one of ten attempts at the line in the fourth quarter.

That brought the Nordics to within 65-62 with 27 seconds remaining. But the final half-minute was a stand-off.

"We hustled on defense," explained Ueland when questioned about Middle River's high percentage shooting. "We worked hard, but we did make some mistakes on defense. We became overzealous and sometimes on our press and gave them a couple of easy ones."

Scott McKeever poured in 32 points to lead the Skippers and teammate Jon Neumann had 12. Ray Kvalvog scored 20 points for the Nordics, 14 coming in the final period. Dan Maki had a 12-point, 10-rebound game for the visitors who out-rebounded Middle River 33-28 and finished to just 10 turnovers to the Skippers' 18. And Marshall County Central shot a fine 51 per cent from the field (30-for-59). But that was still 21 percentage points lower than the Skippers.

Marshall County Central, 11-6 for the year, will complete its 1979-80 schedule Friday at Strandquist. Middle River, after facing Lake of the Woods, will close out the year Tuesday at home against Karlstad. The Skippers are 14-2 overall.

A Middle River loss Friday at Baudette would necessitate a coin flip between the Skippers and Marshall County Central to break that second place tie in the North Border Conference and gain a winner a more favorable seed in the 1980 District 32 basketball tournament that is scheduled to start Thursday., Feb. 14, with tripleheaders at Newfolden and Roseau.

MCC Freshmen Defeat TRF 67-56 Monday

Ted Thompson poured in 33 points Monday to lead Marshall County Central to a 67-56 freshman high school basketball win over Thief River Falls.

Thompson scored 14 points in a 22-22 first quarter shoot-out. The Newfolden ball club pulled away to a 37-28 halftime lead and stayed on top 53-45 after three quarters.

Mark Gere led a trio of Thief River Falls double figure scorers with 16 points while Rany Nalseth hit 11 and Steve Olson 10.

Thief River Falls, 0-8, will host Crookston Thursday at 3:30 p.m. and will entertain Marshall County Central Saturday at 9 a.m.

Northwomen Lose To UND JV 71-48

Ahead 22-12 at halftime, the University of North Dakota junior varsity still needed a scoring burst in the final 10 minutes of the game to shake the Northland community college women's basketball team Monday. The Sioux finished with a 71-48 win.

Very cool shooting at both ends of the court kept the scoring down in the first half when Northland shot just 16 per cent from the field and North Dakota did little better at 24 per cent.

Northland, however, used a busy 18-for-35 night at the free throw line to pull within three points midway through the second half before North Dakota suddenly found the range and dropped the visitors' record to 3-13 for the year.

Julie Easton and Julie Anderson finished with 13 points apiece for the Northwomen. Cheri Fontaine had 16 for the Sioux.

Northland finished with a 25 per cent, 15-for-58 night from the field. North Dakota ended with a 38 per cent, 30-for-80 shooting night and 11-for-14 at the line. The Sioux held a 57-47 rebound edge and the Northwomen led in turnovers 32-28.

The Northwomen return to Northwest Division play Thursday at Crookston and Monday at home against Fergus Falls. Both games start at 6 p.m.

Thief River Falls, Minn.

SCORING THE FIRST of his three goals, Crookston wing Bob Clauson was standing all alone in front of Thief River Falls goalie Jeff Mongoven when he beat the Prowlers' back-up netminder just 36 seconds into the second period of Tuesday's Section 8 high school hockey game played at Crookston. It was the first shot Mongoven faced as he replaced Bill Jury in the Prowlers nets after the starter left with a back injury. Clauson's hat trick, which included an open net goal at the end, led the Pirates to a 5-2 victory over the Prowlers.

MCC, Grygla Girls Will Square Off Thursday

Marshall County Central and Grygla, top contenders in District 32 high school girls basketball will meet for the second time this season Thursday when the Nordics and Eagles clash at Grygla. Marshall County Central was an easy 51-36 winner when the two met three weeks ago and will bring a 12-2 record into the game. But Grygla is just a half-step behind at 11-2.

They both won Monday night as Marshall County Central got by Strandquist 41-36 and Grygla defeated Roseau 54-39.

MCC 41
Strandquist 36

An early lead managed to protect Marshall County Central from a poor shooting night as the Nordics held on to beat Strandquist 41-36.

The Nordics, who opened with a 13-8 first quarter lead and sat on a 21-13 halftime cushion, scored just four points in the third quarter as their lead dwindled to 25-22.

Shooting was the main problem for the winners who connected on just 17 of 69 shots for 25 per cent and sank only seven of 20 free throws.

"We had a lot of good shots," reported Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde, "but they just wouldn't go in."

Meanwhile, Strandquist was having its own problems scoring, hitting 13 of 56 field goal tries for 23 per cent and making 10 of 22 free throws.

Sue Olson and Jill Johnson scored 13 and 10 points, respectively for the winners while Laural Opheim had 10 for the visitors.

After traveling to Grygla Thursday the Nordics return home to host Roseau Monday.

Grygla 54
Roseau 39

Sherri Anderson came up with a handfull of steals off a full court press defense Monday and scored 23 points in the process as Grygla took a 54-39 decision out of Roseau.

"We had a real good defensive game," pointed out Grygla coach Bill Radeunz whose club limited Roseau to a dozen points en route to a 28-12 halftime lead. It was 46-22 after three quarters.

With the press forcing Roseau turnovers that led to Grygla lay-ups, the Eagles shot 43 per cent from the field by hitting 24 of 56 shots. Roseau was 17-for-53 for 32 per cent. Grygla made six of 12 free throw attempts while Roseau went just 5-for-14 at the line.

After hosting Marshall County Central Thursday, Grygla will be at home again Tuesday against Lake of the Woods.

Middle River 69
LOW 33

Coming off a wide-spread bout with the flu that forced postponement of two games last week, Middle River showed no ill effects in running past Lake of the Woods 69-33 Monday at Baudette.

The Skippers doubled the Bears 18-9 in the first quarter and pulled away to a 42-17 halftime advantage. It was 55-26 at the end of the third quarter.

"We played pretty well in the first half," said Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "We got a little tired in the second half."

The Skippers' high-scoring Dawn Nelson faced another box-and-one defense but still collected 24 points, and the special attention opened things up for her teammates, led by Michelle Maertens' 11 points.

"We got more scoring from everybody else this time and not just Dawn," noted Neibauer.

The Skippers, now 7-6, will be at Roseau Thursday and visit Warroad Monday.

Most of the rain which falls over the eastern U.S. is acutally diluted sulfuric and nitric acid, according to the National Wildlife Federation. Sulfur from industry — refineries, metal smelters, power plants — contributed 60 to 70 per cent of the acidity, with most of the remainder being nitrogen oxides from auto emissions.

State Ski Meet Starts On Friday

First of the two-phase Minnesota State High School League state skiing championships will be held on Friday when the boys and girls cross country meets are held at Sugar Hills in Grand Rapids.

One week from Friday on February 15, the state meet competition for boys and girls in alpine will be conducted at Welch Village, south of Hastings.

This Friday's cross country race for girls will start at 11 a.m. and will cover a five-kilometer course. The boys will begin their 10-kilometer race at 1:30 p.m.

Defending girls squad champion Blaine is back to defend its state title. Other state meet squad qualifiers include schools from Stillwater, Lakeville, Blake, Wayzata, Burnsville, Grand Rapids and Aurora-Hoyt Lakes.

Juniors Kathy Klungness of Burnsville and Kelly Kimball of Blaine are two individuals who are seriously expected to challenge for top honors in the individual competition. Winners in section meet competition last week, Klungness finished third in last year's state meet while Kimball was fifth. Other individual section champions last week were Karen Hammond of Lakeville and Barb Unzen of Cloquet.

Defending boys squad titlist Stillwater will be back to defend its squad title. Other squad entries include Blaine, Lakeville, Blake, Armstrong, Burnsville, Cloquet and Duluth East.

Like in the girls' race, 28 boys will compete for individual honors. Last year's state runner-up, senior Todd Boonstra of Burnsville, is considered the favorite to capture the gold medal. Other section winners from last week's meets include Kevin Marciniak of Cloquet, Kelly Moynagh of Stillwater and John Tuma of Lakeville. Moynagh finished third in last year's state meet.

Sixty-seven high schools throughout Minnesota sponsored interscholastic cross country skiing programs during the 1979-80 skiing season.

OEA Will Sponsor Charity Bowlathon

In support of the Special Olympics for the mentally retarded, the office education association at the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute will sponsor a bowlathon again this year on February 13 at the Family Bowl.

Kay Anderson, advisor to the office education association, points out that sports is the quickest, surest road to health, growth and self-confidence for the retarded. Depite the success of the Special Olympics, however, more than two million mentally retarded children and adults in the United States are denied the chance to participate.

In America, Special Olympics reaches about 25 per cent of those who could use the program. Twenty per cent of the nation's counties have no Special Olympics organization or program and 60 per cent of the school systems are still to be reached.

Special Olympics is primarily a local program, and an increasing number of people and organizations are becoming interested and providing support. In addition to the office education association, other organizations involved include the national association for retarded citizens, Jaycees, Fellowship of Christian athletes, Kiwanis, Rotary, Campfire girls, YMCA, YWCA and many others.

New Members Are Named To MSHSL Board

Elaine Niehoff of Melrose and Lurline Baker of Duluth have been appointed to serve on the board of directors of the Minnesota State High School League.

Niehoff was appointed by the Minnesota school boards association. She replaces Herb Zaske of Brownton, who completed a two-year term. Niehoff, a registered nurse who has been clerk of the school board at Melrose for the past eight years, will serve a two-year term.

Baker, who will represent minorities in an advisory position, was appointed to the board by the state board of education. She is employed by the Arrowhead regional corrections center, where she serves as project director for "alternatives", a community service resitution program for women.

Both Niehoff and Baker will begin service when the board of directors hold their next monthly meeting on February 7.

The board of directors of the league, a 16-member body, is responsible for administering state tournaments and meets, interpretation of rules, enforcement of rules, establishment and operation of the league office, issuing of publications and the hiring of the executive staff.

Meetings of the board are held monthly during the school year to consider management of programs, finances of the league, elibility cases, and all other matters which constitute issues of interest and importance to the 517 member high schools throughout Minnesota.

Leatherback turtle, with its powerful flippers and lightweight shell, can swim up to 22 miles an hour — faster than some motorboats — says the National Wildlife Federation.

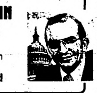
Arlan Stangeland



No Tax on Social Security!

I have introduced legislation to prohibit the taxation of Social Security benefits. As shown by the tremendous number of calls and letters I have received from constituents opposition to this recommendation by the Administration's special panel is reflected in the feelings of our people in the Seventh District. I agree wholeheartedly with your concern and, in order to put this type of injustice to rest, we must prevent such a suggestion from ever being implemented.

The outrageous recommendation was made by the Advisory Council on Social Security and it called for including as taxable income 50 per cent of a person's cash benefits from Social Security. The purpose, according to the Advisory Council, would be to financially aid the already ailing Social Security system.

This type of treatment for the nation's elderly community cannot be tolerated. They have worked all their lives under the belief that once they retired they would receive full Social Security benefits without being taxed. I cannot understand this unfortunate recommendation as a means of curing the ills of the Social Security system. The elderly community is not responsible for the poor management of this program and I sincerely believe they should not have to pay for the government's inability to manage it correctly.

Currently, Social Security cash benefits are not taxed by the government and Congress is not actively considering the implementation of the Advisory Council's recommendation, but it could happen because, as the law now reads, there is no provision prohibiting the taxation of Social Security benefits.

My intent in proposing this legislation is to make sure that such a recommendation could never be implemented and that our nation's elderly people will not have to suffer needlessly. Economic conditions and the rapidly increasing price of energy are making it difficult enough for elderly people to survive and make ends meet, but the taxation of Social Security would make it even more difficult for these people to live a decent life.

When to Contact Social Security

—You are unable to work because of an illness or injury that is expected to last at least a year.

—You are 62 or older and plan to retire.

—You are within 2 or 3 months of 65, even if you do not plan to retire.

—Someone in your family dies.

—You have any questions concerning your eligibility for monthly payments under the Social Security program.

—You need a Social Security card for employment and income tax purposes, or if you have lost your Social Security card. (You are permitted just one Social Security number during your lifetime.)

—You change your name. (This does not apply to change of last name in marriage.)

It is important for you to contact your Social Security office before you reach 65, not only about retirement payments but also about Medicare, which is available whether or not you retire.

A long delay in applying for monthly benefits can cause loss of some benefits since back payments can be made for not more than 12 months.

For additional information, contact my office at 1518 Longworth HOB; Washington, D.C. 20515, or call my toll-free number: 1-(800)-432-3770.

Unafraid of the Future

This is our Ernie!

Ernie has no qualms about growing up in this complex world — he is unafraid of the future.

Know why?

Because he trusts US!

Ernie leaves to Jean and me — his parents — all those vital decisions that will have an indelible effect on his future.

That trust brings our family to church every Sunday. It has made religious faith an important part of our home life.

When you are responsible for the future of a child of God . . . you need HIS help!

Turning On Science Show On TV May Turn On Students

by Jeanne Hanson
'U' M News Service

If you were turned off by science as a child, your experience was quite typical, according to Roger T. Johnson, University of Minnesota science education professor. Recently, Johnson was asked by the National Assessment of Educational progress (NAEP) to comment on its latest survey of children's attitudes toward science. He has also taken a look at the new PBS science show for kids "3-2-1 Contact," produced by the Children's Television workshop, and feels it could have some impact on its viewers' interest in science.

Only six per cent of this country's nine-year-olds tank science as their favorite subject, the NAEP data show. By age 13, more than 50 per cent have no interest in science-related careers. And by age 17 many boys and most girls have given up on science completely.

Students even lose interest in science from September to June in a given year, the study found. "I'm alarmed at this," said Johnson, who expects the decline to continue because in the current "back to basics" school atmosphere, science is not considered a "basic."

By rejecting science, Johnson said, young people cut themselves off from hundreds of career choices, including engineering, medicine, computer science, architecture, all of the science fields, and much of business and industry.

Besides losing many of the available young men, these fields will continue to attract only a few women and minority-group members as long as young people are turned off to science at an early age, he said. Figures show girls now begin to lose interest in science by the third grade.

Johnson said he feels science literacy is important. If people don't understand the scientific pay-off of going to the moon, for example, they will swing from awed acceptance of the venture to suspicion of it, he said.

A lack of commitment to active science by the schools themselves emerged in the survey, Johnson said. By the end of elementary school, only 58 per cent of the students surveyed had ever used a microscope, only 71 per cent of the boys and 34 per cent of the girls had ever wired an electrical circuit, fewer of either sex had ever used a pollution control kit of any kind.

"This hands-on experience is what science should be in elementary school," Johnson said. Children should be "garbage gardening" with damp bread and having ice-cube melting contests in class, for example, he said.

A good school science program should have three dimensions, he added. First a focus is necessary to capture students' interest — a magnetic ball that rolls uphill, for example. Next, freedom to think must exist. Kids should be thinking and not just following steps in any experiment. Last, a responsive environment is crucial. If a teacher keeps several kinds of seed cases, for example, students can figure out how burrs, milkweed, cherries and maples scatter their seeds, each in a different way.

Students themselves want to do this sort of thing, according to the survey data, although they are a bit confused, Johnson said. About 93 per cent of the nine-year-olds said they liked to find out new things on their own, and most were interested in the environment, health and consumer matters.

But when the same students were asked if they wanted to be told the answers, 66 per cent said yes. Johnson feels that answer is the result of science teaching methods that stress lectures and group reading instead of inquiry and discovery.

Lack of teacher enthusiasm is the biggest proglem, he said, and even nine-year-old students gauge this pretty well. When asked if their teachers really liked science, 60 per cent answered "I don't know."

Too many teachers think they should know all of the answers, Johhson said. When a student asks why the sky is usually a paler blue in winter, a teacher should admit that he or she doesn't know and suggest that "they all check out some books or call a physics professor at the university."

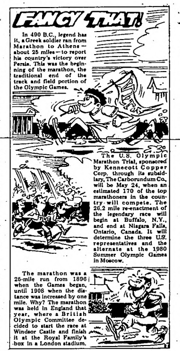
Johnson is impressed with the new public television show "3-2-1 Contact," aired late afternoon nationally, and feels that the program approaches science with more creativity than many science teachers do. Designed for eight to 12-year-olds ("a bit hard for eight," Johnson said), the show follows the adventures of three teenagers as they figure out that science is everywhere.

The teenagers help with dolphin sonar experiments, see the giant whirlpools in the Bay of Fundy, and will travel 30,000 miles before the series is over. "It's interesting that they don't visit a science class," Johnson said. "They do what television does best — take you where you can't go yourself."

Other segments show the trio figuring things out — why a doorbell won't ring in a vacuum, for example. "It's nice to hear the word 'why' come back," he said.

Johnson's main concern is that the show might get so caught up in the content of science that the scientific way of thinking might be neglected. "So far, this hasn't happened," he said. "And, although it doesn't have quite the pizzazz or the dialogue flow of Sesame Street, I'm very favorably impressed. It doesn't take the place of a good science class, where kids get to wire a doorbell themselves, but it could surely supplement one," he said.

FANCY THAT!



In 490 B.C., legend has it, a Greek soldier ran from Marathon to Athens — about 25 miles — to report his country's victory over Persia. This was the beginning of the marathon, the traditional end of the track and field portion of the Olympic Games.

The U.S. Olympic Marathon Trial, sponsored by Kennecott Copper Corp. through its subsidiary, The Carborundum Co., will be May 24, when an estimated 170 of the top marathoners in the country will compete. The 26.2 mile re-enactment of the legendary race will begin at Buffalo, N.Y., and end at Niagara Falls, Ontario, Canada. It will determine the three U.S. representatives and the alternate at the 1980 Summer Olympic Games in Moscow.

The marathon was a 26-mile run from 1896 when the Games began, until 1908 when the distance was increased by one mile. Why? The marathon was held in England that year, where a British Olympic Committee decided to start the race at Windsor Castle and finish it at the Royal Family's box in a London stadium.

Inflation Off To A Running Start In 1980

Even if inflation tapers off, which is not certain, inflation in 1980 is off to a running start, according to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Laws already on the books provided for automatic increases, effective January 1, in social security taxes and the federal minimum wage, which will drive up employers' costs and help push up prices.

Under a law passed in late 1977, social security taxes have been rising sharply. Over a 10-year period Congress provided for automatic increases totaling around $227 billion.

In 1979, for example, the tax rate and the maximum amount of earnings taxed both went up, which raised the combined tax for employer and employee to $2,808 a year. In 1980, the tax rate remains the same, 6.13 per cent. But taxable earnings go up sharply from $22,900 to $25,900. This means a yearly tax of $1,588 each on employer and worker — or a boost of $184 for workers earning $25,900 or more.

Federal minimum wage similarly has been going up under a law passed in 1977 when the wage floor was $2.30 an hour. The January 1 increase made the new minimum $3.10 an hour — 35 per cent increase since Jan. 1, 1978.

But this is only one side of the coin — what might be called inflation by legislation.

What about "unlegislated" pressures on inflation. In the 1980 forecast, Dr. Richard S. Landry, deputy chief economist of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, says "High rates of inflation and increases in nominal wages are increasing the tax burden of both individuals and corporations at alarming rates.

"Without sizeable cuts in federal taxes next year, personal income taxes are expected to increase a massive 15.6 per cent despite a predicted fall in inflation-adjusted wages."

What else is there in the way of built-in inflation for 1980?

What about 1979's inflation? Even if inflation slows down below the current level of 13 or 14 per cent, economists agree, prices will not fall below the level at the start of the current surge several years ago. In other words, past inflation will feed 1980's.

While unable to agree on a uniform price increase, OPEC ministers at their year's end meeting in Venezuela left no doubt that crude oil prices would be rising again and adding to prices at U.S. gasoline pumps. Producing nations were at loggerheads over how high to raise prices. At the start of the new year they began raising prices in a leapfrogging fashion.

Whatever happened to the good news?

Scheduling Has Begun For RRV Winter Shows

Women's division of the Red River valley winter shows has begun scheduling programs and exhibits of interest for the entire family to be presented February 22 to 27 at the Crookston armory. A number of booths are still available for Craft Days, February 22 to 25, and should be reserved now. Fee is $20 for two days. Contact JoAnn Saylor, East Grand Forks, phone 773-1348.

Pre-registration is required before February 18 for a candy workshop to be held Friday, February 22 at 10 a.m. It will be presented by Dora Curfman, owner of the Oven Door, largest supplier of cake and candy-making equipment in North Dakota. According to women's division chairwoman, Sandy Peterson, the fee will be $2.50 per person in addition to daily admission, and registration can be made by calling Deb Matero, Thief River Falls, phone 681-2116. Individuals must supply their own ice chest with ice to cool the candy.

Pre-registration is also requested for artists in the area, both professional and amateur, who would like to exhibit their work during the winter shows. Contact co-chairwomen Arlene Rude, route 2, Crookston or Claudia Rasmus, route 2, Crookston for entry blanks. There is no registration fee required and the following categories will be accepted: oil, acrylic, watercolor, pen and ink, batik, charcoal and tissue collage. All work must have been done within the past year, be framed, wired for hanging and price tagged (if the work is for sale). A one-woman art show by Jean Johnson of Oslo is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, February 23 and 24.

Chairwoman Peterson suggests that those interested in exhibiting stitchery should begin preparing their work for a noncompetitive exhibit scheduled for Wednesday, February 27. Only work completed through the use of a needle with an eye will be considered. Contact Mitzi Balstad, Fosston, phone 435-6311 for information.

Other exhibits and demonstrations scheduled include: the art of stained glass by Jack Stattine; breadmaking by Helen Juhl of Natural Way mills; tole painting by Linda Sparhawk; cuttin' up in the Kitchen by Reid Mason of the Minnesota beef council; sketching by Zola Bleth; spinning by Sari Clark and Nancy Koering; energy-wise homemaking by Jean Castle; and heating with wood by Bill Sliney. A photography workshop is also scheduled to be presented by Donald L. Breneman, assistant professor and extension information specialist for the agricultural extension service, University of Minnesota. He is also an instructor of photography at the St. Paul campus.

Senior citizens day, Tuesday, February 26, will involve a luncheon, entertainment and presentation of awards. The programs selected for the women's seminar on Wednesday, February 27, will include Art Lee, Bemidji, as speaker. Lee is author of "The Lutefisk Ghetto". There will be a luncheon and style show with entertainment provided by Diane's Dance studio of Bemidji; a collection of American dolls and their historical background by Mrs. Philip B. Cory, East Grand Forks; and Norwegian dolls and folklore presented by Mrs. Hild Hildahl of Roseau.

Luncheon tickets for the women's seminar are $6 and $4 with a winter shows pass. Tickets are available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Marlys Finkenbider, in care of Red River Valley Winter Shows, P.O. Box 402, Crookston, MN 56716.

These activities are made possible in part by a grant provided by the Northwest regional development commission through funding from the Minnesota state arts board and the Minnesota state legislature.

WIN Reduces Welfare By $11.7 Million

Work incentive (WIN) program reduced state welfare payments an estimated $11,700,000 in fiscal year 1979, the Minnesota department of economic security reports.

Savings to taxpayers was more than one-and-a-half times the $7,500,000 program costs. In addition, grant reductions to WIN participants also lowered public expenditures for medicaid and food stamp programs and state and federal governments gained revenue through income taxes paid by employed WIN registrants.

WIN is a federal program which assists persons receiving aid to families with dependent children (AFDC) become gainfully employed, reducing or eliminating their dependence on public welfare.

There were 16,266 individuals classified as WIN registrants in Minnesota at the end of the fiscal year, a 10 per cent increase over the previous year.

Since the beginning of the fiscal year, 6,286 registrants entered permanent employment at an average starting wage of $3.88 per hour. Although approximately half of the participants entered clerical and service fields, more than eight per cent were employed in professional, technical and managerial capacities.

In addition to those who entered permanent employment, 951 registrants received basic education or vocational classroom training, 757 were assigned to non-WIN funded training programs, 513 were in non-WIN subsidized employment, 328 were involved in on-the-job training programs and 62 participated in public service employment.

Department of economic security provides counseling and placement services, refers registrants to training programs and develops job openings. Department of public welfare makes eligibility determinations and provides supportive services, including financial assistance with transportation, medical and child care.

Authorized by amendments to the social security act, WIN is a joint effort of the U.S. department of labor and department of health, education and welfare. In Minnesota the WIN program is jointly operated by the Minnesota department of economic security, through more than 100 job service area offices, and the Minnesota department of public welfare, through county welfare agencies.

Scientist Studies Why Plants Flower

by Madeleine Jacobs
Smithsonian News Service

Charles Cleland is trying to solve a 40-year-old mystery. The mystery that has taken Cleland from weed-filled fields in Indiana to a sophisticated scientific laboratory near Washington, D.C., can be stated simply: What causes plants to produce flowers?

"Now you probably think you know the answer to this question," Cleland tells a visitor to his laboratory. "Just give a plant the right kind and amount of light, food and water and it will flower. But the truth is, although florists, farmers, hobbyists and scientists know how to make plants flower, the basic underlying reason why plants flower remains unknown."

It is, he says, one of the great enigmas of science.

It is also a puzzle whose solution could have tremendous payoff. Flowering plants are the dominant form of vegetation on land. Seventy to 80 per cent of all the food we consume directly or indirectly comes from flowering plants such as rice, wheat and corn. Important textiles such as cotton come from flowering plants as do wood, vegetable oils and many drugs. The ability to understand the flowering process and to control it precisely would have major economic effects on crop production and commerce.

And so Cleland, a plant physiologist with the Smithsonian institution, has spent more than 10 years trying to solve this mystery. His detective work takes place at the Smithsonian's radiation biology laboratory where scientists study both the effect of solar radiation living things and the make-up of solar radiation itself — areas linked intimately with the flowering process.

"All plants respond to the relative length of light and darkness — a process called photoperiodism," Cleland says. "Although some plants will flower when they reach a certain size, other plants will flower only when the length of day reaches a certain critical value.

"A good example is the poinsettia, the colorful plant associated with Christmas. Poinsettias can be made to flower by giving them short day-lengths. But we don't know what the chemical process is inside the poinsettia that makes it flower."

The most popular theory of flowering was proposed in 1936 by a Russian researcher who suggested that a "flower hormone" was produced in the leaves of plants under the right kind of light conditions. This substance was thought to move to the growing point of the plant where it controlled flower bud formation. Many scientists have spent their lifetimes studying this theory.

To date, all attempts to isolate this elusive substance have failed. Cleland has remained undaunted.

"Initially, we decided to examine phloem sap," Cleland explains. "This seems like a logical place to look for the flower hormone since experiments showed that it moves in the phloem, which is the transport tissue that carries organic substances, including plant hormones, through the plants.

"Our first problem was getting phloem sap, since phloem has an unfortunate tendency to plug up when you try to extract it, so we had to go about it indirectly."

To do this, Cleland pressed into service an unlikely assistant — a tiny insect, the common garden aphid. The bane of anyone who has ever tried to grow roses, aphids have the remarkable talent of extracting phloem sap directly through their sucking apparatus and then excreting fairly large quantities of "honeydew." Honeydew is remarkably similar to phloem sap and can be collected and analyzed for its chemical composition.

Cleland collected aphids and the cocklebur plants on which they were feeding in the fields of Indiana. Back in the laboratory, the aphids were allowed to feed on the cocklebur plants while the honeydew was collected. The honeydew was analyzed using chromatography, a method for separating chemical substances.

Instead of one substance, however, Cleland found at least three — two that acted as flower inhibitors and a third that seemed to induce flowering. The flower-inducing substance was identified as salicylic acid — a relative of acetylsalicylic acid, the active ingredient in aspirin.

"We thought this was a major breakthrough," Cleland recalls. "We found that salicylic acid induced flowering in duckweed, a small flowering plant that is easy to work with. But unfortunately, it had no effect on flowering in the cocklebur plant, on which the aphids had fed. So we knew we had not isolated the flower hormone."

This finding and mounting evidence from other studies have led Cleland to believe that more than one substance is responsible for flowering.

"It seems much more likely that flowering is controlled by a complex, which includes one or more flower-inducing substances and one or more flower-inhibiting substances. The relative balance of these substances may be what determines flowering," he says.

Cleland now has begun to work with Perilla crispa, a coleus-like plant which can be made to flower by giving it short daylengths. It is easier to obtain phloem sap from Perilla plants — for one thing, the sap can be collected directly from cut leaves without having to use aphids.

But it still takes tons of thousands of leaves, which Cleland has harvested from plants he has raised in local greenhouses. The leaves are soaked in a special solution; substances in the phloem are released through diffusion and can be collected. In this way, he has obtained a few grams of dried sap which are now being analyzed by an advanced form of chromatography in a joint project with a Canadian biochemist. Leaves are collected from both flowering and non-flowering plants so that their substances can be compared and the ones which control flowering can hopefully be identified.

"Sometimes we feel as if we're looking for the proverbial needle in the haystack," Cleland admits, "but we keep going because of the tremendous importance that the substance or complex of substances would have. First, we'd be answering a fundamental scientific question: What takes place inside a plant to make it flower?

"Beyond that understanding, there are a large number of potential applications. If we could learn to induce flowering, we might be able to increase crop production or expand the range of climates in which a plant can be grown. If, in fact, we find that there are inhibitory substances as well, we could learn to delay flowering. This would also be important. Every home gardener knows what happens when lettuce begins to flower — that's the end of salads for that growing season. Other economically important plants such as tobacco and sugar cane benefit from delayed flowering."

The applications are endless, he adds, but he hopes his search for the elusive flower hormones is not. Right now, though, Charles Cleland is a man in pursuit of the answer to one of life's most beautiful mysteries.

Here's a beauty — Bo Derek makes her screen debut in Blake Edwards' "10" in the role of the perfect young girl (on a scale of 1-to-10). Capturing her affections is the goal of a successful composer who is undaunted by the fact that she is on her honeymoon. The new film, starts Dudley Moore and Julie Andrews. It opens on Fri., Feb. 8 at the Galaxy Twin Theatre.

More Health Advances Need Personal Role

During the last few generations, progress in the fight against disease has been so striking that the public has almost come to take it for granted, reports the Minnesota department of health.

A child born today, in a technologically advanced country like the United States, can look forward to better health and a longer life than ever before in human history. That child's life expectancy at birth has been lengthened by more than 20 years since the turn of the century.

These extra years of life have been made possible, for the most part, by advances in the struggle against communicable diseases like tuberculosis, smallpox and polio. Thanks to modern sanitation, antibiotics and vaccines, these former killers are no longer the threat they once were.

But the task of building on these accomplishments, and further improving that newborn child's chances for a long and healthy life, may prove to be difficult. If we're to see further progress, today's children may have to play a more active role than past generations in protecting and maintaining their own health. As they grow up, they may have to follow the advice of a growing number of health professionals, and begin to adopt "healthier lifestyles." During the past year, health authorities have been emphasizing the lifelong impact lifestyle can have on a person's health, in connection with the United Nations' International Year of the child (IYC) observance.

Exponents of the lifestyle approach to better health point out that the communicable diseases are no longer the greatest threat to human life. In this country, the major killers are now accidents, and chronic diseases like stroke, heart trouble and cancer. The best available strategy for dealing with these problems, they argue, is to take measures aimed at preventing them. And that may involve making fundamental changes in the way we live.

The goal is to reduce or eliminate the "risk factors" which make us more susceptible to accidents or chronic diseases. Depending on the individual, a "healthier lifestyle" might mean cutting out cigarettes, using automobile safety belts or eating fewer saturated fats. It could also mean reducing consumption of alcohol or other drugs, losing weight, exercising more or seeking early diagnosis and treatment of chronic health problems.

Health authorities point out that a healthy lifestyle can, and should, begin in childhood. For instance, young people are particularly vulnerable to accidents, which are the leading cause of death for children between the ages of one and 15. Parents can help their children avoid accidents by making proper use of child seat restraints in automobiles, and teaching their children to observe bicycle safety rules. They can also take measures to protect their children against drowning, choking, falls and burns.

But accidents are hardly the only health threat facing the young. A variety of personal habits and practices can have an impact on the health of children, both in childhood and as they grow up. Lifestyle plays an immediate and obvious role in problems like poor nutrition, child abuse, failure to have children immunized or screened for serious health problems, alchol and drug abuse, teenage pregnancy and sexually transmitted disease.

But when it comes to problems like over-weight, high blood pressure, elevated blood cholesterol, lack of exercise or smoking, the relationship between lifestyle and health may be less immediate. Children may have to start dealing with such problems very early in life, adopting healthier living habits while they're still young, in order to prevent chronic diseases that won't threaten them until middle age or after.

Parents have a definite role to play in helping their children develop good health habits. There is, for instance, evidence that we tend to inherit our attitudes about seeking medical attention from our mothers. But the task of creating healthier lifestyles takes in more than the home, and reaches beyond the individual family. It means building a safer environment, from childhood toys to the adult workplace, and from the home to the larger community. It means teaching people about sound health practices in school, on the job and throughout life. Such an effort will require the cooperation of health care professionals, government and business, teachers and employers, as well as parents and children.

This new movement to help people lead longer and healthier lives is still in its own infancy. Both the approach and the methods are new. The changes required of us touch on the most intimate and personal aspects of our lives. But if we can begin to create a new and healthier way of life, for ourselves and our children, the impact may be felt for generations to come.

Tourism Map Cites Winter Recreation

"With all there is to do in Minnesota, flying south for the winter is strictly for the birds."

That's the message of two new winter recreation maps being distributed by the Minnesota tourism bureau. One map shows the location of more than 8,000 miles of snowmobile trails while the other concentrates on alpine ski areas, snow innertubing and more than 2,500 miles of cross country ski trails.

The maps are designed to provide information about a wide variety of winter recreation opportunities for both long and short vacation trips. Brochures promise that "We can help you get out of the same old ruts" by introducing sports enthusiasts to trails and vacation areas in the state that they haven't fully explored.

For a free copy of the ski or snowmobile map, contact the Minnesota tourist information center, 480 Cedar St., St. Paul, MN 55101. Twin Cities residents may call 296-5029, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Minnesota residents outside the metro area may call toll-free 1 (800) 652-9747. Midwest residents outside Minnesota should call toll-free 1 (800) 328-1410.

Ski and snowmobile maps are two of many publications providing travel information about Minnesota printed by the Tourism bureau of the Minnesota Department of Economic development. Other free publications include a camping guide, fall touring map, vacation guide, Rocks and Minerals in Minnesota, farm and houseboat vacation guides and a winter calendar of events.

Anger In Children Requires Patience

Everybody gets angry. You do, and so does your child. But figuring out what to do with that anger is tough. It makes parenting one of the hardest jobs in the world, states the Minnesota department of public welfare.

What do you do with an angry child? Letting your anger or your child's get out of hand is dangerous. But so is hiding it. Hidden anger only smoulders until it explodes later "for no good reason." Such is the conclusion of Fritz Redl and David Wineman, authors of "The Aggressive Child". Following material was drawn from that publication.

The first thing you can do is get control over your own feelings. It will help if you think of your job at that moment as a teaching job. Little Jimmy or Susy probably doesn't understand the strong feelings building up inside, obviously doesn't know what to do with them, and may well be frightened at the sense of going out of control.

In fact, the anger of a child is often an easily available substitute for some other feeling the child can't identify. A child will act angrily when the real problem is deeper and more frightening: a feeling of failure, low self-worth, loneliness, boredom, fear, confusion or even sadness.

If you can help the child discover what feeling lies under the anger, and talk with him or her about it, the anger is likely to lessen or even disappear.

Remember that anger is a natural human feeling. Your child has a right to feel and express anger. So do you. Just as everyone has a right to feel hunger, happiness or sadness.

But anger is different from aggression. Aggression is an attempt to hurt someone or destroy something. It infringes on the rights of others. This distinction may help you to react appropriately to the many kinds of upsetting things an angry child may do.

Here are some suggestions for dealing with an angry child. Some of them are designed to help the child avoid unnecessarily frustrating situations. Some are on-the-spot actions you can take when you see your child is having a problem.

Catch your child being good — Every day find lots of ways to praise your child's good behavior — and you'll start seeing more of it. Some examples: "I really like it that you came in for dinner today without being reminded"; "Thanks for hanging up your clothes after school. I know you were in a hurry to get out to play"; "You sure were patient when I was on the phone"; "Thanks for telling the truth about what really happened."

Ignore inappropriate behavior that can be tolerated — Ignoring it is one way of showing the child that the behavior is inappropriate. This doesn't mean you should ignore the child, just the behavior.

Make it easy for your child to be good — Give him or her plenty of opportunity for physical exercise to let off extra energy. Plan surroundings so that unnecessary temptations aren't there. Make sure the child isn't too "crowded in" by cramped physical space, or overly confining rules and regulations.

Use closeness and touching — Sometimes a sudden hug or show of affection will help an angry child regain control. You can move physically closer to a child to calm him or her, and help the child curb the angry impulse.

Say "No!" — In order to stay within limits, a child needs a clear idea of what those limits are, and needs to be free to operate within them.

Explain situations — Understanding a situation can help a child understand the cause of the anger, and begin to calm down. Your explanation can include telling the child how you feel, and asking for consideration. Example: "Playing your drum usually doesn't bother me, but today I have a headache. Could you please do something else?"

Teach your child to express anger in words — Talking is an acceptable steam valve, and helps the child to avoid "blowing up." If Susy is free to tell her little brother, "I don't feel like sharing just now," and if that desire is respected, chances are she isn't going to slug him the minute you turn your back. Teach her to put the angry feelings into words instead of fists.

Be a good model — If you hit Susy because she hit her baby brother, will she believe you when you say it's wrong to hit people?

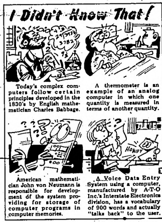
Use physical restraint, carefully — Sometimes physical restraint is necessary to stop a child from hurting himself or herself or others. This also will help the child save face. Physical restraint is not a means of punishment or angry behavior by you, or a chance for other children to ridicule your child. Neither should it hurt the child physically or emotionally. This is simply a way of saying, "You can't do that."

Use punishment cautiously — Your rule might be, "Is this punishment educational, or just a way for me to let off steam?" Let off steam some other way, and then decide what action is needed to correct your child's behavior.

But if you ever do think you're in a situation you can't handle, don't hesitate to get help. Maybe you need to talk to a spouse or friend or neighbor. Parents Anonymous, an organization of parents who have faced the same problems you're having, offers telephone assistance and regular meetings.

Check your phone book to see if there is a local chapter. You can call the Parents Anonymous toll-free hotline: 1-800-421-0353. Or call a local social service agency or county welfare department if you want professional counseling. If the agency you call doesn't offer the kind of service you want, ask to be referred somewhere else. Help is not far away.

I Didn't Know That!



Today's complex computers follow certain principles developed in the 1830's by English mathematician Charles Babbage.

A thermometer is an example of an analog computer in which one quantity is measured in terms of another quantity.

American mathematician John von Neumann is responsible for development of the system providing for storage of computer programs in computer memories.

A Voice Data Entry System using a computer, manufactured by A-T-O Inc.'s Interstate Electronics division, has a vocabulary of 900 words and actually "talks back" to the user.

Gas Mileage Suffers From Cold Weather

Driving habits and conditions tend to be different during the winter's cold and often inclement weather. Faced with bad weather, many drivers may stick closer to home, driving shorter distances more frequently.

A winter of short-trip driving can put excessive wear and tear on the engine, transmission and other components because it takes several miles of driving to warm up a car to operating efficiency, says the Automotive Information council (AIC). Frequent cold starts also are hard on the complete electrical system — battery, plugs, wiring, etc.

The same practices that can guard against excessive winter engine wear can help you get better gasoline mileage. Try to combine many short trips into one trip with several stops. You may even be able to reduce the number of stops by planning ahead. Fewer stops means better gas mileage too, and a car is easier to start once it has been warmed-up.

Try to avoid excessive periods of idling to warm the car up. Idling produces zero miles to the gallon and is harder on the engine than normal highway use. Except for below-zero weather, the car should be ready to move after about 15 seconds and then driven at a moderate speed to warm-up. This method warms up the car faster, saves gasoline and engine wear.

Short-trip driving also requires that the engine oil and filter be changed more frequently. Short trips allow moisture to collect in the crankcase, diluting the oil. Clean oil lubricates the engine with a protective film that prevents metal-to-metal contact and resulting wear, and keeps the engine interior clean by gathering contaminates and holding them in suspension for removal by the filter. If the oil is dirty and isn't changed often enough, along with the filter, sludge can coat and clog the engine oil passages, which can result in a costly repair.

An adequate but not excessive warm-up, changing the oil more frequently with short-trip driving and trying to combine trips can give the driver the best cold-weather performance with improved fuel economy, sums up AIC.

For the Home Handyman . . .

We have always held a secret admiration for the home handyman, the fellow who can diagnose and treat the never-ending parade of household ills.

This is the wizard who can take the family bread burner and restore its pop-up capabilities without tossing the browned slices out on the kitchen floor.

He can remove that faucet handle and slip in a new washer before the rhythmic dripping puts his wife in an asylum and without stripping the threads, burring the chrome or twisting off the pipe, inundating the kitchen and complicating things for the plumber who should have been called in the first place.

This fellow can add a room, create beautiful furniture that can actually be used, panel and tile or carpet the rec room, repair the roof, lay brick for a barbecue pit, mix and pour a sidewalk or driveway. And he not only has the tools and equipment to perform these tasks but he can find them when he wants them.

Personally, we're more in the category of Bill Dix, who wrote the following column for the Post newspaper in the Twin Cities:

The other night, as I entered our combination kitchen-formal dining room, my wife announced: "You have to make us a Den Doodle!" Among other things, she is a local Cub Scout assistant den person. If I was going to doodle in their den, they would have to accept stick men, since I am not the artistic type. I made that clear.

Soon I learned that a "Den Doodle" is not scribbling on a basement wall but rather a kind of coat tree from which the Cub Scout displays records of achievement. My wife was proposing a major construction project. Asking me to build a "Den Doodle" is tantamount to contracting Mr. Magoo to build the North Crosstown bridge across the Mississippi River.

The plans indicated that the project was simple enough. Four pieces of wood attached to a 5-foot, two-by-four to form a stand similar to a hall tree. At the top was a large three-foot half moon of plywood, straight edge down. Eight holes must be drilled along the bottom edge of the half moon. The Cubs could then hang symbols of their progress from the holes by means of ropes. I began to gather materials.

The piece of two-by-four was serving as a prop for our patio fence, where it had been knocked over several years ago by a summer gale. It wasn't needed now because — frozen ground, a snow drift and a coating of ice permitted the fence to stand under its own power. When the thaw comes next spring, I'll certainly make more permanent repairs on the fence.

The four pieces of wood for the base came from the climbing tree in the back yard. They had been used as ladder rungs to the first low branches. The half moon was furnished by the Scouts. That left nails, and I had plenty of them, cached on a high shelf in the garage, safe from little nail pounding invaders that infest our area.

Climbing the stepladder to the secret hiding place, I found empty boxes. After searching for the better part of an hour, enough nails for the project were gathered. Forty-three were found partially hammered into an 18-inch piece of two-by-four. One came back in perfect shape — it was in the left rear tire of the family car. Three hours into the task, I had now gathered the materials. Getting the tools together was a bigger problem. The electric drill and saw were in their proper place on the workbench — under a year's supply of debris and junk placed there by members of the family and neighborhood.

The drill was missing the chuck key and the saw a blade, but otherwise were in operating condition. Several more minutes of search with a flashlight solved the drill and saw problems. I needed a flashlight because the light fixture in that part of the room didn't work. Some six months ago a new fixture had been purchased and lost before I had a chance to install it. Sooner or later it will show up.

That left the hammer. I own a minimum of six hammers, one purchased for each of the six projects undertaken since my marriage vows. There are hammers everywhere in our house except when they're needed. Rather than waste time looking, I would run to the local supplier and buy a new one. Again there was no hammer to be found on this day. I did find a large crescent wrench. Rather than buy a seventh hammer, I would make do with the wrench.

Now, four hours and 15 minutes into the project, I was ready to begin. I laid the two-by-four on my "workmate" — an old kitchen chair. Do I fasten the stand first or begin with the half moon? I decided to fasten the four legs of the stand. It was now near impossible to nail the half moon part because of the protruding legs.

I passed the top end of the two-by-four under the back of the chair and laid it flat on the seat. All was solid now and I nailed the half moon to the top of the two-by-four. The task was finished. I tried to set the doodle upright and get a look at the masterpiece. The chair came with it. It stood tall and straight like a fine hall tree growing between the back rest and the seat of a kitchen chair. Now I know how those idiots build boats too large to get out of the basement. I was finally able to free the thing by removing the chair back.

Here's a time summary for building a Den Doodle: gathering material and tools: four hours and 15 minutes; construction time 23 minutes (not counting the time needed to get the contraption free of the kitchen chair.)

A Dangerous Ruling

Following editorial is from the Pope County Tribune:

In recent years, we've heard many friends of ours, who have spent an adult lifetime in education, both in the classroom and administration, express the opinion that they're eagerly awaiting the day until they can retire with pensions.

Just a few years ago, these same people were content to spend their adult lives in education, but they've become thoroughly disillusioned in recent years with the educational process.

Basically, they're fed up with the lack of discipline, failure of parents to support teachers when disciplining their youngsters, disrespectful students, and court decision which make the job of teaching and administration more difficult.

A Minnesota Supreme Court decision last week certainly did nothing to encourage them.

The decision by the court ruled in effect that school principals can be held liable for negligent acts by their teachers. The court held by a 6-2 vote that principal Jack Peterson of Braham Junior High School was 10 per cent liable for a $1 million settlement awarded by an Isanti County jury to a student whose neck was broken in a physical education class exercise. The teacher was judged to be 90 per cent negligent.

The court said that the principal should have supervised the physical education curriculum planning more closely, and his failure to develop the phy. ed. curriculum was primary evidence of his negligence.

The court was saying in effect, that school administrators must be experts in every subject taught in the school and must closely supervise every activity in the school in addition to their administrative duties. This is just plainly ridiculous. Principals are flesh and blood people. They're not supermen or omniscient, but men and women trying to do a difficult job.

The court is also saying that there is no legal protection for a school administrator who approves a lesson plan submitted by one of his faculty members, which is just also ridiculous in itself.

Justice James Otis, who unfortunately was in the minority, said the teacher was qualified to teach the course, and the principal received weekly lesson plans from his teacher, and periodically observed classes.

"It is unclear what more a principal can be expected to do, particularly when he's not trained or experienced in every course taught in school," Otis said.

The phy. ed. teacher involved has already declared bankruptcy, leaving Peterson, the principal, as the responsible party under the law. It's now estimated that because of the ludicrous Supreme Court decision, the principal is responsible for $400,000 which he is in no condition to pay.

What it boils down to is that the youngster who was injured will receive only a fraction of the award because neither party can pay, and more important it sends shivers down the spine of every school administrator and teacher in the state.

Principals will now be forced to buy expensive insurance to protect themselves against similar lawsuits in the future, and ultimately, the school districts are going to have to wind up paying the bill because principals will justifiably demand that type of insurance on their contract if they are to effectively perform their duties.

The Supreme Court has rendered a disservice to all educators and the people of the state with their dangerous decision.

School Symbols Still Highly Esteemed

Generations of American students treasure class rings in recognition of their school years.

Despite the soaring price of gold, a treasured tradition of American students isn't going to be tarnished.

Since the 1930s, class rings have become for many high school students the symbol of their class and school. Today, more than two million class rings are sold each year.

Until fairly recently, nearly all class rings were made of 10 karat gold, so rises in the price of gold naturally were reflected in higher prices for students.

Fortunately, the recent surge in the price of gold has not caught manufacturers of class rings unprepared. Thanks to the development of handsome alloys — which, like gold, resist tarnishing — individuals in a wide range of economic levels can still purchase class rings. The continuing popularity of these rings is due, in part, to their being a symbol of pride and belonging rather than just an investment in jewelry.

Nongold alloys were first introduced several years ago by Jostens, Inc., a Minneapolis-based manufacturer of class rings. White Argentus and Lustrium account for the majority of the company's nongold rings. Rings of these alloys are about 40 to 50 percent less expensive than similar ones made of 10 karat gold.

Yellow Argentus, an alternative to yellow gold, however, contains 25 percent gold, so it is sensitive to increases in the price of gold.

There has been a noticeable shift in the relative proportions of 10 karat class rings vs. nongold alloys. In 1978 one-quarter of the high school class rings Jostens produced were nongold alloys. That figure rose to one-third in 1979, and it will probably rise even higher in the future.

Hints For Homeowners

Home Improvement, Safety And Economy

WHEN ACCURACY COUNTS

How do you define accuracy? The generally accepted definition is exactness, a vital essential to the successful completion of any home improvement or repair project. It is the practice of accuracy that enables a homeowner to stand back and observe with pride the new storage shelves, floor tiling or light fixture installation, knowing it is perfect in every detail and therefore long-lasting.

Like most home projects, the successful improvement began with measuring — when accuracy counts most. A shelf board a fraction too short, unsightly placed-out flooring, or a crooked wall socket does not indicate exactness. To avoid such disasters, Lufkin — makers of household and industrial measuring tapes — advises homeowners and professionals alike to always measure twice before assuming the figures are exact.

That's the practice also at the Olympics, where precise measurement to the hundredth of a meter determines who wins "The Gold" in the throwing events — javelin, discus, hammer and shot — or in the high, long and triple jumps and pole vault. Lufkin is there, too — the judges' tapes at the XXII Olympiad this summer will bear that century-old name, selected for official use "when accuracy counts."

You may not be going to Moscow to see the Games, but the tapes can probably be found at the hardware store.

Regulation Is Favored To Aid Erosion Curb

Professional soil conservationists favor use of government regulation to control erosion on agricultural and urban land, according to the results of an opinion survey conducted at a recent soil conservation policy conference.

Although the majority of the 60 conservationists polled said they thought adequate soil and water conservation had priority over the rights of individuals to make private land use decisions, they supported a "green ticket" approach of financial incentives rather than penalizing offenders through taxation, known as the "red ticket" proposal. The survey was made during the annual meeting of the Minnesota chapter of the Soil Conservation society of America in Bloomington January 11.

Chapter president Clifton Halsey explains the results: "Eighty-one per cent agreed that a specific level of soil and water conservation on the farm should be a requirement for participation in government-funded programs. These would include government commodity purchase and storage programs, price supports, low-interest loans, cost-sharing, disaster relief, crop insurance, price guarantees and marketing quotas. Nine per cent disagreed with this green ticket proposal and 12 per cent had no opinion."

Sixty-five per cent of those polled agreed with this statement: "Adequate levels of soil and water conservation for public benefit and environmental quality have a higher priority than the rights of individuals to make land use decisions affecting private property." Twenty-three per cent disagreed and 12 per cent had no opinion.

Regarding the red ticket proposal, 18 per cent agreed and 60 per cent disagreed that "adequate levels of soil and water conservation can be achieved by taxing land owners and operators on the basis of the amount of erosion occurring on their land." Only 35 per cent felt that educating land owners, operators and earth movers about erosion control would adequately protect soil and water. Sixty-one per cent doubted the value of education and five per cent held no opinion.

Only seven per cent said voluntary erosion control should be the only means for achieving conservation. Eighty-six per cent felt that total lack of government assistance would not aid erosion control.

Fifty-three per cent felt that "Local units of government should write and enforce regulations to achieve. . . conservation."

Participants at the conference were primarily technical and supervising personnel currently working in conservation programs. "The opinions of these professionals reflect findings that soil erosion is threatening our agricultural land and water quality in spite of decades of educational efforts and voluntary control programs," Halsey says. "There is a strong trend toward more land use and urban construction regulation to reduce this threat."

Halsey is employed as conservationist for the University of Minnesota agricultural extension service.

Views On Dental Health®

By Donald R. Goodrich, D.D.S.

CHILD'S FIRST DENTAL VISIT

A child going to the dentist for the first time is often a bundle of anxieties. Any dentist using the right techniques can transform the most terrified child into a cooperative patient who is no longer afraid — a child who will leave the office with a smile on his face.

The first thing a dentist must do is convince the child of his honesty. Children are smart. They are not easily fooled. If a youngster is promised that a particular thing will be done, the dentist had better be sure he does it.

Usually, the dentist begins with something easy. He says, "Today I am going to count your teeth." And, after that, come what may, he must count the teeth, using whatever means necessary. Remember this: The child often cries before anything is done to him (even a first haircut). He is not hurt, and the dentist has to prove that he can be trusted to do exactly what he says he is going to do — no more, no less. The noise and hysterics generally disappear after the first visit. If the dentist establishes his reliability and that he is trustworthy, there will rarely be any more trouble.

Conference On Small Business Set Jan. 1981

Minnesota conference to deal with the problems of small businesses in the state is planned to be established under legislation introduced by State Senator Collin C. Peterson (DFL-Detroit Lakes).

"We have found that small business persons are the forgotten people when it comes to national or state legislation dealing with business," Peterson said. "Yet, in Minnesota small businesses are responsible for more than 90 per cent of the new jobs created, and small businesses generate most of our new technology."

Peterson said his bill is the outgrowth of the White House conference on small business, conducted earlier this month in Washington. "Fifteen-hundred delegates from all areas of small business attended the conference. Despite the divergent backgrounds of those attending, they found that they had many common goals. They agreed to go home and organize our states, so that small businesses are given a voice in the legislative process."

"In Minnesota, we find there is no effective voice that represents the overall interests of all small businesses," Peterson said. "There are a number of trade groups that represent the views of the specific interest groups, but none that represent the entire small business community."

"As a result," Peterson continued, "Minnesota's legislation does not respond to the needs of small business. For example, Minnesota's small business corporations are taxed at the highest rate in the nation. In contrast, the effective tax rate for large, multi-state and multi-national corporations in Minnesota ranks in the middle on a national scale."

Peterson said his bill would appropriate money for a Minnesota conference on small business, to be conducted in January, 1981. Delegates to such a conference would determine the needs and opportunities for small businesses in Minnesota, and set legislative priorities.

The bill authorizes the appointment of 10 commissioners to organize and direct the conference. Three will be appointed by the governor, three by the speaker of the house of representatives and three by the committee on rules and administration of the Senate. The tenth, who will be named by the honorary chair of the conference, will be a person who served as a commissioner of the White House conference.

"The commission will organize regional meetings for small businesspersons, who will discuss their needs and legislative priorities, and elect delegates to the state conference," Peterson said.

"The January conference will look into the problems small businesses face as the result of being subject to the same legislation as large businesses in Minnesota," Peterson said. "For example, small business employers must pay the same rate as large corporations for unemployment tax and workmen's compensation, yet small employers are unable to self-insure, and must shoulder an unfair proportion of the costs in relation to their utilization of the system.

"Similarly, small businesses are subject to the same regulations as large corporations, yet frequently do not have the financial resources or staff to comply with them."

The state conference will deal with those and other problems, setting priorities which will be presented to the legislature and the Governor by March 1, 1981, Peterson said.

"Hopefully, the conference will stimulate legislation that is responsive to the needs of Minnesota's small businesses," the senator added. "Ninety-five per cent of the businesses in the state have 50 or fewer employees. It is time that the interests of such businesses are properly considered in the legislature."

June Posen's Beauty Recipes
The Sweet Truth

When you go on a diet, what are the first foods you eliminate? Probably the sugars and starches. Women have been brainwashed that all carbohydrates are fattening, and therefore, should be avoided for fear of those not-so-flattering inches.

But, according to nutrition experts, 50 percent of your daily calorie consumption should be of carbohydrates. Carbohydrates are essential in your diet because they provide energy and help process fats in your system.

This doesn't mean you're allowed a candy bar for breakfast, cheese cake with lunch and a rich chocolate mousse at bedtime, even though the caloric values of these sweet treats may be equivalent to half your daily intake. It does mean, though, that you must discriminate between types of carbohydrates.

The trick is eating more complex carbohydrates and naturally occurring sugars, says beauty expert June Posen, president of the Cosmetique Beauty Club. You should stay away from candy bars, cheese cakes and chocolate mousse because these foods consist of factory-processed, refined carbohydrates based on white flour and white sugar. A considerable amount of essential vitamins, minerals and proteins have been processed out of refined carbohydrates, and they tend to provide quick energy for a limited time and little else for the amount of calories.

Carbohydrate No-No's

Stop loading the cupboards with products containing refined sugar. These include glucose or sugar syrup, corn syrup, honey, molasses and maple syrup, no matter how "organically-grown" they are advertised to be. Other foods on your list to avoid are white flour, white rice, commercial pasta and noodles, white breads and crackers, as well as commercial rye and pumpernickel breads.

Sweets to Satisfy the Tooth

Instead, stock the shelves with nutritious carbohydrates. Fresh fruits and vegetables are good sources of simple sugars. Begin cooking with whole wheat flour, buckwheat, bulgar (cracked wheat), oats, barley, millet. Serve wild rice rather than white rice, and breads, crackers and pastas made of the above grains. In addition, some dried vegetables, like dried beans, are recommended by dieticians.

The Not-So-Sweet Truth

—Some dieters believe eating a sweet before meals helps reduce the appetite. Actually, after a quick, momentary rise in blood sugar, the sugar level drops, making you feel more hungry than before. The same applies to anything containing caffeine.

—Watch out for sugar synonyms! Beware if any label says sucrose, glucose, lactose, fructose, maltose, dextrose, galactose, or invert sugar!

—When you get the urge to devour a candy bar at snacktime, remember that one little candy bar contains as much sugar as three pounds of apples. Write it in red ink on your lunch sack and drink orange juice instead.

—Sweets and caffeine can be addictive. The more you nibble, the more you crave.

Because eating right contributes to your health, looks and mental well-being, it is crucial to take the first step and determine a nutritious daily eating program. Eat a sensible amount of beneficial carbohydrates and eliminate "junk" foods.

Your diet is only part of what you should follow as a wholesome beauty program. Say Future For Sunflowers Is Bright As Ever Enthusiasm for sunflowers is still strong, judging by the 2,500 farmers who turned out for a Sunflower day January 17 at Wahpeton, ND, and were told by several speakers that the future of sunflower is as bright as ever.

Randy Allen, market analyst and editor of the magazine "Sunflower World", advised farmers to hand on to their sunflowers. Over half of the sunflower crop has been committed for export already, and much of that still has to be bought from farmers, he said.

Effect of the Russian embargo on flowers may be minimal, Allen said. The U.S. exports no sunflowers to Russia. He pointed out that the sunflower price at Duluth rose by 80 cents the same day that the rest of the markets dropped the limit. Instead, the biggest factor effecting sunflower prices will be the progress of the South American soybean crop.

Allen urged farmers to be willing to admit they need help in marketing, and seek professional advice, just as they seek legal and tax advice. "In the end results, it doesn't matter how good his yield is, the farmer's paycheck is determined by his marketing concepts," Allen said.

Sunflower use is growing rapidly, said another speaker. Alan Haush, division manager of oil seed for another major processing firm, said in the past year its Minneapolis crushing plant increased its sunflower crush 75 per cent from 300,050 to over 500,000 tons. Currently, that plant is crushing 50,000 tons per month.

Not only is the domestic market growing rapidly, but the worldwide sunflower crush increased 12 per cent last year. There is potential for new markets in Egypt, Venezuela, the Dominican Republic and India, Haush said.

This expanding oil market is behing the company's decision to expand the capacity of its new Riverside, N.D. plant from 800 tons per day to 1,200 tons per day. The plant is already receiving flowers, and crushing is expected to begin early next summer.

The farmers heard progress reports on several other processing plants. Clayton Weeks reported the $15,000,000 Hankinson, ND plant began site work in December and should begin processing in the spring of 1981. It will have a 500 ton per day capacity.

Merchandiser for another firm in Fargo said his company is exploring the possibility of building a sunflower processing plant in the area, as well as a unit grain loading facility. No decision has been made on either project.

Aberdeen, SD developer Robert Isaacson spoke optimistically about the chances for a private group to build South Dakota's first oil seed processing plant within the next 18 to 24 months. He pointed out that South Dakota had a 600 per cent increase in sunflower acreage last year, and is expected to have a 50 to 80 per cent increase this year.

On the consumer side of the sunflower business, Gene Stelcik, manager of sales development for a food processing firm, talked about a new sunflower oil product. At a later news conference he said sunoil currently has an 8 to 12 per cent market share, adding, "over the next four to five years, sunoil will take over a large chunk of the cooking-salad oil business from soybean oil."

Transportation was also addressed at the sunflower day. Bill Cortes from the Duluth Port authority, told the group that it is not true that the port for the St. Lawrence seaway is at maximum capacity. Port capacity could be increased if the grain elevators would operate 24 hours a day, and the seaway capacity could be increased by year-round shipping, he said. Both steps would help alleviate truck bottlenecks.

In reviewing the past season, Cortes charged that neither side in the grain miller's strike was serious about negotiating. "The men that work for those companies simply wanted a vacation," he said. "When the large grain companies do not seriously consider bargaining in Duluth-Superior, they are obviously shipping grain elsewhere."

Cortes also reported that the port authority is studying the possibility of building a new grain terminal, with the emphasis on sunflower seed and oil, and the venture could become a joint Minnesota-North Daota project.

'U' Prof Says Greek Chauvinism Led To Nation's Downfall

by Paul Dienhart
'U' M News Service

Male chauvinists take heed. Golden age in ancient Athens was also the Golden age of male chauvinism. But by attaining the summit of sexism, the Greeks also ensured the fall of their society, according to University of Minnesota classics professor Gerald Erickson.

Ancient Greeks went to extremes that Hugh Hefner and Norman Mailer could only dream about. Greek wives were kept as virtual prisoners on the second floor of their homes. "Greek males felt that allowing the wives on the ground floor, with access to the door, had the potential for trouble," said Erickson, who teaches the course "Eroticism and Family Life in the Greco-Roman World."

An Athenian murder case from the fifth century B.C. reveals the thinking of the time, Erickson said. "The accused lay all his troubles on making the stupid mistake of letting his wife out of the house to attend a funeral. There she met her seducer."

The plot thickened when the wife had to find some way to meet her lover. By irritating the baby to make it cry she convinced her trusting husband that she had to switch quarters with him for a night. She would stay downstairs to be near a water supply for the sick baby. And that, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, gave her the opportunity to escape from her husband's house.

Apparently the wife pulled this trick once too often, because the husband eventually caught the lovers in the act. The seducer was killed. The husband was acquitted; he was not a murderer, just a man foolish enough to let his wife get close to a door.

Even the sight of women standing in doorways was too much for the sensibilities of Athenian males. A Greek historian wrote that when the army was returning from a lost battle, some women stood in doorways to inquire about their kinfolk. "The author was horrified," Erickson said. "He thought it was terribly shocking for respectable women to be at doorways."

At social gatherings the wife remained under guard in her upstairs chamber. "All the guests would be male," Erickson said. "If there were any females they were hetaera — something like a Greek version of a geisha girl."

Besides sex, the hetaera provided intimacy, something the Athenian male didn't require from his wife. Some hetaera were educated, and a few even became famous and influential. "I'm sure they were far more interesting companions than the Athenian wives," Erickson said.

The sole function of the wife was to provide legitimate heirs, Erickson said. "Preserving the girl's virginity was the only important thing. The girl was married off between the age of 14 and 16 to a man about twice her age. She was extremely naive, her only training being in keeping house. It's unlikely there could have been a social bond between husband and wife.

"A female child was definitely a drag. Not only did she come entirely under the domination of another family when she married, but her father would have to pay a rather handsome bribe, known as a dowry, to get her married," Erickson said.

"Getting Athenian males to marry seemed to be a continuing problem," he said. "And getting the husband to have relations with his wife was also a problem. Husbands, at one point, were urged to visit their wives at least two or three times a month so that the race of Athenians could be continued."

Greek males had a tremendous fear of female sexuality, Erickson believes. Virginity was an obsession. "They even 'virginized' the goddess of the hunt, Diana," Erickson said. "Diana started out as a fertility god, but by the time the Athenians got through with her she was a man-hating huntress, an asexual being."

Segregation of women brought sexual tension, Erickson said. "It wasn't as if the women remained naive forever. There were intelligent women. They may have been allowed to go to the theater where they saw examples of strong women. Medea, for example, killed her children out of hate for her husband, who behaved like a perfect Athenian husband."

Sexual tension probably led to the downfall of Athens.

Erickson agrees with a theory of Philip Slater's that Erickson explains this way. "The Athenian mother would tend to be ambivalent toward her male child. He's her son, yet he's a representative of the male world that keeps her segregated. It's unlikely she'd be able to give the child her complete love.

"A child learns who he is by the way other people look at him. If people are ambivalent, he's not going to have a very sure self-concept. The result was that Athenian males were obsessed with proving their identities. Everything, from sports to politics, was made into a contest. That way the identity of the winner and loser was clearly defined.

Athens fell amid great struggles for power. Leaders lost their effectiveness. Either the leader was resented and his orders not followed, or some non-threatening nonentity was chosen to lead."

As an extreme example of male chauvinism, ancient Athens provides a particularly clear case of sexism's result: destruction. "I think the thing that has to be made clear to males today is that it's not in their self-interest to preserve the system of male domination," Erickson said.

"I'm for things like the equal rights amendment, but changes don't usually come from ethical imperatives. People can protest and say 'It's not right to discriminate.' But real change comes when people agree the change is in their best interest."

Although a world leader in many areas, America falls short when it comes to protecting one of its most precious natural resources — its children. According to the March of Dimes, the United States has a higher infant death rate than 15 other countries.

Banking Groups Split On Branch Banking Law

Minnesota's two major banking associations — the Minnesota Bankers association (MBA) and the Independent Bankers of Minnesota (IBOM) — have split over proposed changes in state law that would permit branch banking in Minnesota for the first time. Independents have historically opposed allowing branching in Minnesota's banking industry. MBA has, generally, sided with the IBOM on this issue in the past.

Recently however, the MBA indicated support of a proposal, for the upcoming 1980 legislative session that would permit Minnesota's detached banking facilities to provide all services permitted at the main bank. Under current state statutes, each bank is allowed two detached facilities, with certain location restrictions. Detached facilities function much like a main bank but are not permitted to do loan closings or provide safe deposit box services.

According to Norbert McCrady, executive vice president of the Independent Bankers of Minnesota, the changes backed by the MBA are "absolutely unacceptable" to the members of the Independents' association.

Any distinction between such a full service facility and a full blown branch bank is simply non-existent," McCrady charged.

Citing the results of a recent membership poll, with 65 per cent responding, McCrady noted that "94 per cent were opposed to any form of branch banking and 76 per cent were opposed to loan closings at detached facilities."

Under Minnesota law both branch banking and loan closings at detached facilities are illegal.

"A projection of our poll results," McCrady said, "to the total membership of this association would suggest that well over 400 bankers, out of the total 765 banks in Minnesota, oppose branching."

McCrady feels that once the members of the MBS come to the realization "that full service at detached facilities is thinly disguised branch banking, pure and simple," a move may originate among the membership to rescind the MBA's position on this proposed legislation.

Membership of the Independent Bankers is comprised mostly of small and medium sized banks, most of which are independently owned. While there is representation from metro and suburban area banks, the largest percentage of IBOM membership is located in the rural communities of outstate Minnesota.

Air Force Has Special Offer For Students

Northwest Minnesota residents age 17 to 27 with 45 semester or 67 quarter hours of college credits may now apply for enlistment in the air force at the rank of Airman First Class (A1C — two stripes), air force officials announced.

Also, 20 semester or 30 quarter hours may qualify a person for a guaranteed enlistment at the rank of Airman, said Master Sergeant (M-SGT) Roger Fortin, air force recruiter for this area.

Air Force implemented the new "Stripes for College Experience" options for people without prior military service to enhance the recuirtment of highly qualified people for the air force.

Persons with dependents qualifying for the rank of A1C will begin earning $776.70 per month in pay and allowances while a person with 20 semester hours will earn $757.20 per month as an Airman.

Additionally, all air force enlistees earn four semester hours after successfully completing six-weeks of air force basic training toward an associate in applied science degree through the community college of the air force, officials said. College is similar to any other community college.

Airmen attending air force technical training schools also earn credits through the CCAF and may supplement these courses by attending nearby colleges and universities during off duty hours. In the latter case, the air force pays 75 per cent of the tuition. Other education programs are also available in the air force.

For more information about the "Stripes for College Experience" options and what other opportunities are available, call M-SGT Roger Fortin at 701-775-9361 collect.

State's Milk Volume Value Tops $1 Billion

Preliminary estimates on Minnesota's 1979 milk production show that it again was fourth highest in the nation and that the gross value topped the $1 billion mark for the first time in history, reports agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin.

Minnesota's milk production last year was estimated at 1 billion, 52.3 million gallons. That was within one half of one per cent of 1978 production and it represented 7.3 per cent of national 1979 milk output.

At respective monthly production and market price averages Minnesota's 1979 dairy farm milk production had an estimated gross value of $1 billion, $23.5 million. That exceeded the prior high value of $891.3 million for 1978 milk production.

Commissioner Seetin said that the impressive $132.2 million gain in gross farm value of 1979 milk production over the previous year was achieved on an average farm milk price increase of only 12 cents per gallon or three cents per quart.

He added that Minnesota milk prices continue to be the second lowest in the nation, seven per cent below national average farm milk prices. Only neighboring North Dakota dairy farmers receive less than Minnesota dairy farmers for their milk.

Average milk production per cow in Minnesota in 1979 was over 1,262 gallons and according to the preliminary estimates only one third of a gallon below the 1978 average. That represented dairy farm gross income production per cow for the last year of $1,208.15 or about $3.32 per day. Commissioner Seetin observed that the daily milk cow gross earning last year was only slightly above the current national minimum hourly wage for human workers.

Minnesota's dairy farmers closed out 1979 with an estimated 825,000 milk cows on the production line. That was 25,000 less than the December count for each of the two prior years and an all time low for that month for Minnesota's dairy industry that is the single leading source of gross farm income in this state.

Clarice Bren Is Selected MCC Teacher Of The Year

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

Every teacher plays a small part in molding a child's life for the future, according to Clarice Bren, who was recently selected teacher of the year for the Marshall county central school district.

"I feel that one of the most important aspects of teaching is to prepare the child for his or her future," she said.

Teachers were selected and voted upon for teacher of the year by all the teachers in the Marshall county central school district, which includes schools in Viking and Newfolden.

Clarice began her teaching career as a rural school teacher where she taught grades one through eight, she said. She then taught fifth and sixth grades in Holt before becoming a first grade teacher at Viking, where she is presently employed.

She began her teacher's training in Warren and finished with a teaching degree from Bemidji state university. The period of time between training and teaching was spent raising a family of five children. She and her husband Ray, a former police officer, live in Thief River Falls.

Although she enjoyed teaching various other grades in the past, she enjoys teaching first grade most, she said, because children seem so eager to learn at that age.

She and her 20 students are involved in daily activities such as spelling, reading, math, language-arts, social studies and science. "Reading and art are very important subjects in the life of a first-grader", Clarice said.

"For me the most rewarding part of teaching first grade is that youngsters learn to read. They start from scratch and by the end of the year they can read. It is unbelieveable that something like that can be accomplished in one year."

Clarice's teaching philosophy — along with letters of recommendation from co-workers — is included within the book that each teacher of the year is required to organize. The completed book is sent to Minneapolis where the Minnesota teacher of the year is selected.

Clarice was a "little surprised" when she was told she was named teacher of the year for the Marshall county central district. "You don't expect to win something like that," she said.

In her teaching philosophy, Clarice states the importance of teacher-student relationships.

"First and most important I believe a teacher has to care about children and enjoy working with them," she said. "Teachers have to give encouragement. A little praise goes a long way and makes a child feel good about himself."

Clarice also believes that teachers have to be good listeners, she said.

"Children have so much to share. A good group discussion can be the most rewarding part of the day because the child has had a chance to talk to someone who is willing to listen. And, in return the teacher has gained TEACHING YOUNGSTERS to read is a very important aspect of teaching, according to Clarice Bren, who was recently selected teacher of the year for the Marshall county central school district. Tony Baker (left) and Gary Harstad, two of Mrs. Bren's 20 first grade students at the Viking school, read the cartoons they were instructed to cut out and put together in proper readable order.

What Crops To Grow Topic Of Meet Thursday

To discuss what to grow for 1980, a meeting will be conducted by the Pennington county extension service on Thursday at 1:15 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room.

All farmers are invited to attend the meeting which will provide information on the 1980 grain price outlook, anticipated carryover stocks of major crops and production cost estimates for the crop year.

Resource people making presentations at the meeting will include Bill Penning, area extension agent in farm management; Phil Bergland, county ASCS executive director; and county extension director Terry Courneya.

Penning will examine the cost-price relationship for various crop enterprise mixes on an example farm and illustrate the influence of these various choices on net farm income. His presentation will be helpful in establishing the best crop alternatives for individual farms and determining equitable cash or crop share rental agreements.

Bergland will discuss the farm program options for the year ahead and Courneya will review the supply-demand outlook for the 1980-81 marketing year.

New Program Initiated For Handicapped

To serve handicapped teenage students, a new program is underway at Franklin middle school. Three students from Thief River Falls and one from Strandquist are involved in the program established to serve students who had formerly been at Knox elementary school and are now of middle school age.

Mrs. Polly Reed is instructor with Ardelle Offerdahl as the aide. The self-contained classroom provides for student needs in the academic areas of reading mathematics, science and social studies as well as major and fine motor skills, self care and daily living skills, art and music.

"Additions to the program that make it exciting and a positive support for the students are the daily living skill areas," Mrs. Reed said. The group shops at nearby stores for needed items, and careful street crossing and care in handling money are emphasized.

A variety of foods is prepared by the group in the home economics lab and shared with other students and occasionally the faculty. A living center has been set up to teach day-to-day skills such as vacuuming, dusting, making a neat bed, setting a correct table, making proper introductions and conversing with guests.

This Friday between 1 and 3 p.m. an open house will be held at the classroom located in the connecting area between Franklin and Mark Twain schools. Parents and friends of the students in the program are invited to taste some of the foods which the youngsters have prepared. Community members who have an interest in alternative education for handicapped children are also welcome at the coffee session, Mrs. Reed said.

Arctic Closes Boat Operation

Kenneth J. Severinson, president of Arctic Enterprises, Inc. (AEI), announced Friday that the Lund American, Inc. fiberglass boat plant in Shell Lake, Wis., will be closed following completion of current production. Severinson said the decision was made due to lagging industry sales and unfavorable economic conditions.

According to Severinson, if inventory levels and other economic factors indicate additional production of 1980 Lund fiberglass models is appropriate, production will be handled at one of AEI's other fiberglass operations, most likely at Larson Industries, Inc., Little Falls.

"Although it is a difficult decision to make since it will adversely affect Lund American employees and the Shell Lake community," Severinson said, "this action is in line with the company's overall realignment and streamlining of business operations and will help generate a healthier profit picture for both Lund American and AEI."

Severinson noted that operation of the Shell Lake facility has not been satisfactorily profitable for the past several years. He also said that initial dealer reception of the 1980 line has been very encouraging and that AEI is committed to aggressively pursuing market opportunities for Lund's fiberglass boats.

The Lund American aluminum boat operation in New York Mills will not be affected by this decision. Severinson said. "Market demand for Lund aluminum boats continues to be exceptionally strong and our sales force and marketing efforts will continue as before," he added.

Lund is a wholly owned subsidiary of Arctic Enterprises, Inc.

My Sincere Thanks to all the people who sponsored me in the M.S. Sno Rally 300 snowmobile ride on Feb. 1st and 2nd. There were 88 riders from all over the state of Minnesota, and collected over $57,000 in pledges to help fight multiple sclerosis.

I completed the total ride which was 260 miles and feel very pleased to help towards such a worthy cause.

Thanks again to all my sponsors!

Deer Park Club Discusses New Seed Varieties

New varieties of vegetables and flowers available this year were studied at the meeting of the Deer Park garden club held recently at the home of Mrs. Eugene Fiedler. The discussion was led by Mrs. Fiedler. Members were encouraged to try the new varieties and to exhibit them at the district flower show. A flower quiz followed.

President Mrs. Robert Wiseth presided at the meeting. Included on the agenda was a committee report on the Lions park flower bed presented by Mrs. Ernie Swanson. She stated that the committee had selected a "say it with flowers" theme which will include a flower painting motif greeting. New business included a display of a "seedy" fashion. The display was discussed and will become a future club project.

The club also decided to sponsor an informative horticulture presentation at the Goodridge elementary school. Details will be completed at a later meeting.

Members present at the meeting, in addition to Mrs. Wiseth, Mrs. Fiedler and Mrs. Swanson, were Mrs. Lynn Hanson, Mrs. Eddie Stucy, Mrs. Bennie Svanjord, Mrs. Selma Sanders and Mrs. Mordy Morrison.

The next meeeting of the Deer Park Garden club will be held March 4 at the home of Mrs. Leo Ellingson. Roll call will be answered by naming a flower to correspond with the person's first initial, and a vegetable, the last initial.

Treatment For Some Youths Is Inadequate

Most criminal justice practitioners in Minnesota believe that there exists a group of juvenile delinquents for whom current treatment options in the state are inadequate, according to a survey just completed by the Minnesota crime control planning board.

The group of juveniles is commonly referred to as "serious juvenile offenders."

A questionnaire was sent to all juvenile court judges and county attorneys plus a sampling of defense attorneys, juvenile corrections personnel and juvenile police officers throughout the state.

Out of 493 questionnaires mailed to the various professionals, 366 or 74 per cent were completed and returned, representing a high response rate, according to Robert J. Griesgraber, executive director of the crime control planning board.

Although respondents listed many offense patterns of juvenile delinquents for whom current treatment options are inadequate, the offense patterns most frequently cited were major crimes against the person, such as murder or assault, and repeated property offenses, such as burglary or theft.

These offenders usually are perceived as having extensive delinquent histories with a pattern of increasing severity over a period of time; as lacking respect for authorities and others; and as having problems with school, chemical dependency and relationships at home.

While most respondents believe that new treatment options should be developed for these juvenile delinquents, the majority preferred the development of a "secure" facility for serious juvenile offenders.

In addition, most criminal justice personnel believe that juvenile offenders who commit violent crimes against the person and have prior records should be referred to adult court, Griesgraber said.

A companion study, also conducted by the crime control planning board, reveals that the serious offender group ranges in size from 100 to 4,000 juveniles in Minnesota, depending upon the definition selected for the "serious offender."

Major findings in this study indicate that referring serious juvenile offenders to adult court could increase costs to the taxpayer because the number of cases filed in adult court might increase up to 40 per cent, thereby affecting the judicial or correctional resources needed.

Griesgraber pointed out, however, that this would depend upon the definition used for the serious juvenile offender and the solution selected.

Crime board's study was prompted by the increasing concern over the past few years with the problem of the serious juvenile offender on the part of practitioners, citizens and policy makers.

Treatments Reduce Agents In Chlorine

by Mark E. Canney
'U' M News Service

A University of Minnesota researcher has found that chlorination is responsible for the formation of a set of chemical compounds capable of altering genetic material. That's the bad news.

The good news is that Albert H. Cheh, a scientist at the University's Gray freshwater biological institute has also found a treatment that reduces the levels of these compounds.

In the January issue of Science magazine, Cheh writes, "The experiments we have conducted show that chlorination produces nonvolatile mutagens in drinking water and that treatment of chlorinated water with sulfite reduces mutagen levels significantly."

Mutagens are chemical compounds that can pass through living membranes and alter the structure of DNA, the basic material that determines heredity. A nonvolatile mutagen is a mutagen that does not evaporate easily. (Recent research has dealt primarily with voltile mutagens because they are eaiser to study than the nonvolatile type.)

For some time, volatile mutagens have been known to exist in chlorinated drinking water. These mutagens have been shown to cause cancer in animals, and the Environmental protection agency has set standards for the amount of these compounds that can be consumed safely.

Cheh said that while not enough is known about the nonvolatile mutagens to link them with cancer, "chemicals that tend to cause mutations tend to cause cancer."

If the nonvolatile mutagens were found to cause cancer, Cheh said, an inexpensive treatment could be implemented in municipal water systems. Sulfur dioxide is economical and can reduce the number of mutagens by 50 per cent, he said.

Chlorine has been used as a disinfectant in drinking water since the turn of the century. Health hazards such as typhoid fever have been practically eliminated since municipal water systems began using the chlorination technique.

Free chlorine, a powerful disinfectant, is the most common form of chlorine used in the chlorination process. But free chlorine is also highly reactive — when mixed with another substance it will react chemically to form new substances. Free chlorine's high reactivity is responsible for the formation of the mutagens, Cheh said.

Cheh has also detected the mutagens in water treated with chloramine, another agent used to disinfect drinking water. The mutagen levels in chloramine-treated water, however, are not as high as those detected in the water treated with free chlorine, Cheh said.

It is too early to say whether or not the nonvolatile mutagens are cancer-causing agents, he said. The chemicals that make up the mutagens have not yet been identified, and further testing to determine the identities of those compounds must be made before a clear measure of the threat posed to health can be made, Cheh said.

Though his findings do not indicate cause for alarm, Cheh said, eventual elimination of the mutagens would probably serve to cut down the odds of contracting cancer.

"The chances of the mutagens' eventually causing cancer are small compared to the chances one takes in smoking cigarettes. However, one chooses to smoke cigarettes, but everyone drinks water," Cheh said.

Cheh said that he has begun work on identifying the mutagens chemically so that further tests can be made to determine their cancer-causing potential.

State To Lead Nation Again In Turkey Raising

Minnesota should continue to lead the nation in turkey production in 1980 as growers intend to raise 26.8 million turkeys this year. This would be an eight per cent gain from the 24.7 million turkeys raised in 1979. If these intentions were realized, heavy breed turkeys raised will total 19.4 million, up two per cent and light breeds at 7.4 million will be up 30 per cent.

Minnesota growers increased turkey production 16 per cent in 1979 from the previous year. Heavy breed turkeys raised at 19 million were up 10 per cent. The production of light breeds surged 45 per cent to 5.7 million birds.

Turkey producers had 633,000 breeder hens on hand in Minnesota as of Dec. 1, 1979, up seven per cent from the previous year. Heavy breed hens at 460,000 were unchanged from the previous year while light breed hens totaled 173,000, up 30 per cent. On December 1, 64 per cent of the breeder hen population was between five and 10 months of age.

Average December 1 value of Minnesota breeder hens was $12.80 per head, down 70 cents from the previous year. On December 1, Minnesota's total breeder hen flock was valued at $8.1 million compared with the 1978 value of $8 million.

Turkey growers in 20 major states intend to raise 163.9 million turkeys in 1980, up nine per cent from the 150.4 million raised in 1979. The number of turkeys actually raised in 1980 may vary from this intended level depending on feed prices, supply and price of hatching eggs and poults, and prices that growers receive for turkeys in the next few months.

In 1979, U.S. turkey production totaled 156.5 million birds, up 13 per cent from 1978. Heavy breeds raised at 145.2 million were up 11 per cent while light breeds increased 41 per cent. Minnesota ranked first in turkeys raised followed by North Carolina and California. Turkey production increased 23 per cent in North Carolina during 1979.

Turkey producers in 25 major states had 3.7 million breeder hends on hand December 1, 1979, up 10 per cent from a year earlier. Heavy breeds at 3.4 million were up eight per cent while light breeds at 343,000 were up 38 per cent. Hens between five and 10 months of age accounted for 53 per cent of the total hen population.

Nationally, turkey breeder hens were valued at $13.56 per head in 1979, up eight per cent from 1978. Total flock value, at $50.2 million, increased 19 per cent.

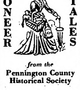
PIONEER TALES



from the Pennington County Historical Society

by Inga Geving

Last week we were saddened by the sudden death of Dr. Lynde. He visited Thief River Falls last summer, and promised to write his own story of his early life in this community as a country doctor. His story was not written.

We think of other doctors who served us so well — Dr. Melby, Dr. Gamble, Dr. Starekow and many others. We would appreciate so much getting these stories for our second book.

Some of us remember the little satchel the doctor carried with him to make house calls. We have Dr. Beiderman's satchel in the museum. It contains a thermometer, some pills and a white apron. It is interesting to see what they carried with them. Dr. Gamble tells his story in a most interesting way. Some time I hope to share that with you through this column.

If you will read the story by Mrs. Buringrud on page 523 in our "Pioneer Tales" you can re-live the early days of these doctors, nurses and patients.

One of the most enjoyable days we have at the village is when a bus load of bright-eyed children comes to see and hear of pioneer life. It is even more amusing when the children can tell us "my Grandma has that" — or "Grandpa has told us about the sleighrides they had". How rich these children are that can hear these things from their grandmothers and grandfathers.

Thursday is Valentine's day. Do you remember making your own valentines? Cutting out the pretty flowers from seed catalogs or using a paper lace dolly to make a special pretty one — making your own paste and writing in some special verse? These were heart-gifts that money could not buy, but they were treasures that were cherished for a long time.

On that day we would have a beautiful trimmed box to put our valentines in and everyone would dress up in their best. We would have a "mailman" delivering the valentines after which we would have treats. What a party we would have.

Don't forget about the second volume of "Pioneer Tales" and get your stories in as soon as possible.

State Chicken Inventory Up In December

Minnesota's total chicken inventory (excluding commercial broilers) on Dec. 1, 1979 at 12.5 million birds was up five per cent from a year earlier.

Average value per bird at $1.50 was unchanged from the previous year. Total chicken inventory value increased five per cent to $18.8 million.

Minnesota's 9.2 million layers produced 191 million eggs in December 1979, up one per cent from a year earlier. Table eggs accounted for 97 per cent of the total production. Egg production per 100 layers during the month was 2,076 eggs compared with 2,018 a year ago.

Minnesota's hatcheries produced 2.2 million egg-type chicks during December, up 12 per cent from the December 1978 hatch. January 1, 1980 eggs in incubators totaled 1.4 million eggs, down 24 per cent from the 1979 level.

Minnesota broiler hatchings in December of 1.4 million chicks were up 33 per cent from last year. The 1.2 million eggs in incubators on Jan. 1, 1980 were up 31 per cent.

One Family In Three Affected By Arthritis

According to the Arthritis foundation and the public health service, one family in three has a member with a serious arthritis problem.

New diagnostic techniques and a more widespread recognition of the importance of early treatment are key factors in this better knowledge of the prevalence of the disease, an Arthritis foundation spokesman observed.

A good part of early treatment involves the patient on a day-to-day basis, the spokesman went on to say. Because arthritis is a chronic disease, careful and continuing self-care by the patient is essential. Patients are destined to live with arthritis, usually for a long time, and the more they know about it the easier their lives will be.

A special message on living with arthritis may be heard during February by calling the Arthritis foundation's toll-free number, 1-800-552-1278. A free booklet on the subject is available to callers.

Some Activity Subject To Minimum Wage

Final determinations have been made specifying certain state and local government activities which are subject to minimum wage and overtime requirements of the fair labor standards act (FLSA), the labor department has announced.

The interpretations issued by the department's wage and hour division, list eight functions or activities of states and their political subdivisions which have been determined to be non-traditional, and therefore subject to the FLSA requirements.

Non-traditional activities listed in the interpretations include — state alcoholic beverage stores; off-tract betting corporations; local mass transit systems; electric power generation and distribution; provision of residential and commercial telephone and telegraphic communications; production and sale of organic fertilizer (as a by-product of sewerage processing); production, cultivation, growing or harvesting of agricultural commodities for sale to consumers; and repair and maintenance of boats and marine engines for the general public.

Employees engaged in such activities must be paid at least the minimum wage, which is currently $3.10 per hour, and not less than one and one-half times their regular rates of pay for hours worked in excess of 40 in the workweek. This provision does not apply to certain managerial or otherwise exempt employees.

As a result of the 1976 supreme court ruling, National League of Cities vs. Usery, minimum wage and overtime compensation provisions of the FLSA can not constitutionally be applied to state and local government employees who are engaged in traditional activities.

Schools, hospitals, fire prevention, police protection, sanitation, public health, parks and recreation are included in this category under the ruling.

In previous rulings, the wage and hour division has held that the operations or ordinary public libraries and museums are traditional functions and not subject to the FLSA provisions. These traditional functions are also listed in the final interpretations.

The FLSA is administered and enforced by the wage and hour division, a part of the employment standards administration.

U of M Study Supports Health Dep't. Findings

A study by the University of Minnesota School of dentistry has confirmed the results of an earlier study by the state health department, which concluded that gold dental work is "very difficult to find" following cremation of a human body.

Questions about the state's crematory operators had been raised last August, when the Minneapolis "Star" reported that several persons were unable to find any gold among the cremated remains of relatives who were known to have gold dental work. Results of the university study supported the findings of the health department investigation, which concluded that there was "no evidence of wrongdoing" on the part of the crematories.

Both studies concluded that it is "very difficult" to find dental gold among cremated remains, and that the typical crematory is "not equipped" to recover the gold. Crematory workers "rarely see" a body before it is cremated, the investigators said.

After reviewing the results of both studies, state health commissioner George R. Pettersen, M.D., concluded that dental gold is usually reduced to very fine particles and mixed with other residue during cremation, making the gold "virtually impossible" to find among the cremated remains.

Danger Persists From Carbon Monoxide Gas

This is the time of year when carbon monoxide poisoning from vehicle exhaust fumes is most dangerous, advises commissioner John P. Sopsic of the Minnesota department of public safety.

There were 92 carbon-monoxide-related deaths involving motor vehicles in 1978. Statistics for 1979 have not been compiled.

Department of health figures show that 77 people died from similar causes in 1977. That same year there were 21 carbon monoxide deaths from causes other than those attributed to motor vehicles. The 1978 similar total is 16, bringing the overall total to about or over 100 each year.

As illustrated by the recent death of a New Ulm woman, sitting in a running car in a closed garage does not allow much chance for survival.

In a vehicle tightly sealed against cold weather, a faulty exhaust system can leak enough carbon monoxide to kill you in the time it takes to drive around the block.

This gas is colorless, tasteless, non-irritating and nearly odorless.

Symptoms of poisoning include a tightening feeling across the forehead, and a headache, generally accompanied by nausea. Other symptoms can include dizziness, blurred vision, sleepiness, loss of muscle control and increased pulse and respiration.

If you notice any symptoms, get fresh air immediately. By the time the symptoms appear, you are already close to losing consciousness.

One good defense against carbon monoxide is to never drive with your vehicle completely sealed. In both winter and summer, good ventilation is essential to avoid poisoning. Leaving the windows open gives good cross ventilation with fresh air.

In stop and go driving, close the front air vents because they can suck in exhaust from other vehicles. In a station wagon, keep the rear window closed because forward motion creates a partial vacuum which can draw your exhaust into the passenger compartment.

When in a closed area, never warm up the engine and avoid working on the vehicle with the engine running. To warm up the vehicle before leaving, drive it outside to idle awhile.

Another important precaution is to check your vehicle's exhaust system at least twice a year. A stone or ice chunk can put a hole in the muffler and let exhaust fumes escape to seep through the vehicle's floor into the passenger area.

One test of the exhaust system is to start the motor, hold a rag over the tailpipe end for a few seconds and listen for leaks. Then remove the rag and check visually around the pipes and muffler for soot or a bluish gray color.

Dear friends,
"The most useful part of the whole funeral process in the moment of truth that comes when living persons confront the fact of death by looking at the body", remarked Dr. Erich Lindemann of Harvard Medical School. He added, "People tend to deny painful reality — to deny the fact that death has occurred. But when they experience that moment of truth that comes when they stand before the dead body, their denials collapse" — and a return to mental health is possible.
Respectfully,

A HELPING HAND is given to Brian Benitt, first grade student of Clarice Bren who was recently selected teacher of the year for the Marshall county central district. Clarice, who teaches at the Viking school, feels that art and reading are two very important subjects in the life of a first-grader.

CLARICE BREN, first grade teacher at the Viking school who was recently selected teacher of the year for the Marshall county central school district takes one of her 20 students, Jeremy Underdahl, under her wing to help him solve a problem. "Teachers have to be good listeners," she said. "Children have so much to share."

a better understanding of each child in the group."

However, listening should not be limited to group discussion, she said.

"Listen to children in the halls, on the playground, when you're working on a stubborn knot in their shoe laces."

It is difficult to see a group of children leave at the end of a year, according to Clarice. Each group of children has to be treated differently because each child is so different, she said.

The classroom, school and a cooperative teaching staff are essential to teaching and learning, she said. "We are fortunate to have good working relationships on our school."

"I believe a teacher has to grow every day. It's important to take part in workshops, visit with other teachers to exchange ideas, and bring resource people into school."

Clarice feels that a life outside of school is very important to broaden one's horizons. She is a member of Trinity Lutheran church in Thief River Falls. Most of the activities she is involved in outside of the home involve the church. She also enjoys many hobbies including family camping trips, traveling, reading, knitting, crocheting, Norwegian stitchery and caring for her and her husband's 10 grandchildren.

"I'm grateful for a family who is proud that their wife, mother and grandmother is a teacher. Because of their patience and cooperation, I was able to earn my college degree through night classes and summer sessions. I will always be grateful to my parents who encouraged me to continue my education and become a teacher. They instilled in me a sense of values that have been necessary to a good life."

A statement made during out interview seemed to summarize one of Clarice's ideas on teaching for both herself and her students: "You repeat and repeat and finally it comes through," she said.

Filing Errors Can Delay U.S. Tax Refunds

Each year income tax refund checks, which should average more than $500 in 1980, go out to four out of five taxpayers across the nation.

Unfortunately, in their haste to mail in their tax forms, the Internal Revenue Service says, millions of taxpayers make careless errors that cause needless delay in the processing of tax returns and the subsequent issuance of refund checks.

To help prevent these annoying delays, the IRS urges taxpayers to allow for a "cooling off" period before dropping returns in the mail. Set the return aside for a few hours or a day, then go back and check the following items:

+ Have I attached all my supporting schedules to my Form 1040?
+ Is the arithmetic correct?
+ Are my W-2 forms from all my jobs attached?
+ Did I use the correct tax table, and did I follow the line across to the correct figure?
+ Did I check a box for the 1980 Presidential Election Campaign Fund?
+ Is it signed and dated (by both spouses, if a joint return)?
+ Is the social security number correct on my peel-off label?
+ Is there a stamp on the pre-addressed, coded envelope?
+ Did I make a copy of the return for my own records?

A few minutes double-checking these simple items can prevent a delay of weeks in the processing of a tax return.

BRYAN CLOUTIER ponders intently on his assignment, while Clarice Bren, first grade teacher at the Viking school travels about the room checking each child's work, and helping out when questions arise. Clarice was recently selected teacher of the year for the Marshall county central school district.

RHONDA AMBUEHL receives help from Clarice Bren, first grade teacher at the Viking school who was recently selected teacher of the year for the Marshall county central school district. Clarice believes that an important step in teaching is to care about children and enjoy working with them.

One Man's View

Kwame McDonald writes a column in the Twin Cities Courier, a newspaper geared primarily to the black community of the metropolitan area and for the most part expressing that viewpoint. In his most recent column headed "Between a Roack and a Hard Place", McDonald comments on the proposed boycott of the Olympics in Moscow next summer. He writes as follows:

On October 16, 1968, Tommy Smith, 200-meter Olympic champion and teammate John Carlos, a third place finisher, ascended the Olympic pedestal with Black fists raised, to receive their gold and bronze medals, respectively. It was in Mexico that Black athletes, who were running on the American team, had chosen not to boycott the Olympics, but to somehow dramatize the concern for the plight of black people, amid the cries from all of American officialdom who said that politics and Olympic sport do not mix. In fact, these two young men were expelled from Mexico and banned from amateur sports for life. They found it difficult to obtain gainful employment.

After all, hadn't the French educator Baron Pierre de Coubertin almost single-handedly revived the Olympics in 1896 "to promote interest in education and culture?" Also "to foster better international understanding through the universal medium of youth's love of athletics?"

Hadn't the United States ignored politics when they sent Jesse Owens to prove to Adolph Hitler that Aryans were not superior? Was not Hitler's Germany as distasteful as Breshnev's Russia? In 1972, the Olympics in Munch were marred by political assassinations. America was in the forefront of admonishing that politics and the Olympics should be separate and distinct. In 1976, because of South Africa's apartheid system, African nations boycotted the Olympics. We could not find one U.S. official, nor sports columnist that understood, let alone supported, the African boycott of the games in Montreal. In fact, the U.S. was again leading the pack of western-oriented nations talking about politics and sport do not mix.

What is interesting, though not surprising, to me is that the obvious injection of politics is now all right.

What of the Olympic Creed?

The most important thing in the Olympic Games is not to win but to take part, just as the most important thing in life is not the triumph but the struggle. The essential thing is not to have conquered but to have fought well.

This, of course, is the creed that guides all Olympians including the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A. Yet, contrary to Olympic principle, these two nations along with their respective satellites, East Germany and West Germany, are at it trying to prove who is "superior." Why else would they keep score and yet recognize that such scorekeeping is "unofficial" and not a part of the Olympic movement.

While the uninformed Jimmy Carter initially adamantly called for an Olympic boycott, he is now calling for postponement, alternative sites or a Russian withdrawal from Afghanistan. It is as if the U.S.S.R. hasn't been carrying on international mischief all along. When, in 1974, the U.S.S.R. was given the Olympics, their activities were no different than they are now. It is just that their activities more directly and presently effect the economic giants of the U.S., the oil companies.

This summer, in Moscow, I predict that when the athletes of the host country, at the opening ceremony, recite, "In the name of all competitors I promise that we will take part in these Olympic games, respecting and abiding by the rules that govern them, in the true spirit of sportsmanship for the glory of sport and the honor of our teams," the U.S. will be there. Now, watch while they scurry around trying to figure out how to get out from Between the Rock and a Hard Place in which they've placed themselves.

Maybe It Was Healthy

The coalition of DFL and I-R legislators which elected Fred Norton as Minnesota speaker of the house may have been disappointing to Rep. Irv Anderson of International Falls but should be heartening for most Minnesotans.

Relative merits of the two legislators aside, the encouraging part of the situation is that party lines can be crossed on a significant issue to accomplish what a majority believed was best for all concerned. Ever since the legislature became a group of people elected by party designation there has been a temptation to sacrifice the good of the people for the power of the party.

Rep. Anderson has been an effective legislator for his area, but has earned a reputation of being somewhat abusive in leadership positions, such as the DFL caucus leadership which he held. One editorialist described him as ". . .a vindictive wheeler-dealer who used his power over committee assignments as a means to reward his cronies and punish anyone who dared to oppose him."

That assessment may be a little strong, but there obviously was enough resentment of Anderson in the legislature to make a substantial number of his own party throw their support to someone else. And those people took enough Independent-Republicans with them to effect Norton's election.

If the public mood regarding the legislature can be described as anything but apathetic in the last half dozen years, it could perhaps be described as beligerent. A good part of that attitude was due to a belief by the public that the legislature has not been responsive to public concerns and demands.

Maybe that bi-partisan vote to seat Rep. Morton is a healthy sign that good things can indeed come out of this legislative session.

Thoughts On Taxes

"Santa Claus and the Easter Bunny aside, few things in life are awaited with as much anticipation as an income tax refund check." This is the introduction to a news release sent to the nation's newspapers recently by the Internal Revenue service.

If the IRS is right, it is a sad commentary on how the citizens of this nation have become indifferent to their personal situations. Why should a taxpayer celebrate because the government took more money from him than it was entitled to take, used it for a good share of the year and then gave it back without so much as a thank-you?

The revenue service estimated that four out of five taxpayers will receive a refund this year and that the refunds will average more than $500. That means that the government will have the free use of a healthy chunk of most people's money, primarily because of withholding regulations and the necessity to file estimated returns during the year.

If there is any entity which should believe in Santa Claus and the Easter Bunny it should be the IRS and the general federal bureaucracy, for they are the recipients of gratuity in this situation. And as tax filing time is upon us, we should be acutely aware that we are the elves building Santa's toys and the helpers lining the Bunny's basket.

One other thought on taxes, and that is in regard to the dollar check-off for presidential campaign contribution. This is promoted on the theory that it costs the taxpayer nothing and contributes to less influence on presidential candidates by large contributors.

Since the check-off comes out of taxes the taxpayer would otherwise have paid, the government will be short that amount which it would have received. This must be made up by adding to the taxes paid elsewhere or by contributing to inflation-causing deficit spending. In either case, the taxpayer pays.

Authorizing the check-off not only gives permission to the government to use your dollar to help candidates you support, it permits a share to go to candidates you may strenuously oppose. And it doesn't stop influence peddling through campaign contributions — it just increases the size of the political war chest, extending and intensifying campaigns which already seem intolerably long.

Furthermore, the check-off money is divided only among those candidates who have first been nominated by others. We are mindful of the labor leader who said he was willing to leave the power of election with the people — as long as he could control the nominations.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Positive thinking can make the best of any situation. A youngster took a bat and ball into the back yard and announced, "I'm the greatest ball player in the world!" He tossed the ball in the air, took a mighty swing, and missed. Again he tossed the ball, swung and missed. After failing to connect on a healthy third cut proudly proclaimed, "What a pitcher!"

Swen was a Swede whose animosity to Norwegians was well known. His cronies expressed amazement when a Norwegian harmonica player with a monkey came into the bar and Swen tossed coins into the monkey's tin cup. "Ya, sure," Swen loudly proclaimed with a disdainful look at the harmonica player. "Dere so cute ven dere little."

POPSICLES HAD NO time to melt Friday afternoon as Goodridge high school students participated in a series of Popsicle eating contests at the school. The contest was one of several activities conducted at the school as part of sno-fest activities performed by students throughout the week.

Equip Physicians To Care For Elderly

by Paul Schurke
'U' M News Service

The phrase "the elderly boom" hasn't caught on yet, but consider the statistics: More than half those who have ever been over 65 are alive today. Their portion of the American population has more than doubled during this century, from four to 11 per cent.

Despite the relative health and vigor of its members, this group has unique medical concerns. Like the post-war baby boom era which saw the practice of pediatrics flourish, the "elderly boom" has spawned its own medical branch — geriatrics.

Advocates of the field don't expect geriatricians of the future to hold positions in medical practice similar to those now held by pediatricians. In fact, many are discouraging the establishment of an accredited specialty in geriatrics.

Pat Irvine, a University of Minnesota internal medicine specialist, is one of them. Irvine contends that knowledge about the care of the elderly should be the domain of all health care professionals. At the same time, he says, there is a need to train a small number of expert geriatricians for teaching, research and specialized patient care consultation.

He hesitates to call himself a geriatrician although most of the patients he has seen in his four years of practice are elderly people. Irvine is a leading supporter of geriatric care in the Twin Cities and works closely with a group of area physicians and nurses involved in the field. He helped establish St. Paul - Ramsey hospital's senior health care center, one of the few geriatric clinics in the area.

National institute on aging recently awarded him a five-year $430,000 grant with two purposes. One is to further Irvine's development as a geriatrician and to provide money for him and others to conduct research in the field. Ten student research fellowships are included in the grant, providing stipends for students conducting studies in geriatrics.

"The body of knowledge in geriatrics has not been well established," Irvine said. "Much research needs to be done."

What is known about care of elderly people makes geriatrics unique among medical disciplines, Irvine said. Symptoms of some diseases in the elderly are different from those in younger persons. "Take appendicitis," he said. "doctors can recognize the symptoms if it hits a 12-year-old child, but it's extremely hard to diagnose in an 80 year-old."

"Not only do elderly patients present different symptoms, they report symptoms differently than other people do. They will not often tell you about things like forgetfulness, chills or swelling of the ankles. They often attribute these symptoms to aging, even though they may be symptoms of a treatable condition," he said.

Some diseases occur only among the elderly, such as hypothermia, polymyalgia and prostatic cancer.

These differences require special knowledge and sensitivity from physicians caring for the elderly. And sensitivity can best be instilled during medical school, Irvine believes.

"Studies have shown that medical students develop negative attitudes toward the elderly during the years of their medical training," Irvine said.

"In medical school, students only see debilitated elderly persons. They don't see the healthy and active ones," he said. Medical students see the elderly as people who can't talk, can't hear and can't understand.

Thus, the second and major portion of the grant will be used to incorporate geriatrics into the University of Minnesota medical school curriculum. "A year ago we surveyed the curriculum and found very little if any content that was true geriatric medicine," Irvine said. "We felt there were major gaps so we will put together a formal survey to recommend changes in the curriculum."

Irvine is setting up a committee that will involve faculty members from all of the medical disciplines, and will be working with individual faculty members to find out how information on geriatrics can be incorporated into classes in each field.

"The strategy is to get more information into the core courses and to generate interest in geriatrics among the students," he said.

"Maybe we can change the stereotypes by giving physicians the skills necessary for properly caring for the elderly. We want them to see the positive as well as negative aspects of aging," he said.

Questions & Answers
FOR BETTER HEALTH
By Phillip Bruno

Q. How can I tell if my problem can be helped by chiropractic care?
A. Your asking the question leads me to believe that your present treatment is not doing what you had hoped it would do. Until all members of the health field are educated as to what they should and what they should not treat, the public will be left in a quandry. Your best bet is to get a doctor of chiropractic to give his opinion.

Q. I want to go to a chiropractor but I hear that it will hurt. Does it?
A. Maybe. If your problem is something like torticollis, (you can't turn your head), there will be some discomfort. Most of the time: getting rid of nerve pressure that is causing a problem is pleasant; say, like for headaches.

Q. I believe that medical care can help or cure any ailment. There is a pill or medication for every problem. I don't believe all the good things that you write about spinal care and chiropractic.
A. You'd believe me if I wrote bad things about chiropractic now, wouldn't you? Sorry, I can't oblige, most of what I see is good.

If you have any questions concerning your health write to:

Local Student Plans NDSU Open House

Marilyn Kiesow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kiesow of Goodridge is among nine North Dakota state university students planning a college of engineering and architecture open house Saturday, February 16, at NDSU.

A senior in mechanical engineering, Kiesow is vice president of the engineering and architecture council sponsoring the open house in conjunction with the 64th Little International livestock exposition February 15 and 16 at NDSU, and National Engineering week, February 17-23.

Among the exhibits will be a model cooling tower for a nuclear power plant; a model of a newly proposed spillway for a day at Epping, N.D.; a model of a continuous flow, complete mix, activated sledge system for sewage disposal; two concrete canoes being designed and built for the National Collegiate concrete canoe race April 26 at Manhattan, Kansas; engine testing equipment that will monitor horsepower, torque, fuel consumption, air consumption and over-all economy of engine performance and engine displays showing how an internal combustion engine works.

Other displays, including design work from a student in the department of architecture, will be on exhibit. Some heavy construction equipment will be on display near the Engineering center. Information about the NDSU College of engineering and architecture, as well as coffee and doughnuts, will be available at no charge at the engineering center. Open house is scheduled from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and the public is invited to attend.

PTA Project Aimed At Non-Adult Drinkers

More than three-million junior and senior high-school students in the United States are "problem drinkers," who have had run-ins with their teachers or the police as a result of imbibing, according to the national institute on alcohol abuse and alcoholism. They represent better than one-third of all Americans classified as alcoholics.

Solution — according to the national PTA — is preventive education; teaching young people to make informed decisions about alcohol use, and involving participation by all members of the community, and not just the teens and pre-teens at whom the educational effort is ultimately aimed.

Through its alcohol education project, a five-year study of adolescent alcohol use and abuse, and the testing of alcohol awareness strategies, the national PTA has developed a wealth of model programs and materials.

Now available to the public, this information is designed to help parents, teachers, students, health agencies and community groups create local, public education campaigns that will meet their own, particular problems involving youth and alcohol. This effort, which offers six state PTA programs, and two programs designed by national PTA staff, was funded by the national institute on alcohol abuse and alcoholism.

Another effort, offered as part of the "Read More About It" project, is the CBS-TV program, "The Boy Who Drank Too Much". Co-sponsored by CBS and the Library of Congress book project, the program includes a selected reading list of books relevant to teen and adult alcoholism, that are being made available through school and public libraries across the country.

PTA materials complement these other efforts in focusing attention on this growing national problem. Currently available are humorous posters and public service ads for newspapers; a "Booziometrograph," which is a data-collection manual to be used in assessing the information needs of a community on alcohol use by adolescents; brochures; teaching and community workshop guides; "Alcohol Alley," a classroom game that teaches decision-making on alcohol use; and a record containing public service spots.

Individuals or organizations interested in obtaining more information about the PTA's programs and materials are invited to write: "Alcohol Education," National PTA, 700 North Rush Street, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

"Project 20" Accepted By Driving Public

After three months of operation, "Project 20" — the Minnesota state patrol's 28-month saturation program for enforcement of the 55 mile per hour speed limit — is working well, according to John P. Sopsic, commissioner of the Minnesota department of public safety.

Sopsic noted that the program gives more visibility to the patrol and is encouraging voluntary compliance with 55 MPH.

According to Roger Ledding, chief of the state patrol, from October 29 to January 14 the patrol made 1,260 arrests, gave 3,140 warnings and made 1,250 assists. "We are not stressing numbers," Ledding said. "We want people to drive at or under the limit."

Ledding said there had been fewer traffic accidents and a reduction in fatalities during the period. "This is a concentrated effort to encourage drivers to abide by the speed limit," Ledding said, noting that the 10 troopers added for the project last October 29 will be supplemented by an additional 10 on March 1 of this year.

From January 30 to February 8 the saturation location is on Interstate 35 from Iowa to Burnsville. Others on the schedule are: February 13-20, Interstate 90 E from South Dakota to Rochester; February 27-March 5, I-94 from Moorhead to Fergus Falls; and March 12-19, U.S. 10 E from Motley to Anoka.

In recent weeks Project 20 troopers have been on I-35 north of the Twin Cities, on U.S. 12 west of the metropolitan area and on U.S. 52 in southeastern Minnesota.

High Interest Rates Affect Vehicle Sales

There are many reasons for the current slowdown in auto sales. . .the sudden switch from big cars to small ones because of gasoline cost and availability, inflation, the tightened economy and higher insurance rates.

But another major factor which has received little attention is the damage being done to car sales by high money-interest rates, which have affected both the retail and wholesale segments of the auto business, points out the Automotive information council (AIC). High rates were willed by the government in the hope of reducing inflation.

Perhaps most damaging is the rapid rise in floorplanning costs, which are charges that car dealers must pay for the cars they have in inventory. These charges have risen to about 16 per cent a year in many areas of the country, up more than 20 per cent from a year ago.

This greatly affects dealer costs, the prices he must charge for each car and the number of cars he keeps in stock. Dealers historically have kept large stocks to provide immediate delivery, but that is changing. Some of the larger dealers have been spending at an annual rate of a half-million dollars for floorplanning. That's why many are cutting back on their orders, which quickly determines which factories have to resort to employee layoffs.

High cost of retail credit to the person who wants to finance his car purchase also is shutting off sales. Higher rates have boosted auto payments in many cases beyond the level of monthly payments which can be afforded.

In addition, some lending institutions, themselves faced with the high cost of money, have stopped making auto loans entirely or insist on a down-payment double that needed a year ago.

Financing subsidiaries of the car companies have been taking up some of the difference because they were organized to help their parent companies increase sales but they, too, are being squeezed by availability and cost of funds.

"It's an interesting commentary on the auto business today that these finance subsidiaries are probably more profitable than are their parent companies," an industry observer told the Automotive information council.

U.S. Consumer Benefits From Big Companies

Dr. Yale Brozen, noted economics professor at the University of Chicago who is famous for his knowledge of our complex antitrust laws and business structure, has a simple explanation of why some companies grow big.

"They get big because people like their products," he says. He also has a simple explanation of why consumers benefits from the size of the big oil companies.

The larger, more diversified the petroleum companies, he says, the cheaper it is for them to raise money for exploration, production and refining. Big oil companies save consumers $2 to $3 billion a year because of this advantage, according to a study Dr. Brozen cited.

Dr. Brozen made these observations on a short visit to Washington recently to appear on the radio show, "What's The Issue?" with Dr. Richard L. Lesher, president of the chamber of commerce of the United States, who has also taught on college campuses.

Dr. Kesher invited him back to Washington. "We need you around here, professor, a little more often to explain to them (people in government) how hard business has to work to gain a large number of satisfied customers," Dr. Lesher remarked.

Secretary Of State Publishes Caucus Booklet

Secretary of state's office announces that copies of the 1980 edition of "Precinct Caucuses in Minnesota," a dialogue for voters, are now available.

"February 26, 1980, at 8 p.m., all three political parties qualified under Minnesota law will hold caususes in each of the state's 4,020 precincts," explains Joan Growe, secretary of state. "This pamphlet will help voters prepare for participation in a fundamental part of this state's election process."

The pamphlet is part of the voter information program of the secretary of state. Copies are being distributed by the political parties (American party of Minnesota, Democratic-Farmer-Labor and Independent-Republican) and by the League of Women Voters and other community groups.

"State law requires political parties to submit to each county auditor a list of voters in each precinct qualified for appointment as election judges," Growe points out. "I urge the political parties to recruit eligible persons at their 1980 precinct caususes on Tuesday evening, February 26. I would especially like to see bilingual judges recommended whenever possible."

Information about election judge selection including qualifications, party balance, compensation and training is included in the 1980 edition of "Precinct Caucuses in Minnesota."

Growe commends the Minnesota Newspaper association for its continued cooperation in voter information activities. Copies of the caucus booklet will be mailed to 380 newspapers by MNA. "The assistance of the news media is vitally needed to alert citizens to their voting responsibilities," Growe states.

Copies of the caucus booklet are available without charge by writing or calling the Election division, Office of the Secretary of State, 180 State Office building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155 (612) 296-2805.

LHS Girls Face Challenge

Lincoln high school girls basketball team will probably find itself paired off with either Moorhead or Detroit Lakes in the first round of the 1980 North Half Region 8AA basketball tournament.

The new tournament format will be used for the first time March 4, 6, 7 and 8 when the eight teams that formerly made up Sub Regions 3 and 4 of Region 8AA get together at Detroit Lakes.

A coaches seeding meet will be held Tues., Feb. 26, at Detroit Lakes. The tournament starts Tues., March 4 when it'll be the No. 1 seed vs. No. 8 at 7 p.m. and No. 4 vs. No. 5 at 8:45. Second night of quarterfinals will be played Thurs., March 6, with No. 2 vs. No. 7 at 7 p.m. and No. 3 vs. No. 6 at 8:45.

Semifinals will be played Fri., March 7, at 7 and 8:45 p.m. Championship game will be played Sat., March 8, at 7:30 p.m.

Host Detroit Lakes may be in the unusual situation of being the pretournament favorite, but seeded No. 2 behind Moorhead. The Spuds defeated the Lakers 62-41 earlier this year on a night when Detroit Lakes committed 50 turnovers.

Seeding behind the Spuds and Lakers is up for grabs. Bemidji could be No. 3, followed by Fergus Falls, Crookston, Park Rapids, East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls.

The Prowlers can improve their stock over the next two weeks when four of their final five regular season games will be against North Half Region 8AA opponents, starting tonight (Monday) against Bemidji at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln high school gym. Thief River Falls will be at Crookston Thursday and close out the year with home games Saturday against Fosston; Tues., Feb. 19, Detroit Lakes; and Thurs., Feb. 21, East Grand Forks.

The only team to face each of the other seven North Half opponents at least once, Thief River Falls is still looking for its first win over a Region 8AA foe this winter. The Prowlers, 4-8 overall, have lost to North Half rivals Park Rapids 43-37, Moorhead 52-45, Bemidji 49-44, Crookston 45-42, East Grand Forks 52-35 and Fergus Falls 51-38.

Unless there's an abrupt turnaround in the Prowlers' fortunes, they'll find themself paired off with the No. 1 seeded Spuds come March 4.

The North Half champion will be the host school for the 1980 Region 8AA championship game against the South Half champion on Fri., March 14. Little Falls is considered a good bet to come out of the South Half Region 8AA tournament that will also feature St. Cloud Tech, St. Cloud Apollo, Cold Spring-Rocori, Brainerd, Alexandria, Sauk Rapids and Melrose.

The Region 8AA winner will meet the Region 7AA champion in a first round Class AA state basketball tournament game Thurs., March 20, at the Met Sports Center in Bloomington. The Class AA semifinals and finals will be joined by the Class A girls who begin their tournament at the St. Paul Civic Center.

Moorhead Will Be No. 1 Seed

Coaches are meeting tonight (Monday) at Mahnomen to determine seeding positions for the 1980 boys North Half Region 8AA basketball tournament, scheduled to be played next week at Moorhead State University.

"There's no question who will be No. 1 in the rating," wrote Ralph Anderson of Detroit Lakes, "because coach Bill Quenette's Moorhead Spuds have a solid lock on that position. Quenette has a line-up fortified by such players as Chad Sheets, Jeff Bolger, Jim Driscoll and Lawson Stephenson and the Spuds have been awesome of late. The way Moorhead has played, in fact, causes one to believe that it would take an upset of gigantic proportions for someone to stop them short of the Minnesota State Class AA tournament."

John Erickson, coach of a Detroit Lakes ball club that was pounded by Moorhead 84-44 recently, told Anderson, "Bill (Quenette) feels this may be his best team in the 14 years he has been coach at Moorhead."

While Moorhead has the inside track on the No. 1 seed, Anderson says the battle for the No. 2 position looks like a real toss-up and several schools can say they deserve that rating.

"Just the same," says Anderson, "it really doesn't seem to matter who will be seeded in spots 2-8 because Moorhead has been such a dominant team. The tournament will go on as scheduled, of course, but logic will tell you that Moorhead will be the school that will represent the regional Northern Division against the regional Southern Division champion for a berth in the state tournament on Feb. 29 at St. Cloud State's Halenbeck Hall."

The North Half Region 8AA tournament will be played Feb. 19, 21, 22 and 23 at Moorhead State.

Two letters arrived at the Times office Friday from former Thief River Falls residents living in California after they spotted the photo in two Los Angeles papers.

Harlie Lunke of San Pedro, Calif. sent a clipping from the Los Angeles Times and wrote, "Thief River Falls high school (as well as Minnesota Section 8) hockey has hit the big time as evidenced by the enclosed clipping. I am coming back for the Minnesota state high school hockey tournament this March as I have for the past two years. It would be nice to see the home town in the tournament. Good luck to the hockey team now and in the future."

Jerry Parnham of Carson, Calif. sent a clipping from the Los Angeles Herald Examiner. Parnham, remembered here for his officiating work in football, baseball and softball, flies for an airline in southern California, but is still officiating. In 1979 he says he worked 149 baseball and softball games, 35 football games, 32 volleyball matches and 20 wrestling matches.

State Tournament Berth On The Line Tonight

First place in the Northwest Division and an MJCAA state tournament berth will be the prize for the winner tonight when Northland plays host to Fergus Falls in an 8 p.m. community college basketball game in Thief River Falls.

Last week's results created a three-way first place tie in the four-team Northwest Division pennant race; with Northland, Fergus Falls and Crookston all beginning the final week of the 1979-80 regular season with 6-3 MJCAA records. Brainerd is 4-5. Northland kept Crookston from gaining sole possession of first place Thursday when the Northmen earned a key 83-82 road win. That same night Fergus Falls handled Brainerd 86-63 to rebound from a Tuesday night 71-61 loss to Crookston.

The win over Crookston nearly assures Northland of a berth in the 1980 Minnesota junior college athletic association state basketball tournament Feb. 21-23 at Normandale community college in Bloomington. Top two teams in each of the four MJCAA divisions earn state tournament spots and the only way the Northmen can lose out on a state meet appearance is if they lose twice and the Trojans win twice.

Crookston will be at Fergus Falls Wednesday and will visit Brainerd Saturday. Northland will be at Brainerd Friday night.

Tonight's winner will clinch a state tournament berth. "It's going to put one of us in the state for sure," said Northland coach Chet Engelman.

Northland 83
Crookston 82

In a spirited see-saw battle, Northland edged Crookston 83-82 Thursday to move into a first place tie in the Northwest Division.

Northland, after trailing 48-40 at halftime, finally caught Crookston when Terry Harris scored three straight baskets for a 54-54 tie with 15:50 remaining. It was tight the rest of the way as the lead changed hands 11 times in the last nine minutes.

A basket by Crookston guard Keith Strickland put the Trojans ahead 82-81 with 2:48 left. Northland then held the ball until Mike Carriere was found underneath the basket for an 83-82 edge for the Northmen with 49 seconds to go.

Crookston had a couple of chances to go ahead, including an in-bounds play under Northland's basket with seven seconds to go. But after three time-outs — two by Northland — the Trojans' Pat Divine rushed a shot from the side and Carriere grabbed the rebound with just one second on the clock.

It was a top-notch MJCAA feature as Harris scored 30 points and grabbed 13 rebounds, Vince Parker collected 20 points and Chris Kneen scored 14 points and pulled down 12 rebounds for the Northmen. For the Trojans, Strickland finished with 26 points, Tim Rolf 18, Divine 16 and Doug Hedman 14.

"We did not have a guy who did not play pretty well for us," noted Engelman.

Northland enjoyed a 39-for-69, 57 per cent shooting night from the field and went 5-for-10 at the free throw line. Crookston was 39-for-85 for 46 per cent from the field and 4-for-6 at the line. Northland held a 46-38 rebound edge and topped the turnover charts 20-11.

Rivalries Will Highlight Play In Section 8

A pair of intense rivalries will highlight this week's Section 8 high school hockey schedule as Warroad and Roseau tangle Tuesday at Roseau and Crookston Central meets inter-city rival Mount St. Benedict Friday at Crookston. Both games could be key factors in the tight Section 8 points race.

In addition to the Section 8 match-ups, a weekend series featuring Iron Range power Grand Rapids should prove interesting as the Indians visit Roseau Friday and play at Warroad Saturday.

Prowlers Gain Title Tie With A 59-45 Victory Over Green Wave

Northwest Conference	w	l	pw	pr
Bemidji	4	2	5	0
Thief River Falls	4	3	5	0
Fergus Falls	2	2	4	0
Crookston	3	3	3	1
East Grand Forks	1	4	2	1

What has to be ranked as one of the most remarkable turnarounds ever by a Lincoln high school basketball team was completed Friday when the Prowlers earned themselves a share of the 1979-80 Northwest Athletic Conference title with a 59-45 win at East Grand Forks.

Coupled with a pair of Crookston losses over the weekend, the Thief River Falls victory over East Grand Forks gives the Prowlers a share of the NWAC title with defending champion Bemidji, a 64-60 winner over Crookston Friday. The Pirates then fell out of title contention by losing to Fergus Falls 65-62 the following night. A season-ending NWAC game Friday matching East Grand Forks and Crookston will not affect the title status of the Prowlers and Lumberjacks who split a pair of regular season meetings.

It was an unlikely championship for the Prowlers who found themselves mired in the NWAC basement when they lost their first three conference starts. But four straight NWAC wins over the past two weeks vaulted them from last to first in the conference standings that are determined by points — one point for a win in a two-game season series and two points if the teams meet just once during the year.

Thief River Falls was never challenged Friday, opening a 16-10 first quarter lead and carrying a 33-21 advantage into intermission. It was 45-29 after three quarters.

"We played pretty well — especially in the first half," said Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters. "We passed the ball around and got some good shots. And we got some offensive rebounds. Good shooting, plus the fact we got some offensive boards won it for us."

East Grand Forks was ineffective against Thief River Falls' zone defense, hitting just 16 of 57 shots for 28 per cent. In contrast, Thief River Falls made 26 of 52 shots for an even 50 per cent. The Prowlers were 7-for-14 at the free throw line where the Green Wave went 13-for-26. Thief River Falls earned a 33-30 edge on the boards and was charged with 13 turnovers to 10 for the Green Wave.

Forward Jim Nyland led a balanced Thief River Falls attack with 17 points and eight rebounds. Guard Kyle Hams scored 15 points and dished out 10 assists. Center Todd Young grabbed 11 rebounds for the winners. Brian Nelson and Paul Helt scored 13 points apiece for the slumping Green Wave, now 7-9.

"We've been playing good ball lately," confirmed Peters whose team is now 10-5. "We've been putting it together. The kids have confidence in themselves now and they're doing the job."

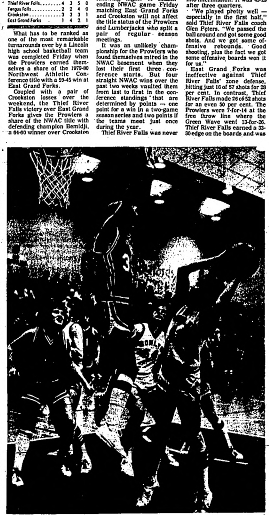
Thief River Falls will finish its 1979-80 season this week, playing at Warren Tuesday, hosting Park Rapids Thursday and visiting Detroit Lakes Friday.

Lincoln junior varsity improved its record to 9-6 with a 60-57 win over East Grand Forks.

Thief River Falls	16	17	12	14	59
East Grand Forks	10	11	8	16	45

TRF (fg ft pf tp) — Kyle Hams 7 1 1 15, Gregg Peterson 1 0 1 2, Mitch Murry 0 0 1 0, Mark Schwirtz 3 2 4 8, Jim Nyland 8 1 3 17, Greg Miller 3 2 5 8, Todd Young 4 1 5 9. Totals 26 7 20 59.

EGF — Todd Selk 3 0 3 6, Paul Danielson 0 1 1 1, Brian Nelson 6 1 0 13, Rob Schneider 2 0 0 4, Paul Helt 4 5 3 13, John Roche 0 4 1 4, Greg Swenson 0 2 2 2, Scott Fettig 0 0 3 0, Randy Jensen 1 0 0 2. Totals 16 13 13 45.



FAKING A SHOT, forward Jim Nyland of the Prowlers (44) drew Paul Helt of the East Grand Forks Green Wave high into the air. Nyland, who led Prowlers scoring with 17 points, then went up with the shot to score in the 59-45 conference win for Thief River Falls Friday night at East Grand Forks. Moving in for potential rebound are John Roche (41) of the Green Wave and Todd Young (54) of the Prowlers. Helt finished the night with 13 points and turned in a strong game on the boards and defense.

Fergus Falls Girls Beat Slow-Starting Prowlers

Fergus Falls limited Thief River Falls to just 12 first half points Thursday en route to a 51-38 girls high school basketball victory over the visiting Prowlers.

The sharp-shooting Otters jumped out to a 15-4 first quarter lead and carried a 26-12 cushion into intermission. It was 38-24 at the end of the third quarter.

"We played just terrible in the first half," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg who revised her line-up in the second half when she went with a much more effective three-guard offense by putting sophomore Patty Blackstad into the backcourt with starters Ann Goodrich and Kim McFarland.

"We played them even in the second half with those three small guards," mentioned Sjoberg. "They really hustled."

The defeat dropped the Prowlers' record to 4-8 going into tonight's (Monday) scheduled 7:30 p.m. game against Bemidji in the Lincoln gym.

Goodridge, with 12 points, was the only scorer in double figures for the Prowlers who shot 30 per cent from the field, hitting 16 of 53 shots. The Prowlers were 6-for-10 at the free throw line. Fergus Falls shot at a 40 per cent, 22-for-55 clip from the field but went just 7-for-23 at the line. Thief River Falls finished with a 31-29 edge on the boards.

It was a clean sweep for Fergus Falls teams as the hosts won the junior varsity encounter 47-30 and took the freshman game 27-24. The Lincoln junior varsity is 6-6 for the year and the freshmen are 2-7. They'll both play Bemidji tonight at 5:45 p.m. — the junior varsity at Lincoln and the freshmen at Franklin middle school.

IN A PRE-GAME ceremony prior to the start of Friday's exhibition hockey game in the sports arena matching the Warroad Lakers against the Japanese Olympic hockey team, Jim Mattson (left), president of the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club, presented Dennis Bakke, president of the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA), with a check for $4,500 to kick off TRFAHA's $34,000 project to install artificial ice in the old arena. The money was earned through the Sports Boosters' efforts in producing the souvenir program for the 1978 Section 8 high school hockey tournament. Friday marked the beginning of the fund-raising projects for the artificial ice plant by TRFAHA, a group that completed a $12,000 old arena remodeling project over the summer.

ROSEAU CENTER Andy Odegaard (15) and Thief River Falls defenseman Dave Geatz (4) fought over a loose puck in front of the Thief River Falls net in the second period of Saturday's Section 8 high school hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Scott Wiebolt (2) of the Prowlers and David Larson (5) of the Rams watched the action in front of Thief River Falls goalie Jeff Mongoven. The Rams won the game 6-2 to hold on to first place in the Section 8 standings. The Prowlers host Hallock Tuesday and travel to Detroit Lakes Saturday in the next-to-the-last week of the 1979-80 regular season schedule.

Second Period Outburst Gives Rams 6-2 Win Over Prowlers

On paper it looks like a rather decisive 6-2 Roseau victory over Thief River Falls. But while the Rams did have the edge in the showdown matching the top two teams in the Section 8 high school hockey point standings, it wasn't a one-sided affair by any stretch of the imagination.

Roseau won it by scoring on four consecutive second period shots against immobile Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury, who was trying to play in spite of a painful back problem that forced him into an early departure for the second straight game.

And the Rams won it by being lucky, too, as a potential Thief River Falls come-back attempt from a 6-2 second period deficit found the Prowlers hitting three pipes and missing a couple of other good scoring opportunities.

"I felt we had some excellent opportunities in the first period, and the third period was pretty even," commented Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "Eliminate those four shots in the second period and it's a very even hockey game."

A healthy Jury, guessed Grand, would have stopped three of those four second period Roseau shots that broke open a 1-1 hockey game.

Billy Yon started it by scoring from long range at 3:42. Steve Huglen beat Jury with a long slap shot at 5:46 and Eric Grafstrom converted a 2-on-1 rush at 6:27.

Thief River Falls received a momentary reprieve when Jim Thompson deflected in Steve Olson's slap shot just 20 seconds after Grafstrom scored to keep it close, 4-2.

But a quick 13 seconds later it was 5-2 as Andy Odegaard let loose with a slap shot as he crossed the blue line. It was the Ram's fourth goal on as many shots and Jury wasn't able to make a move on any of them. He left the game 40 seconds later in favor of back-up netminder Jeff Mongoven, who relieved Jury in a 5-2 loss at Crookston earlier in the week.

"No doubt about it, Jury wasn't up to par," acknowledged Roseau coach Gary Hokanson, "but those were good shots — in the corners. You'd have to be an awfully good goaltender to get a glove on any of them."

Roseau completed the scoring on a Richard Larson power play goal at 12:33.

Scoring started with a pair of first period power play goals. A fine bit of stickhandling by Jeff Ulrich set up Wade Hoppe at the corner of the Roseau net at 7:51, with Roseau's all-state defenseman Mark Huglen tying the game 1-1 on a lightning-quick slap shot at 10:47.

The win reversed an earlier 4-0 shutout the Rams suffered at the hands of Jury back on Jan. 19. But Hokanson couldn't be overly enthused about the decision because a first period collision in the corner saw defenseman Mark Vatnsdal break a bone in his leg. "I'd just as soon lose a game and have Vatnsdal with us," noted Hokanson, whose team has been battling injuries and illness all winter. "We just got to the point where he had five good defensemen; we had everybody on the ice for the first time," he said.

Fate hasn't been smiling on the Prowlers of late, either, as injuries struck Thompson (knee), Paul Drees (shoulder), Dave Geatz (hip), Jury (back) and on Saturday night, Brian Ramum (hip).

"The last ten days things have gone about as bad as things can for a team," explained Grand. "Injuries were a big factor. Roseau had theirs early and suffered with them. We've got ours now. Obviously a very-very significant part of our success is our goaltending. We have to find out what Billy's problem is and get it taken care of."

Jury likely won't see action this week as the Prowlers, now 10-5-1, host Hallock Tuesday and travel to Detroit Lakes Saturday.

Northmen Lose To UND 71-66

University of North Dakota junior varsity sank four free throws in the final minute and then added a long basket at the end Friday to collect a 71-66 basketball win over Northland community college in the UND fieldhouse in Grand Forks.

Forced to go without a single minute of pre-game warm-ups because of an unannounced change in game time, Northland struggled at the start as the Northmen shot just 35 per cent (11-for-31) in falling behind 30-25 at halftime.

A free throw by Mike Carriere put Northland ahead 66-65 with 47 seconds remaining in the game, but the Sioux, who out-scored the Northmen by nine points at the line, came up with their game-winning free throws at that point.

Terry Harris scored a game-high 22 points for the Northmen and Tony Smith added 13. Dan Schide led four North Dakota scorers in double figures with 18 points.

Northland finished with a 28-for-66, 42 per cent shooting night from the field and went 10-for-19 at the free throw line. North Dakota shot 45 per cent from the field, hitting 26 of 58 shots, and made 19 of 28 free throws. The Sioux won the battle of the boards 43-40 but also led in turnovers 24-18.

The loss dropped Northland's season record to 7-13.

Freshmen End Losing Streak At Nine Games

Lincoln high school freshman basketball team overcame a 14-point halftime deficit to beat Marshall County Central 65-62 Saturday morning, snapping a season-long nine-game losing streak.

Marshall County Central, a 67-58 winner over Thief River Falls earlier in the week, led 15-10 at the end of the first quarter and built a 41-27 halftime cushion. But Thief River Falls out-scored the visitors 21-8 in the third quarter to pull within 49-48.

Four Thief River Falls scorers reached double figures as Mark Gere scored 20 points, Steve Olson 18, Kirk Jenson 15 and Randy Naeseth 10. Ted Thompson led Marshall County Central with 17 points.

Thief River Falls will be at East Grand Forks Tuesday for a 4 p.m. game and will host Grafton Thursday at 3:30.

Crookston — TRF

Crookston took a 26-23 halftime edge and turned it into a 41-29 third quarter bulge Thursday en route to a 62-48 win over the Lincoln freshmen.

Steve Olson and Randy Naeseth scored 10 points apiece for Thief River Falls.

BILLY CHRISTIAN of the Warroad Lakers, star of the United States' gold medal-winning 1960 Olympic hockey team, showed he still has the competitive spirit as he tangled with an opponent during Friday's exhibition hockey game in the Thief River Falls sports arena matching the Lakers against the Japanese Olympic team. A large crowd was on hand to watch the TRFAHA-sponsored game, won by the Janapese 6-3.

Japanese Earn 6-3 Win Over Warroad

A near-capacity crowd was on hand Friday in the Thief River Falls sports arena to watch the Japanese Olympic hockey team, on its last stop before heading to Lake Placid, N.Y. and the 1980 Winter Games, skate by the Warroad Lakers 6-3 in an exhibition hockey game sponsored by the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA).

Good quickness and strong goaltending overcame poor shooting as the Japanese never trailer after 26-year-old forward Sadaki Honma scored on a quick release in front at 7:18 of the first period — just as a Warroad penalty was expiring.

Warroad's Tim McKinnon overpowered a Japanese defender to score from close range at 13:50 for a 1-1 tie. But Honma's second goal of the game, on a power play at 14:40 of the second period, and a breakaway goal by Yoshiaki Kyota two minutes later made it 4-2.

Player-coach Scott Marvin of the Lakers scored on a rebound at 5:35 of the third period, but 2½ minutes later Mikio Matsuda restored the two-goal Japanese edge.

Japan was skating two men short when Charlie Burggraf slipped behind the defense at 12:07 for a 4-3 game. But Japan answered with two goals in the final 2½ minutes as Yoshio Hoshino scored on a 2-on-1 rush at 18:38 and Hideo Sakurai broke into the clear for a breakaway goal at 19:04.

Warroad goalie Peter Waselovich came up with 31 saves. Takeshi Iwamoto and Minoru Misawa divided the Japanese goaltending duties, combining for 25 saves. Warroad took 11 of the game's 20 penalties.

Procedes from the game — after expenses — went to TRFAHA as the group kicked off its fund-raising projects to purchase an artificial ice plant in the old arena where they spent $12,000 on a summer remodeling project.

Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club got the fund-raising efforts off to a strong start by presenting TRFAHA with a check for $4,500 — money earned through the organization's efforts in producing a souvenir program for the 1978 Section 8 high school hockey tournament.

Slide Show Is Available From Wildlife Group

Preserving habitat — the key to conserving wildlife — is the theme of a new color slide show produced by the National Wildlife Federation for showing to classrooms, conservation groups and the general public.

The presentation consists of three dozen color slides, a music-backed cassette recording, and a teacher's guide containing the printed script and background information concerning many of the topics covered in the show.

The show helps illustrate the meaning of this year's national wildlife week theme — "Save A Place For Wildlife" — by describing several common kinds of wildlife habitat and explaining what techniques are being used to provide and improve habitat, with special emphasis on attempts to rescue endangered species.

The slide show emphasizes that the future of our wildlife depends upon a willingness of Americans to "Save A Place For Wildlife." Although it focuses on the 1980 wildlife week theme the slide show is suitable for showing to any audience at any time of year. The show is available for $9.95 from the National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Northwomen Win 41-39

Northland community college women's basketball team will close out its 1979-80 season this week, beginning with a final home appearance by the Northwomen tonight (Monday) against Fergus Falls. Game time is 6 p.m. The Northwomen end the season later this week with games Friday at Brainerd and Saturday at Anoka-Ramsey.

First win over a Northwest Division foe was notched by the Northwomen Thursday in a 41-39 victory at Crookston, reversing a 57-52 loss to the Trojans two weeks earlier and improving their season record to 4-13.

"We played in spurts both offensively and defensively," reported Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "They played some of their best basketball of the year at times. It was a good victory."

Northland led 18-16 at the end of a low-scoring first half and that two-point spread proved to be the winning margin. Leading 40-39 at the end, Northland held the ball for 23 seconds until Karen Sparby was fouled with just five seconds remaining. She made her first free throw attempt to close out the victory.

Freshman Julie Easton scored 10 points and pulled down 17 rebounds for the Northwomen who also got a 16-rebound game out of Julie Anderson as the visitors built a 58-55 edge on the boards. Patty Biebl scored a game-high 15 points for Crookston.

Neither team shot very well. Northland was 19-for-78 for 24 per cent from the field and just 3-for-13 at the free throw line. Crookston was 18-for-72 for 23 per cent from the field and 3-for-6 at the line. The Trojans, in addition to being out-rebounded, topped the turnover charts, too, 26-20.

NORTHLAND COMMUNITY COLLEGE goalie Jeff Reese faced Crookston's Mark Perreault one-on-one and came up with a second period save during Wednesday's MJCAA hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. The Trojans completed a four-game sweep over the Northmen during a series of month-long Wednesday night meetings with a 12-2 triumph.

Trojans Complete Sweep Of Northmen With 12-2 Victory

Energy shortage continues to take its toll on the Northland community college hockey team. The Northmen, down just 3-2 midway through the second period of Wednesday's MJCAA encounter with area rival Crookston, fell victim to the numbers game again and wound up on the short end of a 12-2 rout.

"We just ran out of gas," explained Northland coach Bob Lundbohm who was going with 10 skaters.

It was the fourth straight Wednesday night loss to the Trojans who took the earlier games 14-1, 10-5 and 15-6.

Northland led it at the start when Scott Bergland deflected in Rick Harger's slap shot from the point at 5:01 of the first period. The puck trickled through goalie Mike Ogaard's pads and crawled across the goal line.

Crookston tied it three minutes later when defense*man Dean Byfuglien was* not challenged as he lumbered the length of the ice and beat Northland goalie Jeff Reese from point-blank range.

Mark Perreault put Crookston ahead 2-1 with a close range backhand at 17:24.

Byfuglien struck again at 4:41 of the second period when he snapped off a 10-foot wrist shot for a 3-1 game.

Prettiest goal of the night brought Northland back to within 3-2 as Jay Kverno and Mike Olson exchanged passes on a 2-on-1 rush. Kyerno's last-second pass was perfect for Olson's goal-mouth tip at 11:03.

But that was all the scoring for the Northmen who quickly lost ground when Mickey Kaiser beat a screened Reese from the point; Jeff Goos came in alone; Murray Miller duplicated Kaiser's goal; and Robin Brekken's deflection trickled across the goal line at 19:43 for a 7-2 cushion heading into the second intermission.

THIEF RIVER FALLS defenseman Steve Olson cleared the puck out from in front of his own net as goalie Jeff Mongoven looked on during Saturday's high school hockey game against Roseau in the Thief River Falls sports arena. The Prowlers lost to the Rams 6-2 in a battle of the top two teams in the Section 8 point standings. Thief River Falls will host Hallock Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the sports arena.

Nordics Defeat Eagles At The Free Throw Line

By his own admission, Marshall County Central girls basketball coach Tom Mjelde says his team's free throw shooting has been "off and on" this season. It was definitely "on" Thursday, however, as the Nordics sank 20 of 27 free throws in a 52-42 win over Grygla in a battle of District 32 contenders at Grygla.

The 74 per cent shooting at the line was the Nordics' second best free throw night of the year. Their best showing was a 23-for-30, 77 per cent effort back on Jan. 17 — against Grygla. Marshall County Central won that one 51-36.

"I don't know why, but we shoot free throws really well against them," noted Mjelde.

The win improved the Nordics' record to 13-2 and dropped the Eagles to 11-3, with two of those losses coming at the hands of Marshall County Central.

"We got beat at the free throw line," noted Grygla coach Bill Radeunz. "I thought we played all right at times, but they got the free throws."

Marshall County Central built an 11-point, 30-19 halftime lead but had to weather a Grygla rally in the third quarter that brought the Eagles to within 30-29 before they lost ground and trailed 36-29 going into the final period.

"It was a good game. I was pleased with our performance," said Mjelde who was particularly happy with the play of guards Jill Johnson and Sue Olson who handled the Grygla press and combined for 35 points — 20 by Johnson and 15 by Olson. Rosalyn Knutson added 10 points and nine rebounds to the Nordics' attack and Ann Hanson pulled down 10 caroms. Sherri Anderson and Jill Saurdiff scored 13 and 12 points, respectively for the Eagles.

From the field the two teams were nearly even as Marshall County Central hit 16 of 49 shots for 33 per cent and Grygla made 18 of 57 attempts for 32 per cent. But the Eagles were just 6-for-16 at the free throw line.

"They have a good team. They're the best team we've faced," said Radeunz. "We'll probably get another shot at them in the district tournaments."

Marshall County Central was scheduled to host Roseau tonight (Monday). The Nordics will play Lake of the Woods at Baudette Saturday. Grygla will have a busy three-game homestand this week, playing Lake of the Woods Tuesday, Warroad Friday and Middle River Saturday.

Warren's size provided the Ponies with a rebounding edge they used to their advantage in a 54-45 win over Plummer Thursday.

Kim Brekke led the Ponies' inside game with 16 points and 22 rebounds, including a bundle of offensive boards. Diane Fisher of Plummer matched Brekke for game-high scoring honors with 22 points.

Plummer led it at the start, 9-4, but surrendered nine straight quarter-ending points to trail 13-9 at the first stop. Warren pulled away to a 32-21 halftime lead and sat on a 40-28 third quarter cushion.

Warren shot 54 per cent from the field for the game, hitting 23 of 43 attempts. Plummer made 18 of 43 shots for 42 per cent. From the free throw line the Ponies were 8-for-15 and the Cardinals were 9-for-15.

Roseau 34
Middle River 26

Roseau scored just nine points in the second half but still defeated Middle River 34-29 Thursday.

The loss, while lowering the Skippers' record to 7-7, cost Middle River the use of two ball players as Trudy Christofferson left with a back injury and Dawn Nelson, one of the area's top ball players, hurt an ankle.

"It was a bad night," sighed Middle River coach Tom Neibauer.

Roseau jumped out to a 16-2 first quarter lead and took a 25-13 cushion into halftime. The Rams scored just one point in the third quarter but still led 26-19.

Middle River faces the prospects of playing three games this week without Christofferson or Nelson as the Skippers visit Warroad tonight (Monday), drive to Badger Friday and travel to Grygla Thursday.

Dan Schoonhoven, Poissant, Kevin Grochow and Mark Isaacson won the event in 1:52.9 to give the Prowlers a strong start in their 92-70 win over the Roughriders. Thief River Falls closes out its 1979-80 home schedule Thursday against rival Fosston at 7 p.m. at Franklin.

Swimmers Defeat Roughriders 92-70

Steve Soli of Grand Forks Red River set two Franklin middle school pool records Thursday, but Thief River Falls still came out a 92-70 winner over the Roughriders in high school swimming.

Soli, Tim Kieffer and Humberto Gallego were all double event winners for the visitors, with Soli setting new pool records with a 2:06.1 in the 200-yard individual medley and a 56.6 in the 100-yard butterfly.

But Thief River Falls, even without several front-liners in the line-up, still had enough depth to out-score the Roughriders for the Prowlers' fourth win in five dual meet outings.

The Prowlers won five events. Randy Henrickson Leads Goodridge Past Grygla

Goodridge beat rival Grygla 55-44, Friday in high school basketball behind a remarkable all-round performance by senior Randy Henrickson who scored 19 points, pulled down a whopping 26 rebounds and handed out four assists.

Henrickson, who missed much of the 1979-80 season with an injury, proved himself fit for post-season tournament play with one of the top performances in the Polar Conference this winter. He came up with 21 rebounds on the offensive boards as the Huskies out-rebounded the Eagles 53-27.

"We hit the boards really well," acknowledged Goodridge coach Rick Nelson whose team built a 25-14 halftime lead and carried a 39-25 edge into the fourth quarter. "We played good defense in the first half," he noted.

Rick Cullen joined Henrickson in double figures with 10 points. Gene Lunsetter led Grygla with 15 points but the Eagles' high-scoring Randy Larson netted just five.

Grygla could muster just a 24 per cent shooting mark from the field, hitting only 16 of 66 shots. Goodridge made 17 of 42 tries for 38 per cent. There were lots of free throws in the loosely played game as Goodridge made 21 of 33 free throw attempts and Grygla sank 12 of 25 gift tosses.

Goodridge, 4-13, will end its 1979-80 schedule tonight (Monday) by hosting Oslo. Grygla finished 3-15.

Middle River 48

Lake of the Woods completed an unbeaten North Border Conference season and the Bears' 6-6 senior Todd Robinson joined the 1,000-point club Friday in a 78-48 rout of Middle River.

Robinson entered the game with 996 points and quickly reached the coveted 1,000-point plateau by scoring the Bears' first two baskets.

That produced a strong response from the Baudette crowd, reported Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "They just went nuts," he said. "He (Robinson) scored those first two baskets, then all of a sudden we were behind 13-3. They just played a perfect game."

It was 27-8 before the first quarter came to an end. Lake of the Woods enjoyed a 45-24 halftime lead and pushed it to 67-33 after three quarters.

Robinson finished with 15 points and was just one of four Lake of the Woods scorers in double figures, a list headed by Tom Omerza's 18 points. Scott McKeever scored a game-high 20 points for the Skippers who will take a 14-3 record into their regular season finale Tuesday against Karlstad.

Second Bald Eagle Survey Is Completed

National wildlife federation has completed its second annual midwinter bald eagle survey. More than 2,600 individuals, including 44 regional coordinators, as well as 47 state and seven federal agencies cooperated in the count, conducted January 2 through 20 in the "lower 48" states.

During last year's count, 9,793 bald eagles were spotted — nearly twice the number counted in any previous survey of the endangered national bird. According to William S. Clark, director of the national wildlife federation's Raptor Information center, which sponsors the survey, more eagles will probably be found this year, due to better coordination, more knowledgeable counters and more intensive coverage of some areas of the country.

The survey is held in January because eagle movements are at a minimum and more birds are found in the lower 48 states during that time than at any other time of the year. "Most of the bald eagles we'll spot will be 'immigrants'," Clark explained. "These birds fly down from Alaska and Canada when cold weather interferes with their hunting and feeding north of the border."

Eagles are counted only in the 48 continguous states because the birds are plentiful in Alaska and not found in Hawaii. In 1978 the U.S. Interior Department listed the national bird as "endangered" in 43 of the 48 states, and "threatened" in five others — Minnesota, Michigan, Wisconsin, Oregon and Washington.

Experts estimate that there is a year-round or "resident" population of about 5,000 bald eagles in the lower 48 states.

Clark hopes that a comparison of this year's survey results with last year's will help pinpoint winter roosting sites and reveal valuable information about the bald eagle's habitat needs during the winter.

The count for last year's survey was first announced as 9,836 bald eagles. That figure was reduced by 43 when some duplications were found in an analysis of the field reports.

Federal agencies cooperating with the NWF bald eagle survey are the fish and wildlife service, bureau of land management, forest service, corps of engineers, the Tennessee valley authority, national park service and the water and power resources service.

States Receive $117.3 Million Wildlife Funds

More than $27 million in federal aid funds for sport fish and wildlife restoration and hunter safety programs has been apportioned for distribution by Secretary of the Interior Cecil D. Andrus. This brings to $117.3 million the amount made available to the states this fiscal year by the federal government, which is $7.7 million more than the $109.3 million of fiscal year 1979.

"These funds will be used by each of the 50 states and the governments of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands and American Samoa to finance fish and wildlife programs," Andrus said. "Of the total funds available, $89 million is for wildlife restoration and $28 million is for fish restoration."

Federal aid funds are made available to the states in two apportionments annually as tax receipts become available at the Treasury Department. This year a preliminary apportionment of $89.7 million was made on October 5, 1979, for fiscal year 1980. The second apportionment, announced recently, represents an additional $27.3 million.

Funds for wildlife restoration and hunter safety programs come from an 11 per cent excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition, a 10 per cent tax on handguns and an 11 per cent tax on archery equipment. Distribution of wildlife restoration funds is based on a formula which takes into account the number of hunting license holders and the land area of each state.

These funds may be used on such projects as the acquisition of land suitable for habitat, development and management of habitat, and research in wildlife management.

Hunter safety funds, distributed according to the relative population of each State, may be used by the state wildlife agencies for hunter education programs including construction, operation and maintenance of public target ranges. Or, at the state agency's discretion, these funds may also be used for wildlife restoration.

Fish restoration funds come from a 10 per cent excise tax on fishing rods, reels, creels, and artificial baits, lures and flies. Distribution of the funds is made according to a formula based on the number of fishing license holders and the land area of each state, including coastal and Great Lakes waters.

These funds are used by the state agency to purchase land and water areas for development or rehabilitation of such areas, development of access sites and facilities for fishermen, and for research in fishery management.

Wildlife Habitat Emphasized For National Wildlife Week

When President Franklin D. Roosevelt proclaimed a new national observance, wildlife restoration week, in 1938, the nation had only recently learned an important environmental lesson from its disastrous Dust Bowl: Without adequate protection, our natural resources could be quickly lost forever. It seemed appropriate that the theme of the week in March sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation, should be habitat protection.

It's now 42 years later, and the week, held this year March 16 through 22, is called national wildlife week. Once again, the theme — "Save A Place For Wildlife" — emphasizes habitat protection.

Over the years, national wildlife week themes have varied, from endangered species in general, as in 1956 and 1974, when the themes were "Save Endangered Wildlife" and "We Care About Endangered Wildlife" to specificic endangered animals, as in 1952, when the Wildlife Week theme was "Save the Key Deer."

Other themes have stressed environmental problems: "Chemical Pesticides Are Poison," in 1963 and "We All Need Clean Water," in 1977; and the importance of outdoor activities: "Protect Our Public Lands," in 1958 and "America Needs Outdoor Recreation," in 1964. In 1972 ecology was emphasized, "Ecology: A Wild Idea", and in 1966, with "Protect Natural Beauty," the focus was on aesthetics.

But habitat protection has remained an important and recurring theme. As Thomas L. Kimball, executive vice president of the national wildlife federation, explains: "It's an issue that never goes away. Very simply, without food, water, cover, and a place to raise young — habitat — wildlife cannot survive."

We've come a long way since the Dust Bowl swept across the country, but unfortunately, many of the nation's remaining wildlife habitats are still in danger. For example:

+The nation once boasted 400,000 square miles of eastern tallgrass prairie, stretching from Minnesota into Texas and as far east as Indiana. Today, only one per cent of those prairies remains.

+U.S. Soil Conservation Service has estimated that there were originally 127 million acres of wetlands in the lower 48 states. Half of them have been obliterated, and it is estimated that 138,000 acres of wetlands are drained each year.

+For years, coastal cities have dumped polluting sewage into the biggest wildlife habitat of all — the ocean. For example, more than 130 million cubic feet of sludge are dumped each year into a stretch of ocean south of Long Island and east of New Jersey. Biologists have found that pollutants in the sludge can become concentrated in edible seafood.

+More than two million acres of ravaged strip-mined land are waiting to be reclaimed. Some 800,000 acres more are mined each year.

"We can't turn back the clock, but with careful planning we can save the nation's remaining wildlife habitats," Kimball emphasized. "We can 'Save A Place For Wildlife'. But we need everyone's help and concern. If you care about wildlife, then you must care about habitat."

Screen actor and environmentalist Robert Redford is serving as chairman of the wildlife week observance for the fourth consecutive year.

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

Predict Shortages In Teacher Market

Supply of teachers in Minnesota is falling five times faster than the supply of students and some elementary and high schools may soon be looking at a teacher shortage for the first time in nearly a decade.

That's the conclusion of a report issued this week by the Minnesota institutional teacher placement association, a group representing career placement offices at all 25 of the public and private colleges and universities in the state that grant teaching degrees.

"With all the news we've been getting about teacher layoffs and declining student enrollments, it seems a bit presumptuous to ring an alarm now about teacher shortages," said Mel Schmitz, president of MITPA and director of the career planning and placement office at Moorhead state university. "But some school administrators tell us they're already finding it difficult to fill some teaching vacancies. And according to the figures we have now, the situation is definitely going to worsen."

In 1972, according to the placement report, Minnesota colleges and universities produced 7,809 teacher candidates, the highest ever for the schools. Since then, however, the numbers have been dropping steadily. Last year colleges and universities awarded only 3,360 teaching degrees, less than half the number in 1972.

Meanwhile, the student population in Minnesota elementary and secondary schools dropped only nine per cent, and projections show that the number of teachers will continue to decline at a pace four to five times faster than the student population.

"We're seeing a complete turnaround in supply and demand," Schmitz said. "It seems crazy. Just a few years ago we had too many teachers. Now we have too few. The problem is, circumstances have changed."

For the past eight years college students were told that the job market for teachers was in a severe slump. "That's pretty much been the case," Schmitz said.

In 1972 when the job market was flush with teachers, only 50 per cent of them were being placed in full time teaching jobs.

"College students caught on fast," Schmitz said, "and many of them turned to other careers."

"Starting teacher salaries in Minnesota schools averaged $10,300 last year," Schmitz said. "That's anywhere from $2,000 to $9,000 below the average starting salary for jobs outside of education.

"Contrary to popular belief, the education degree is marketable outside the teaching field," Schmitz added. "Already over 25 per cent of the teaching graduates in Minnesota are finding satisfactory jobs outside of education."

Last year, according to the MITPA report, over 96 per cent of the 3,360 education graduates in Minnesota found jobs — 65 per cent in full time teaching positions; almost 10 per cent in part-time positions that could lead to full time work, and the rest (about 25 per cent) outside of education.

Only three per cent of the degreed teachers who graduated last year are still looking for work, Schmitz said, "and I think most of them could have found jobs if they didn't restrict themselves to their own favorable geographic locations."

Elementary and high schools are expected to see shortages in math, science, industrial education, special education and music teachers this year, traditionally the most marketable degrees in education. But even the typically overcrowded fields — physical education, social sciences and art — are going to break open soon, Schmitz said.

"Right now, with a relative shortage of teachers, we have a balanced placement market," Schmitz said. "But it isn't going to last. We expect more teachers will continue to leave education for higher paying jobs. That, coupled with retirements and a thinning out of new graduates means some serious shortages will start cropping up in our schools."

Already, he said, recruiters from Minnesota elementary and high schools are visiting campus placement offices. "We haven't seen much of that since 1971."

Education departments and school districts in Illinois, Indiana, Montana, Texas and elsewhere are even checking with Minnesota placement offices this year. "The rush is on," Schmitz said.

Nearly 50 per cent of the teachers trained in Minnesota get their education at six of the state universities, according to the placement report; 29 per cent from the 16 private schools in the state; and just over 20 per cent at the University of Minnesota and its two branches.

Women entering the teaching market last year outnumbered men two to one, even more so at the elementary level where they outnumbered men 1,220 to 174. That ratio, however, hasn't changed much in the past decade, Schmitz said.

Over 70 per cent of the elementary school, 57 per cent of the high school and 95 per cent of the special education graduates found teaching jobs last year.

Schmitz said that grade school student enrollment leveled off in recent years, explaining the larger percentage of placements on the elementary level. But high school enrollments are still falling and won't settle down for several more years.

New federal and state laws mandating special education programs in the schools has created a wide-open market in that field for teachers.

According to the report, teachers with degrees in chemistry, special education, the sciences, mathematics and English found it easier getting hired in Minnesota last year, with 70 to 80 per cent of them finding full time teaching jobs.

Teachers with degrees in health, Spanish and art found job hunting more difficult. Under 40 per cent of them ended up with full time teaching jobs.

But Schmitz expects that even the most crowded teaching fields will thin out soon.

"We've been trying to tell the colleges, legislators and public about this trend for the past three years," Schmitz said, "but there was such a glut of teachers on the market just a few years back, nobody believed us. Maybe when the schools start feeling the crunch this year, we'll get our point across."

Figures for the MITPA report were based on graduates who registered with the placement offices at their schools. Over 93 per cent of the graduates registered last year.

The U.S. economy will create nearly 20 million new jobs by 1990, and well over half will be in white collar occupations, according to estimates published by the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Agassiz Health Agency Moves Offices To ND

Agassiz Health systems agency has moved its offices to 31 South Third Street, Grand Forks, ND.

Agency's function is to bring local people together to identify their most serious health problems and to work out solutions to them. It also provides an opportunity for local citizens to express their opinions on how federal health dollars should be spent in the area. Citizens from 22 counties in northwestern Minnesota and northeastern North Dakota, helped form this private, non-profit agency.

The agency is governed by residents of the 22 counties it serves. Physicians and school teachers, businessmen and nurses, local government officials and mental health workers are just a few of the many types of local citizens who serve without pay on the Agassiz HSA board of directors.

Agassiz Health systems agency studies issues and problems and makes decisions about what are our most pressing health problems, what are the best ways to tackle them, who should carry out the actions, and whether we can afford what needs to be done. These decisions are made during a planning process that begins with the study of data about the major causes of death, disease, injury and illness.

Area citizens help to point out critical health needs by taking part in county meetings, health interview surveys, and public hearings. Both long and short range steps that should be taken are proposed. All of these findings are published in the Agassiz health plan which is updated on a yearly basis.

The agency also makes recommendations on all federally-funded projects relating to health in our area. In short, the goal of the agency is to make sure that you and your family can get quality health care — when you need it — at a cost you can afford.

Public Reviews Proposals On Conservation

U.S. department of agriculture has started a 60-day public review period for several proposals the department has made for possible changes in the nation's soil and water conservation programs.

This review period, which began January 28, follows a two-year study and appraisal of the nation's soil and water. More than 100,000 citizens, including 5,200 Minnesotans, participated in meetings in 1978 which started the resource appraisal.

USDA has proposed seven conservation strategies that are based on the findings of that appraisal. Appraisal and program proposals are results of a 1977 law, the soil and water resources conservation act.

Documents containing the resource appraisal and proposed conservation strategies are available for public review in soil conservation service or agricultural stabilization and conservation offices Monday through Friday until the review period ends March 28.

In its resource appraisal, USDA found that the nation's cropland and forestland has been decreasing at a rate of two and a half million acres a year. Those acres are being converted to housing and industrial developments, highways and other nonagricultural uses. The appraisal also shows that two billion tons of topsoil erode from the nation's farmland each year, and that nearly half the sediment in the nation's waters is soil that has eroded from cropland.

Included in USDA's proposal for changes in the conservation programs is a possibility of federal and state laws that would require farmers to control soil erosion. Also included is a suggestion that farmers might be required to protect their land from excessive erosion before receiving crop insurance, price support payments, low interest loans and other assistance from USDA's farm programs.

Another of USDA's alternate strategies is that farmers could be offered stronger incentives to practice soil conservation. Such incentives could include tax reductions, cash bonuses and low interest loans.

Local USDA officials are encouraging citizens to visit the office, review the documents and make written comments to the USDA Response Analysis Center, P.O. Box 888, Athens, GA 30603.

Local USDA offices will be conducting an open house during the review period to further explain the resource data, proposed conservation strategies and the response procedure. Further details on the meeting will be announced later.

Agassiz HSA Committee To Meet Thursday

Agassiz Health Systems Agency project review committee will meet at 9 a.m. on Thursday, February 14 at the American Inn at East Grand Forks. Under discussion will be two proposals for start-up funding of home health agencies. Home health agencies provide skilled nursing care plus other services such as home health aides and speech therapy. Availability of such care may decrease the length of hospital stays or prevent long term care institutionalization.

Grant applicants are: 1) Prairieland home health agency, a joint venture of the Rolla community hospital — Rollette county home health agency, Rolette community hospital and the Towner county memorial hospital to expand home health services into Towner county, North Dakota. Projected budget is $96,186 of which $58,546 is the federal portion.

2) Eddy-Foster county home health services, a project of City Hospital, New Rockford and the Carrington hospital, Carrington to provide home health services to Eddy and Foster counties, North Dakota. Frederal grand request is $22,000 as part of a proposed $55,813.68 budget.

All Agassiz meetings are open to the public and interested citizens are encouraged to call Mary Ellen Preston, Agassiz Health Systems Agency, 31 South 3rd Street, Box 129, Grand Forks, North Dakota, 58201. (701-746-0441.

Senator Acts To Cut OSHA Inspections

Sen. Rudy Buschwitz has co-sponsored legislation cutting back OSHA inspections in workplaces with good safety records.

"The bill," Sen. Boschwitz said, "would provide partial exemptions from occupational safety and health administration (OSHA) inspections to those businesses and industries with a good history of accident prevention. Limiting the activities of the OSHA inspector will not only restrict bureaucratic rulemaking, but will allow the agency to concentrate enforcement on hazardous workplaces."

"Research has shown that OSHA has failed to reduce the most serious accidents resulting in lost workdays," Boschwitz said. "However, in enforcing its rules on all businesses regardless of their safety record, the agency has generated growing resentment on the part of both employers and employees.

"If OSHA is going to be effective, it must concentrate its efforts in those areas where accidents are most frequent and most serious. This legislation will allow an exemption for those businesses which have been accident-free," he said, "thus allowing the agency to put more effort into those areas with high rates of injury."

Nesland Dairy Herd Leads Pennington DHIA In '79

Knute Nesland's dairy herd from rural Thief River Falls picked off three of the top awards presented when the Pennington dairy herd improvement association (DHIA) held its annual meeting Monday evening at the Eagles hall.

The Nesland herd had the top production average for 1979 with average production on 34 cows of 17,577 pounds of milk and 651 pounds of butterfat. In addition, the herd won the "Premier Dairyman" award given by the Pennington county Farm Bureau for the herd with the highest three-year average (613 pounds) and had the best producing two-year-old in the association. The two-year-old completed her first lactation with 816 pounds of butterfat, ranking 11th overall in the association for the year.

Mylo Carlson of Angus had the top producing cow for the year, a Holstein which produced 18,903 pounds of milk and had an exceptionally high test of 4.8 for total butterfat production of 908 pounds.

Duane Krohn of Viking won the trophy for greatest herd average increase as his herd average gained 58 pounds from 579 in 1978 to 637 in 1979. The Krohn herd ranked third in production average behind Nesland's 651 and Carlson's 643.

Lowell Hamrick of Angus was reelected president of the county association with Roy Nelson of Goodridge elected vice president and Roger Walter of Plummer reelected secretary-treasurer. John Hess of Argyle was elected to the board for a three-year term to succeed Roger Mickelson of Goodridge. Gene Nelson of Viking is the fifth members of the board.

Annual report of Jerry Hamre, supervisor for the association, showed a list of 201 cows which completed 305-day or less lactations with 625 pounds or more of butterfat. There were 16 cows with production of 800 pounds or more and 50 others which topped the 700-pound mark.

Eighteen of the herds in the association had averages of more than 500 pounds of butterfat. Following Nesland, Carlson and Krohn were Warren and Lowell Hamrick with 613 pounds; Myron Erickson, 599; Gene Nelson, 592; Duane Vatsaas, 578; Robert Rausch, 577; Marvin Koop, 575; Pearson Bros., 561; Orlan Stolaas, 554; Gordon Wetterlund and Son, 554; Roger Walter, 553; Clarence Swanson, 551; Hanson Heritage Dairy (Martin Hanson), 535; Merle Lundeen, 521; Chester and Steve Gast, 518; and Darrow Lundeen and Sons, 513.

Rolling herd average for the Pennington association of 522 pounds of butterfat was only one pound below the 523-pound state average. Association members used more dry forage (6,540 pounds to the state average of 3,877 pounds) per cow but less hay silage (1,994 pounds to 2,361 pounds) and less corn silage (1,593 pounds to 2,151 pounds). Total feed cost of $425 per cow in the association was substantially under the $582 state-wide average and income over feed cost of $1,150 was well above the $1,021 state average.

The association financial report showed income of $15,858 for the past year and expenses of $14,862.

Drama Dep't. Presents Three One-Act Plays

Lincoln high school drama department will present "A Night of One-Acts" this Friday at the high school auditorium with 7:30 p.m. curtain time. Plays include, "The Ledge, the Ledger, and the Legend," by Paul Elliott, "If It don't Hurt, It Ain't Love," by John Carroll, and "Louder, I Can't Hear You," by Bill Gleason.

All the one-acts deal with modern people in possible situations. The first, "The Ledge, the Ledger and the Legend," looks at our free enterprise society, and features Bob Kinaman portraying an "average" suicidal individual. But while making his attempt to throw himself off a ledge, a representative of "Suicides To Go" agency invades his ledge to instruct him.

The second one-act, "If It Don't Hurt, It Ain't Love," is a gripping but warm glimpse of a girl (Kristie Hanson) who is dying of terminal cancer. She seems to have everything in perspective until her mother and boyfriend clash on how to treat the situation.

"Louder, I Can't Hear You" is the story of a typical American family. But in this family, Marge (Jan Swanson) the mother, experiences a magnified lack of communication surrounding her. It seems that people talk, but never hear each other. The play is tragic but contains a bit of slap-stick comedy.

The plays are directed by Karyn Enestvedt. Student directors include Kathy Achenbach, Leah Peres, and Kathy Kjos, with Kathy Achenbach taking full direction of "The Ledge, the Ledger, and the Legend."

At Annual Dinner Monday . . .

Penn's Talk To Chamber Earns Standing Ovation

While the 66th annual meeting and dinner-dance of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce held its usual interest Monday evening, it was the unscheduled talk by John Penn, recently relieved as chief executive officer of Arctic Enterprises, which turned the session into a unique and especially memorable event.

Earlier in the day Penn had requested and received permission to make some comments at the banquet program that evening. His introduction was warmly received by the approximately 170 members and spouses in attendance and the response to his talk was a standing ovation.

Penn said he wanted to put people at ease about talking to him following his firing from the top executive post with the community's largest industry. It is an event in his life he accepts, he said, and he feels privileged to have been able to head an international company while living in the community of Thief River Falls.

Through successes and setbacks over the years, Penn said he "never would have made it without the Lord. I know the Lord has a plan for me and I want to follow it," he said. He introduced his wife, Mim, and publicly thanked her for sharing in good times and bad times of his business career and her understanding during the many hours he had to spend away from home and family.

"But I asked for time tonight to talk about two very unique things — Arctic Enterprises and Thief River Falls," he said. "Arctic is part of the only industry which is 75 to 80 per cent dependent upon snowfall. It's sort of like riding a bicycle. When the road is smooth, you can sail along. But when you hit a rut in the road and fall, it's so hard to get back up and get going again."

He pointed out that the company expects substantial losses for the quarter and that it has marketed a product which will require some recalls for dealer-installed changes. But he said the company is not unique in this situation, indicating that Ford Motor company in January finally sold more automobiles than it recalled and that Ford expected to lose $1 billion on its American operations this year.

"It is sad that many friends will have to leave this community," he said about the cuts made in Arctic Enterprises personnel. "It's too bad in a way that people aren't like machines; you could just unplug them and set them aside until you need them again.

"But people are what make a company survive and there are very competent people involved in Arctic Enterprises. I am still a director of the company and my heart is still there. I will remain a director as long as I feel I can be of some help to the company."

Turning to concerns of the community, he expressed the belief that Thief River Falls is not a one company town. "Thief River Falls is a lot stronger than just Arctic Enterprises," he said. "While the company payroll is important to the community, you have survived before Arctic Enterprises grew here and you will continue to survive through this current set-back.

"And this is what I think makes Thief River Falls unique: While you can feel sympathy and compassion for the people who have lost employment, the only therapy that will work for you is to go back to work and forget about that plant on the west edge of town. There are capable people out there who are well paid to handle the affairs of the company. Do your very best to manage your own enterprises and Thief River Falls will always prosper."

Dale Dillon was welcomed as the new president of the chamber of commerce for the coming year and presented a specially-created plaque by past president Richard (Bud) Evans. Dillon awarded a past president's plaque to Evans after the latter reviewed the past year's activities and presented committee chairman awards.

Recognized as committee chairmen were: Dwight Tang-

NON-TRADITIONAL as well as traditional awards were made at the annual dinner of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce Monday evening at the Best Western Inn. Richard (Bud) Evans (left) was the recipient of the more traditional past president's plaque in recognition of his completion of the 1979-80 term as president. Incoming president Dale Dillon, owner of Paint & Glass Supply company, received the non-traditional but appropriate creation by Mike Trudeau, Northland community college art instructor. Awards were also presented to committee chairmen and directors completing their terms of service.

Council Settles Airport, Planning Suggestions

A full house dominated last night's Thief River Falls city council meeting in which various concerned citizens brought their appeals before city council members.

Jack Quinlivan, city planned, appeared before council members at the meeting's beginning to present planning commission recommendations made at a recent meeting. Variance requests pertained to land owned by Ervin Kiesz, Russell McKercher, John Longfellow and Ted Berglund. The request was made to transfer parcels of land among the four concerned parties, thus giving Kiesz and Berglund access to the road running into the parcels of land. Alderman Dr. Don Goodrich introduced the resolution to grant the variance request, and it carried, with Robert Wurst, a city attorney, reminding council members that the matter was "an access problem that had to be rectified."

Special use permit request by Mick Gjovik of Allwood, Inc. to turn two duplexes into four-plexes was denied. Matter included a petition from neighbors within 350 feet of the property in question, who were in opposition of the building.

Variance request to the non-conforming use of section of the municipal zoning ordinace by Dale Wennberg of Wennberg, Inc. to allow the building of two additions to his existing building was approved by city council members following the introduction of a resolution by alderman Bill Penning. Need for additional space was a major reason for the request, according to Quinlivan.

The recommendation to approve the proposed sign ordinance in Thief River Falls that has been gone over since last July, according to Quinlivan, was tabled for further consideration.

"The sign ordinance recommendation has involved three hearings, and we now have the ordinance prepared for review," Quinlivan said.

Linda Rethemeier, project director of the senior meals and activity program, explained the present senior meals program in Thief River Falls to city council members. Senior meals currently provides meals to 60 participants a day, with council action now permitting 70 meals a day.

Item not on the agenda involved Joan Melgaard's plea to council members concerning the home at 704 North Main, near her home at 103 East Seventh street. Question involved what might be done with the home and its occupants, who have various charges against them, including disturbing the peace.

Ken Froschheiser, chief of police, appeared before the council members to further discuss the issue. "Before a conviction can be made in court," he said, "law requires that concerned parties must be warned two or three times." At this point, the parties have been warned, and charges have been made, now people are needed to testify to the issue.

Further appeal made before council members was brought by Scott Benson, regarding the home at 209 North Duluth owned by Mrs. Lupe Jarshaw. The home that was previously located on the lot where Hardee's is now located was moved to the Jarshaw property in June and presently remains on blocks in the yard.

"We have talked to the city planner to convince him to do whatever he can to resolve the issue," Benson said. "We are mainly concerned with safety and appearnace in the area." Benson lives at 203 North Duluth.

A 90-day limit to tear down the home already situated on the property has been issued, following which time the city may enter with bulldozers to remove the home.

BPW Club Is Searching For YCW Candidates

Thief River Falls Business and Professional Women's club (BPW Club) is in the process of selecting a young career woman to represent Thief River Falls at the BPW district meeting to be held in Walker on April 12.

The young career woman's program is the Business and Professional Woman's way of honoring successful young career women while introducing them to the ideals and standards of the National Federation. The program, in addition to emphasizing the outstanding achievements of the young careerist, provides BPW members with the opportunity of sharing ideas, experience and expertise through social interaction and planned programs.

The search for a young career woman begins in a screening process at the local club level. The Thief River Falls finalist will be chosen at the March meeting. The winner will then proceed to the district level on April 12 at Walker and to the state level in Minneapolis. At state level, one candidate is selected by a panel of three judges to represent the state at the National BPW convention. There is no competition at the national level. All will be honored during several days of activities.

The winning candidate's financial expenses to the district competition will be assumed by the Thief River Falls BPW club. If chosen to represent the district, all financial expenses to the state will be assumed by the district.

There are four qualifications for eligibility as a candidate. 1) Must be between 21 and 30 years of age. 2) Must be or have been employed for one year, full-time, in her profession; 3) Must be outstanding scholastically, in her community or in church work; 4) Must be living, working, training or continuing her education in the state of Minnesota.

The local club is asking for assistance from business and community people in obtaining prospective candidates. For further information about the Young Career Women program or for nominating a candidate, call Phyliss Olson, 681-1230, or Vicki Erickson, 681-1930.

An informational meeting, to meet and talk with all prospective candidates, will be held Saturday, February 23, at 2 p.m., at the Best Western.

Council Takes Action Tues. On Planning

is to force someone to do something he may not be able to do. We must find the root of the problem as to why the house moved cannot be placed on the property," alderman Ambrose Wysoski said.

Morris Owen, representing the Pennington county council on aging, discussed the possibility of pursuing a study to establish a senior citizen community center in Thief River Falls.

"We have requested that Jack Quinlivan assist us in looking for available places where the center could be established," Owen said. "Quinlivan has agreed to do it if permission is granted from council."

"In my opinion, the center is an addition to the community, and we should certainly be in favor of granting permission to the city planner to bring aid to items of benefit to the community," alderman Penning said.

The resolution was introduced by alderman Penning for the city to instruct the city planner to consider the project and to aid in getting grants (if possible) and establishing sites for the project. The motion carried, following a second by alderman Wysoski.

The motion introduced by alderman Penning for the request by Jim Winjum for handicapped parking stalls in front of the employment service office at 318 north Knight avenue was withdrawn, following discussion of the on-street stalls.

"The street is narrow to begin with and has a high amount of traffic," Quinlivan stated.

The second motion introduced by alderman Penning referred the matter to the safety council who, in turn, will report back to the council. The resolution carried.

Melvin Stenberg, employee of the sanitation department, appeared before council members with his request to be transferred to another department where there is less lifting. Request stemmed from a hand injury received by him a year ago in his line of duty between the city of Thief River Falls and the sanitation department.

The possibility of Stenberg claiming partial disability was discussed by city attorney, Wurst, who also stated that "it is not the council's position to tell Stenberg what to do."

It was resolved that Stenberg would report back to his doctor for requests for further medical examinations to find the root of the problem.

In airport committee action, it was resolved that the Stolp Vending recommendation of $100 per month for use of space at the terminal building at the Thief River Falls regional airport be granted for two years. Also, rental for storage space in the hangar at the airport was adjusted from $6 per month to $15 per month effective March 1.

It was resolved that Don Olson's request for use of a surplus generator by radio station KTRF of Thief River Falls for civil defense be turned over to the superintendent of utilities for further consideration.

City pursued the matter of obtaining additional seats at the airport with the civil aeronautics board (CAB). In a previous Times story printed February 6, it was stated that suggestion was made that the essential air service should consist of three round trips a day on aircraft with a capacity of 80 to 100 persons since Republic's present planes are at times not able to accommodate existing traffic. Testimony by the community indicated that Republic's essential air service should be provided to Minneapolis-St. Paul as its major political, educational, medical, and social community of interest, according to the previous story.

It was resolved, following a resolution introduced by alderman Penning that Bob Wurst, city attorney, would be instructed by the city council to study the CAB positions.

Utility committee recommendations concerned the hiring of David Rude as a qualified A Journeyman electrician at $1,316 per month while working under a master electrician. A roll call vote followed from the discussion for the hiring of Rude with two "no" votes resulting from alderman Wysoski and Mayor Bob Carlson.

March 10 was the date set for the hearing on the 1980 improvement projects discussed at the last council meeting, in which the city engineer's accepted preliminary report will be discussed.

Two roll call votes resulted from the discussion of the status of user fees by the Park and Recreation board. The previous resolution, which dealt with a study of the fees, stated that the user fee program would recognize residents and statuses of participants. Alderman Penning introduced the resolution to table the user fee study. A roll call vote resulted in three "yes" votes from alderman Penning, alderman Ole Engelstad, and Mayor Bob Carlson, with "no" votes from alderman Borsheim, alderman Wysoski, alderman Clayton Restad, and alderman Goodrich (alderman J.J. Womack was absent from the meeting).

A second resolution introduced by alderman Wysoski to instruct the superintendent to continue with the study of user fees and report back to the park and recreation board and to the city council for further study for next year passed with only two no votes from alderman Penning and Mayor Carlson.

CETA-School Cooperation Is Promoted

Governor Al Quie believes cooperation between CETA prime sponsors and our state's schools is providing the best of job skill and employment training for Minnesota's young people.

Speaking to more than 700 educators and CETA representatives at the first governor's conference on comprehensive employment and training (CETA) and education cooperation in Minneapolis recently, the governor said: "A key element of these cooperative programs has been . . .individualized programs. Differences in the programs depend upon the varying characteristics of the communities. Thus we were successful in bringing the CETA program down to that all important. . .local level."

Quie said Minnesota will receive a "substantial boost" from President Carter's proposed $2 billion addition to the existing $4 billion federal youth employment program.

". . .It is our responsibility to use these resources with our ingenuity and intelligence to achieve a program that will meet Minnesota's particular needs," he said. ". . .In order for this program to work we must have a local commitment based upon local priorities and founded on local control."

He emphasized the importance of the private sector, saying, ". . .(Employers) can help us design our program so we will teach our youths the skills that will get them jobs."

Quie expressed concern that some young people who have completed 12 years of education cannot pass a third grade level reading exam.

"To help alleviate the chance of this occurring in our state, I have continually supported a reduced class size for the most crucial learning ages, kindergarten through third grade. I'm absolutely convinced that in reducing class sizes, we would dramatically increase student achievement so that those basic skills will be learned by our students."

Lieutenant Governor Lou Wangberg, Commissioner Rolf Middleton of the Department of economic security and Commissioner Howard Casmey, Minnesota department of education, also addressed the conference which included workshops covering a variety of topics relating to the involvement of CETA and the schools in training and employment activities.

Bill To Assist Heirs Offered In U.S. Senate

A bill introduced in the Senate recently by Senator Dave Durenberger would prevent estate taxes from breaking up family farms and businesses.

Durenberger's bill would fix the interest rate on deferred estate tax payments at six per cent or 75 per cent of the prime interest rate, whichever is less. Without Durenberger's bill, the interest rate will be 12 per cent for at least the next two years.

Durenberger's bill is part of a program to reduce the impact of federal estate taxes on family farms and businesses. The Minnesota senator is also preparing legislation to exclude estates valued at less than $600,000 from all estate taxes.

Referring to his bill to change the interest rate, Durenberger said, "A little-noted change in the tax code is going to have disastrous effects on family-owned farms and businesses. Estate taxes and high interest rates on deferred payments of those taxes will force the sale of many family farms and businesses.

"Heirs need time to recover from the death of the principal owner of a farm or business. Usually, the heirs aren't able to step in immediately and fill the vacuum.

"Recognizing that, the tax code was designed to allow estate taxes to be paid off over 10 or 15 years in some cases. For the last two years interest on those deferred payments has been at six per cent. However, on Feburary 1, the interest rate doubled to 12 per cent. The result is that a lot of family farms and businesses will be sold because the new owners won't be able to afford the estate taxes or the high interest rate on installment payments," Durenberger said.

"Maintaining and building our family farms and small businesses is important to our economy. Our tax code should encourage the development of these businesses, rather than tax them away. The life's work of a person shouldn't be lost to taxes. That's why this bill and the bill to eliminate estate taxes on estates less than $600,000 are so vital," said the Minnesota senator.

Durenberger's bill would not affect the four per cent interest rate allowed on the estate tax attributable to the first $1 million of family farm or business property.

Durenberger, a member of the senate finance committee, said he would urge the committee to take immediate action on the bill.

Farmer Spends $48,000 To Produce Crops

Average U.S. farmer spent over $48,000 in 1978 to produce his crops, livestock and poultry. That brings the total farm production expense tab to $114 billion nationally, topping the previous year's $100 billion level. Where did it go?

Feed was the major expense item, claiming over $16½ billion Livestock and poultry purchases accounted for $13½ billion, wages $10.2 billion, rent $9.3 billion, interest $7½ billion and ag chemicals $7.2 billion.

USDA will continue monitoring farm production outlays in its upcoming farm production expenditures survey. In Minnesota, the project is being undertaken by the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service in St. Paul. During February and March, field representatives of the service will interview a cross-section of state farmers to find out their 1979 production costs.

Carroll Rock, statistician in charge of the service, says this information helps determine farm income, parity indexes and shows the public how much it costs farmers to stay in business in 1979. He adds that all responses by the farmers contacted in the survey will be confidential and only regional and national summaries will be published.

Bill To Help Young Farmers Is Proposed

Helping the young farmer purchase his or her own farm is the intent of legislation introduced by Congressman Arlan Stangeland.

"For the past several years it has been extremely difficult for young men and women to purchase their own farms and make a living in the farming segment of the agriculture industry. The rapidly increasing price of land and the additional economic hardships caused by inflation not only discourage many young people from choosing farming as a career, but often make their lifelong ambitions impossible," Stangeland said.

The legislation Stangeland is proposing is designed to help the young person purchase land by encouraging retired farmers and other farm land owners to sell at reasonable prices. This would be accomplished by allowing the interest on a seller financed loan to be tax free. The tax forgiveness would involve transactions in which the seller was the financier, such as a contract for deed.

These loans would be guaranteed by the Farmers Home administration under the consolidated farm and rural development act. As a result the seller would be able to sell the property at a lower price because he or she would not have to pay on the interest as is presently required. In addition, the seller could sell his farm with a smaller down payment to the buyer and capital gains from the sale would be distributed over the period of the loan instead of as a lump sum payment at time of sale.

"This country has the best agricultural technology in the world and, in addition, the greatest capacity for farm production. The key to maintain this agricultural potential in the years to come is to provide ways in which the nation's young people can become increasingly involved, not less involved. They are our future and, if we don't find ways for them to continue working and growing in agriculture, our nation's food supply may be threatened. This legislation will not solve all the problems but it is a beginning and is a definite step toward helping to preserve the family farm," Stangeland said.

He further pointed out that this legislation is drafted in such a way that it would not allow tax forgiveness on any sale except to a young farmer who intends to make farming his or her full time life's work.

U.S. corn harvested this fall could fill 2 million jumbo hopper cars that would stretch 13 times across the nation.

Gov. Quie Is Concerned On Environment

"Minnesota with its thousands of lakes, acres of natural forests and miles of streams and rivers has a natural environment that we want to protect," states Gov. Al Quie.

"The stewardship of our natural environment is a God-given responsibility which we, as individuals, should accept.

"In my state of the state address this year I expressed my concern for our environment and outlined several of the steps I would like to see taken to better care for these natural resources.

These initiatives include:

Calling a state environmental conference this year to allow maximum public participation in a comprehensive environmental review. This review will focus on the state's role in environmental matters which is spread over some 85 programs.

Preparation of five bills for the legislature's consideration which will help focus the work of the environmental quality board on the more significant issues and streamline the process of environmental reviews. Many delays and burdensome paperwork requirements are now involved in the program.

One of these bills would increase the membership of the EQB by three members. Two would be citizen members and the other a representative of the department of economic development. Now there are 12 members. The other bills deal with specifics of environmental laws and technical corrections.

Legislation to continue the work begun by the water planning board when its legislative authority again terminates at the end of this fiscal year by incorporating those responsibilities under the Environmental Quality Board.

State agencies will pursue with mining interests and the citizens most affected and interested how best to manage the development of our huge potential in copper and nickel and to address uranium exploration — doing all of that while staying within sound environmental guidelines.

An independent assessment of the safety of Minnesota's nuclear power plants is being undertaken by a nuclear safety committee. It has begun a comprehensive review of the safety of nuclear power plants and will, by April 1980, report to me their recommendations.

"We will work in harmony with the joint legislative committee on solid and hazardous waste to discover answers to the safe disposal of an estimated 128,000 tons of hazardous waste per year," Gov. Quie added. "My preference is that those companies producing the waste should assume the primary responsibility for disposing of it. If government action is necessary, the counties affected should become involved. Then, only if required, the state should enter the disposal siting picture and look first at the suitability of land already owned by the state. Throughout this process of locating and using disposal sites, regardless of sponsorship, the state will monitor the environmental impacts.

"In the area of solid waste, legislation should place the responsibility of planning and siting waste disposal areas with the county. Equally important, the legislation should be tied closely to resource recovery programs," he said.

"These are the major environmental areas that I have asked the Legislature to review this year. I cannot overstate the great resource we have in our natural environment here in Minnesota. We must treasure it and respect it so it will be used wisely and remain for use by generations to come."

State Auditor Notes Growth In Spending

State Auditor Arne Carlson recently announced that Minnesota's 855 cities increased their spending by 11.8 per cent in 1978 over 1977. Carlson also noted that total debt continued to rise. "However," said Carlson, "for the second time in some 20 years, Minnesota cities took in more than they spent."

Carlson noted that total revenue was $1.12 billion and expenditures $1.11 billion for 1978. Bonded debt increased just over five per cent from $1.65 billion in 1977 to $1.74 billion in 1978.

The information is contained in the state auditor's annual report on the revenues, expenditures and debt of Minnesota cities for 1978.

"The rising debt load is a continuing concern, and should be watched closely," Carlson said. In addition to the $1.11 billion expenditures in 1978, cities paid $220 million in debt redemption of the governmental funds (excluding public service enterprises). Cities also reported $297.9 million in new borrowing during 1978.

The $1.12 billion in revenues amounted to an increase of 12.7 per cent over 1977.

Of the total revenues, 43.1 per cent came from the federal, state and other governmental sources. In 1970, governmental grants accounted for only 26.8 per cent of total city revenue. Local taxes accounted for 21.3 per cent of city revenue in 1978.

Major city expenditures went for public safety, 19.8 per cent; highways, 17.4 per cent; and sanitation, 15 per cent.

Of the public service enterprises run by the cities, electric and water utilities and liquor stores contributed the most in profits, the report shows, while heat utilities and nursing homes continued to lose money.

Individually, 306 city water utilities are losing money, and 14 electric utilities, 16 hospitals, 14 nursing homes, 29 liquor stores, 7 heat utilities and 4 other enterprises had net losses for 1978. Overall, profits from municipal enterprises contributed 1.9 per cent of total revenue for 1978.

Soc. Security Men Here Tues.

Ted Hoversten and Neil Rowe, field representatives of the Grand Forks social security office will be at the Thief River Falls city auditorium on Tuesday from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Tax Brackets Arranged By Ability To Pay

If you thought you were lucky because your 1979 income kept pace with inflation, you may feel less fortunate along about now, as you consider the effect of that added income on your tax bracket. Finding yourself in, say, the 40 per cent bracket for the first time might give you nightmares about the tax collector taking 40 per cent of that hard-earned salary, but that is not the way it works.

Such exaggerated fears, says the Minnesota society of certified public accountants, probably result from widespread misunderstanding of our progressive tax system. The system attempts to link tax rates to the ability to pay, but it is not nearly as confiscatory as "40 per cent bracket" might suggest.

In fact, says the CPA society, there is so much confusion about the meaning of "tax brackets" that tax practitioners have begun using instead the term "marginal tax brackets" to indicate that your bracket affects only the leading edge — the last few hundred dollars or so, the margin — of your income. The rest of what you make is either taxed at a lower rate or not taxed at all.

(CPA society says taxes have been rising faster than real incomes because they reflect pay increases that are largely illusory, thanks to inflation, but that is not the result of weakness in the tax system itself.)

Most of us have not just one but many tax brackets, each affecting a different level of income. The first $2,300 of taxable income (after exemptions) for a single taxpayer, is in the zero bracket — no tax at all. (That's why what was formerly known as the standard deduction is now called the zero bracket amount.) Even if you make millions, your first $2,300 still is untaxed.

Income over $2,300 is taxed at 14 per cent until it reaches $3,400, when the rate climbs to 16 per cent. At $4,400 it rises to 18 per cent and keeps on going up like that until, when taxable income passes $28,800 you begin paying over 40 per cent — but on just a small part of your income.

If that's all tax bracket means, why is so much said and written about it? Because, the CPA society explains, the highest tax rate one pays applies to the last dollar of income, as well as to the last deduction or adjustment, and that's where the most important action is for a person preparing a tax return.

If you are in the 40 per cent bracket, for example, a nearly-overlooked $10 deduction can put $4 in your pocket. Fifty dollars of income that can be reclassified from taxable to non-taxable is worth about $20 in cash. A $1,000 exemption is good for nearly $400 in cash.

Similarly, tacking on a final bonus, commission, dividend or other item of taxable income can mean ringing up 40 cents of taxes for every dollar of earnings. Out on the margin, the stakes are high. Which is a good reason, the CPA organization suggests, for doing a thorough job of checking financial records for the year to be sure you don't overlook a transaction from which your tax advisors might be able to realize a substantial savings.

It's the tax break you nearly miss — the one you pluck seemingly out of nowhere — that counts the most, bringing the top rate of tax savings available to someone in your bracket.

If the savings are big enough, they can even take you down to a lower bracket.

STUDENTS APPEARED to dislike the performer's singing almost as much as the dogs did, during an afternoon dog show presented at Washington elementary school in Thief River Falls last week. Barking, howling and singing echoed throughout the gymnasium as Peyton and Rave sang a song while their Pomeranians howled in attempted harmony.

Conservation Payments Are Not Taxable

Payments received by landowners after September, 1979 for participating in certain federal and state cost sharing conservation programs do not have to be declared as income under new federal tax regulations.

Commissioner of natural resources Joseph Alexander pointed out that the new ruling should make such programs more attractive to landowners.

This change in tax laws applies to cost sharing payments determined by the Secretary of Agriculture to have been made primarily for conserving soil and water resources, protecting or restoring the environment, improving forests or providing habitat for wildlife.

In addition, payments may be excluded from gross income only if the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) determines that they do not substantially increase the annual income from the property for which the payments are made and only if made under any of the following (briefly described) programs: rural clean water program; rural abandoned mine program; water bank program; emergency conservation measures program; agricultural conservation program; great plains conservation program; resource conservation and development program; forestry incentive program; any small watershed program administered by the Secretary of Agriculture that is determined by IRS to be substantially similar to programs in 1-8 above; and any state program under which payments are made to individuals primarily for the purpose of conserving soil, protecting or restoring the environment, improving forests or providing habitat for wildlife.

The last category should include the Minnesota wildlife habitat improvement program, state cost share program, state water bank program, and perhaps others.

Questions on which programs qualify and requests for information should be directed to the IRS, 316 North Robert Street, St. Paul.

Art Exhibit At Winter Shows Feb. 22 to 27

In addition to the annual town and country art show scheduled February 22-27 at the Crookston armory, visitors to the Red River valley winter shows will have an opportunity to view a one-woman art show and a non-competitive stitchery exhibit.

Amateur and professional artists are invited to participate in the Town and Country art exhibit. No registration fee is required and ribbons will be awarded. A judge's critique will be conducted at 11 a.m., February 23. Categories accepted will include oil, acrylic, watercolor, pen and ink, batik, charcoal and tissue collage. All work must have been done within the last year, must be framed, wired for hanging and price tagged, if work is for sale.

Entries should be brought to the armory February 21 between 1 and 6 p.m. or before 10 a.m. February 22. Exhibitors may remove their work between 3:30 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. February 27. Contact co-chairwomen, Arlene Rude, Route 2, Crookston, or Claudia Rasmus, Route 2, Crookston, to register.

Jean Johnson, Oslo, will hold a one-woman art show February 23 and 24. Johnson will also demonstrate her oil painting on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. in the Armory.

An artistic, noncompetitive needlework display is scheduled during the women's seminar program February 27. It is open to all stitchery artists in the Red River Valley. Articles considered are those made with a needle with an eye, finished, ready to use and identified as an original, a kit, or adapted kit. Label work with name and address and bring to the armory February 26 between 5 and 8 p.m. or leave it at the Crookston Federal Land bank office, Highway 75 north during office hours, February 18 to 26, or bring to your county extension agent prior to February 23.

Articles must be removed immediately following the women's seminar February 27. If you are unable to pick up your stitchery, provide someone with written permission to do so. Contact Mitzi Bulstad, Fosston, MN, phone 435-6311 for further information.

This activity is made possible in part by a grant provided by the Northwest regional development commission through funding from the Minnesota state arts board and the Minnesota state legislature.

NWF Reports Safety Tips For Lightning

Although the earth is bombarded by 360,000 lightning bolts every hour — or 8.5 million bolts per day — and lightning takes 120 to 125 American lives each year, the chances of any individual getting hit are small, according to the current issue of National Wildlife magazine.

Still, says the bimonthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation, if you don't want to become a longshot statistic, it is wise to take the following steps during a thunderstorm:

+Get inside a house or large building, or an all-metal vehicle or truck cab — not a convertible or an open truck bed. Do not take shelter in a small, isolated shed or any other small structure in an open area. Inside a house, avoid using the telephone.

If you're caught outdoors with no chance to reach shelter:

+Don't stand under a tall, isolated tree in an open area.

+Don't let yourself project above the surrounding landscape, as you'd do on a hilltop, in an open field, on the beach or in a small boat.

+Get out of and away from water.

+Get off of and away from motorcycles, golf carts and bicycles.

+Stay away from wire fences, railroad tracks, metal pipes and other metallic paths that can conduct lightning.

+In a forest, find shelter in a low area under a thick growth of trees.

+In the open, go to a low valley or ravine, but be on the lookout for flash flooding.

+If you feel your hair stand on end, drop to your knees and bend forward.

+If you're with someone who is struck by lightning:

+Give the victim immediate mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and heart massage.

+If a group is hit, treat any apparently "dead" victims first. Anyone who's conscious but breathing will probably recover spontaneously.

+Victims who seem stunned but otherwise unhurt should see a doctor as soon as possible. The physical effects of a lightning strike aren't always obvious.

TENANTS' COUNCIL at Sky-Lite apartments in Thief River Falls heard and saw a presentation Tuesday morning on the "I'm O.K." program sponsored by the American Red Cross and Northwestern Bell Telephone company. Clarice Collins of the phone company presented the program. The system involves having tenants hang a tag on their door when they retire for the evening and remove it by a specified time in the morning. If the tag is not put out or is not taken in, a checker among the residents will check to see if the occupant needs assistance.

"I'M O.K." is the information given by this tag hanging on an apartment door at Sky-Lite apartments in Thief River Falls. The program is intended to increase awareness among resident neighbors and to bring assistance quicker if someone in an apartment needs help and is unable to request it.

Press Council Becomes Minn. News Council

Minnesota Press council voted to change its name to the Minnesota News council at its annual meeting February 8.

Council chairman C. Donald Peterson said the council changed its name to reflect the fact that both newspapers and broadcast stations fall within the council's purview.

The council is a public service organization without legal or governmental affiliations, made up of 24 members, 12 from the public and 12 from the news media, who hear and determine citizen complaints against Minnesota news organizations. (The council was formed in 1971 to consider complaints against newspapers, but expanded its purview in 1977 to include radio and television stations as well.)

At its annual meeting, the council also elected the following people to council membership: Ruth A. Myers, co-director, American Indian programs, school of medicine, University of Minnesota at Duluth, and president, Minnesota state board of education, to a three-year public term; Mike Foley, news director, KBJR-TV, Duluth, to a three-year media term; John Froyd, news director, KCMT-KNMT-TV, Alexandria-Walker, to a three-year media term; Deborah Howell, assistant managing editor, St. Paul Pioneer Press, to a three-year media term; and Bob Ryan, news commentator, KROC-AM-FM, Rochester, to a two-year media term.

The council also re-elected the following members to three-year terms: Mary Forsythe, state representative (IR-Edina), James Miles, resource person to business and industry, Wayzata; Nancy Selby, former state president, American Association of University Women, Rochester, and Gary Stevens, president, Doubleday Broadcasting Co., Minneapolis.

The council reported $41,000 in expenditures and disbursements, and $51,500 in receipts for the year ending Dec. 31, 1979. The members approved a $54,000 budget for 1980.

Bill To Clear Way For Cut In Airline Taxes

Supporting legislation to cut funding from the airport development assistance program, Senator Rudy Buschwitz said the move will clear the way for a cut in airline fare taxes which is pending before the senate.

Boschwitz voted for a bill which will exclude the nation's 72 largest airports from ADAP funding. Boschwitz said "under the program Minneapolis-St. Paul boarding passengers over the past several years have paid $221 million into the airport trust fund while the airport has received only $15.6 million for a return of 3.6 per cent, one of the lowest returns in the nation.

"This low return to Minnesota is continuing at a time when the airport trust fund has a surplus of $3.25 billion," Boschwitz said. "By eliminating large airports from eligibility, we have paved the way for a cut in the airline fare tax from eight per cent to two per cent. With the surplus it has, the airport trust fund doesn't need the taxes it is getting and they should be cut.

"Cutting funds to large airports will cut demand on the airport trust fund and they will no longer be able to justify the eight per cent tax. This will give us the opportunity to cut that tax and provide savings to the flying public," he said.

The legislation to cut airline fare taxes is now before the senate finance committee and Boschwitz has pledged his support to this tax reduction when it reaches the floor.

During discussion of the ADAP measure, Boschwitz also supported an amendment which would have provided for block grants from the airport development assistance program to states. "This would have allowed state aviation agencies to decide where the money should be spent," he said, "and I think they have a better idea of where the funds are needed than does the federal government."

Rural communities in Minnesota which have airports supported the block grant amendment which failed on a vote of 35-51.

Cleveland To Be Humphrey Institute Head

Harlan Cleveland, former U.S. ambassador to NATO, will become the director of the Hubert H. Humphrey institute of public affairs at the University of Minnesota.

Cleveland, who has served as president of the University of Hawaii and assistant secretary of state during the Kennedy administration, has been director of international affairs at the Aspen institute in Princeton, N.D., since 1974.

Cleveland will begin his full-time duties at the Humphrey institute August 1. He may work part-time for the institute as early as March 1, according to C. Peter Magrath, University of Minnesota president. Cleveland will continue to work with the Aspen institute as an adviser.

Aspen Institute functions as a "think tank" for analyzing public policies. Under Cleveland's direction, the institute has held conferences and published books on arms control, international economics and rich versus poor issues in world politics. As part of a conference on technology cooperation among nations, Cleveland helped invent the world weather watch.

As a gift certificate of the imagination, U.S. savings bonds say more than "Merry Christmas." Bonds say: "We believe in all your dreams. And we're with you, whatever you become."

Letters Needed For Save The Children Day

Children throughout the United States are invited to write letters to the 1980 Presidential candidates on the theme, "If I were elected President, this is how I would help children."

Letters are being collected by Save the Children, the international child assistance agency based in Westport, CT. Children will present the letters at a special hearing of the United States Senate subcommittee on child and human development in Washington, D.C. May 1, "Save the Children" day.

In addition the letters will provide the material for the 1980 children's agenda for action, a children's platform which will be offered to presidential candidates prior to the summer Republican and Democratic national conventions.

Last year, the 1979 children's agenda for action was compiled from more than 8,000 letters at a special children's hearing of the U.S. Senate subcommittee on child and human development. The children's agenda listed energy, pollution, inflation, war and smoking as the most pressing problems in today's world. Children read representative letters at the hearing and were also given the opportunity to testify as to their own ideas on world problems.

In addition to the letters campaign, Save the Children day is observed with events focusing on the needs and rights of children. Last year, 42 governors throughout the United States called on children, adults and community groups to participate in activities which would better the lives of children. Community clean-ups, beautification projects and various fundraising events were organized in observance of the day.

A free activities kit which contains suggestions for creating a local Save the Children day celebration is available.

Children's letters and requests for activities kits should be mailed by April 1 to Save the Children, Dept. N, Westport, CT 96880. Attn: Caroline Brady. Or call, toll free (800) 243-5075.

Section 8 Hockey Close

With less than a week remaining before the Feb. 19 cut-off date for games to count in the Section 8 high school hockey point standings, nobody has a lock on the positions that will determine post-season tournament spots.

There are six teams still in the running for one of the top four spots that will earn a berth in the quarterfinals of the 1980 Section 8 hockey tournament, scheduled to be played in the Thief River Falls sports arena beginning Fri., Feb. 29. Roseau, Crookston, Thief River Falls and Warroad look like good bets to pick off those top four slots, but East Grand Forks and Alexandria could sneak in.

After Tuesday's results when Roseau handled Warroad 7-2, Thief River Falls belted Hallock 11-1 and East Grand Forks drilled East Grand Forks 11-2, Roseau has a hold on first place with a 24-6 points won-lost mark for an .800 winning percentage. Crookston and Thief River Falls share second place with identical 28-10 figures and a .736 percentage. Warroad is 28-14 and .666; East Grand Forks 18-10 and .642; Alexandria 16-10 and .615.

Roseau, Warroad and Alexandria all have just one game left, with the Rams playing East Grand Forks, the Warriors facing Thief River Falls and the Cardinals meeting Brainerd. Crookston and Thief River Falls both have two games left, including a pair of four-point games as the Pirates meet cross-town rival Mount St. Benedict in a four-pointer and close against Fergus Falls. The Prowlers have a four-pointer at Detroit Lakes Saturday and will be at Warroad Tuesday.

Thief River Falls can assure itself of a top four finish with a win over the Lakers. Then even a loss at Warroad wouldn't keep the Prowlers out of the quarterfinals. A Warroad loss that night, though, could push the Warriors behind either East Grand Forks or Alexandria.

Mount St. Benedict and Bemidji both fell out of contention for a top four finish this week. The Lumberjacks' loss to the Green Wave last night completed their Section 8-counting season with a 22-18 points won-lost record for a .550 winning percentage. Mount St. Benedict was upset by Detroit Lakes 5-2 Monday, leaving the Blue Wave 26-22 and .541, with games remaining against Crookston and Moorhead.

A Thief River Falls sweep over Detroit Lakes and Warroad would get the Prowlers at least a second place tie. Two losses could drop Thief River Falls to fifth in the tight standings.

Tournament play starts Fri., Feb. 22, when Brainerd and Crosby-Ironton will meet at Brainerd to complete the 16-team Section 8 field. Neither the Warriors or Rangers have played enough Section 8 opponents to earn a ranking in the points standings.

The sub section games start Mon., Feb. 25, with the Brainerd vs. Crosby-Ironton winner playing at the No. 9 seeded team; No. 15 at No. 10; No. 14 at No. 11; and No. 13 at No. 12. On Wed., Feb. 27, it'll be the 13-12 winner at No. 5; 14-11 winner at No. 6; 15-10 winner at No. 7; and the eventual 16-17-9 winner at No. 8.

Those Feb. 27 winners will join the four seeded teams in the Section 8 quarterfinals Fri., Feb. 29, and Sat., March 1.

Miscellaneous

+Marv Jorde, the former Lincoln high school hockey star who appeared here last week with the Warroad Lakers in an exhibition hockey game against the Japanese Olympic team, was named "hockey person of the week" in the latest edition of "Let's Play Hockey," a state-wide hockey publication. "The Park-Cottage Grove people held another of their outstanding hockey nights," read the article, "with special guests, figure skaters, games and prizes to raise funds, and guess who ran the show — Marv Jorde. He does it every year and does it in grand style. This is the same person who holds the St. Paul Parkers together as one of the nation's finest senior men's teams, often crowned as national champs. Hockey has lots of Marv Jorde's, but he heads the pack. His kind are what make it all come together."

+Looking back on his team's weekend losses to Bemidji 64-60 and Fergus Falls 65-52 that cost the Pirates a Northwest Athletic Conference title, frustrated Crookston basketball coach Marshall Olson said, "I feel we are as good as Bemidji and Fergus Falls and I know we can beat them."

+St. Cloud Apollo is the No. 1 seed for the South Half Region 8AA boys basketball tournament, scheduled to be played next week at Halenbeck Hall on the St. Cloud State University campus. Rest of the seeds went to No. 2 St. Cloud Tech; No. 3 Cold Spring-Rocori; No. 4 Melrose; 5. Brainerd; No. 6 Alexandria; No. 7 Little Falls; No. 8 Sauk Rapids. First round aprings match Apollo vs. Sauk Rapids; Melrose vs. Brainerd; Tech vs. Little Falls; and Rocori vs. Alexandria. Dave Harris of Alexandria, executive secretary-treasurer of the Region 8AA committee, told Ralph Anderson he expects a good fan turnout for the entire tournament. Over 5,000 were on hand to watch Apollo defeat Tech 69-52 recently at St. Cloud State, site of the Region 8AA championship game matching the North and South Half champions Fri., Feb. 29.

Matt Baab Is Scoring Leader In Section 8

Matt Baab of Mount St. Benedict began the next-to-the-last week of the 1979-80 regular season schedule with a one-point edge over cross-town rival Bob Clauson of Crookston Central in the latest Section 8 high school hockey scoring figures announced Monday by Frank Fee of KROX radio in Crookston.

With Clauson missing his team's 4-2 win over Moorhead Saturday because of a hip injury, Baab's 25 goals and 23 assists are good for a Section 8-leading 48 points. Clauson leads with 28 goals, and has 19 assists for 47 points and a two-point edge over Thief River Falls' Wade Hoppe.

NORTHLAND GUARD Vince Parker tried to fight through a screen set by Fergus Falls' Gary Douglas to follow the Spartans' Rod Moberg during the Monday's community college basketball game played in Thief River Falls. The Northmen outlasted the Spartans 94-93 in three overtimes to clinch a berth in the 1980 MJCAA-state basketball tournament, scheduled to be played next week in Bloomington.

Clinch MJCAA State Tournament Berth . . .

Northmen Edge Spartans 94-93 In 3 Overtimes

"It was a godsend, said Northland community college basketball coach Chet Engelman after watching his team pull out a thrilling 94-93 triple overtime win over Fergus Falls Monday in a match-up of Northwest Division leaders that promised a MJCAA state tournament berth for the winner.

Everytime the clock neared zero — at the end of regulation time, and at the end of the first, second and third five-minute overtime periods — Fergus Falls had possession with a chance to pull out a win. But four times the Spartans failed and they now need a win tonight (Wednesday) over Crookston to join Northland as the two Northwest Division representatives in the 1980 Minnesota junior college athletic association state basketball tournament Feb. 21-23 at Normandale community college in Bloomington.

The near carbon-copy finishes and Fergus Falls failures included:

+ Grabbing a defensive rebound with 1:29 remaining in regulation time and the score tied 73-73, the Spartans held the ball until calling time-out with seven seconds left. But Rod Moberg, who scored all 14 of his points after intermission, missed as he tried to put up a shot in heavy traffic from near the free throw line and Northland's Chris Kneen rebounded at the buzzer.

+ Gaining possession when Northland's Terry Harris was called for an offensive charge with 37 seconds remaining in the first overtime and the score knotted at 80-80, the Spartans held the ball until calling time-out with eight seconds remaining. This time Moberg's 18-foot jumper was one of those in-and-out jobs and Northland again rebounded at the buzzer.

+ After watching Harris tie the game 84-84 with a 15-foot running jump shot with 1:39 to go in the second overtime, the Spartans again held the ball until calling time-out with seven seconds on the clock. But Kneen and Harris combined on a block as Gary Douglas tried to score on a short base line jumper. Mike Carriere rebounded at the buzzer.

+ Finally, after Harris drilled a long jumper from the side to put Northland ahead 94-93 with 18 seconds remaining in the third overtime, the Spartans succumbed. But not without a fight. Calling a time-out in the backcourt with 13 seconds left, Fergus Falls nearly pulled it out. But Dave Cresap hit the rim from the free throw circle with five seconds on the clock and teammate Jack Appel did likewise when he put up an off-balance shot from the side after grabbing the rebound. And the Spartans would have had another chance as the ball went out of bounds off a Northland player — but the buzzer sounded.

Through it all Engelman said he wasn't worried. "I told the kids the Lord is on our side. Because if the Lord was on their side, they'd have won it by now," he quipped.

It was a terrific ball game, producing the biggest response from a Northland student body cheering section in years. There were 23 ties and an equal number of lead changes in the fiercely played contest that featured muscle, bumping, pushing and shoving underneath and net-rippling jumpers from the outside.

"It was a helluva ball game," paraphrased Engelman. "We played well; Fergus played well."

Harris led the Northland offense with 41 points, which included a school division-record 20 field goals. He put the ball up 40 times. Vince Parker scored 22 points for the winners and Tony Smith starred in the second half when he scored all of his 16 points. Cresap's outside snipping gave him 21 points for the night, but he was just one of five Fergus Falls scorers in double figures.

"We played well," acknowledged Fergus Falls coach Dave Retzlaff. Asked if the Spartans were able to get off their designed plays in overtime, he replied, "First time, partially; second time, yes; third time, no."

The Northmen could have won it in regulation time, but they quit scoring after Parker grabbed his own long rebound and put it back up for a 73-69 edge with 4:54 remaining. But, then Fergus Falls didn't score after Cresap sank a long jumper from side for a 73-73 tie with 3:10 left.

Matching three-point plays by Steve Soenneker and Kneen just 17 seconds apart kept it close in the first overtime, with Jack Appel tying it 80-80 from 15 feet out with 52 seconds left.

Appel drove the base line twice to give the Spartans an 84-80 edge midway through the second overtime, but Harris matched that with a tip-in and his 15-footer for an 84-84 tie.

Harris then came up with his game-winner to put an end to the first triple overtime game in Northland's 15-year basketball history.

Shooting figures were as even as the game itself as Fergus Falls made 42 of 91 field goals for 46 per cent and sank nine of 15 free throws. Northland connected on 42 of 101 field goals for 42 per cent and made 10 of 14 free throws.

Northland will try to lock up a Northwest Division title Friday night when the Northmen close out their 1979-80 regular season schedule at Brainerd. Crookston will need to beat Fergus Falls tonight and then win at Brainerd Saturday afternoon to nose out the Spartans for a MJCAA state tournament spot.

North Half Region 8AA . . .

Prowlers Will Play Pirates

Thief River Falls will face Crookston Tuesday at 8:45 p.m. in the opening round of the 1980 North Half Region 8AA boys high school basketball tournament at Moorhead State University. Pairings for the eight-team, three-day event were made Monday at a coaches seeding meeting at Mahnomen.

Moorhead, as expected, emerged as the No. 1 seeder for the first-ever North Half Region 8AA tournament featuring the eight teams that made up Sub Regions 3 and 4 of Region 8AA for the past four years.

Rest of the seeds included No. 2 Detroit Lakes; No. 3 Fergus Falls; No. 4 Thief River Falls; No. 5 Crookston; No. 6 Bemidji; No. 7 East Grand Forks; and No. 8 Park Rapids.

First round games Tuesday will match Moorhead against Park Rapids at 7 p.m. and Thief River Falls vs. Crookston at 8:45. On Thurs., Feb. 21, it'll be Detroit Lakes vs. East Grand Forks at 7 p.m. and Fergus Falls vs. Bemidji at 8:45.

Semifinals will be played Fri., Feb. 22, with the Moorhead vs. Park River winner playing the Thief River Falls vs. Crookston winner at 7 p.m. while the Detroit Lakes vs. East Grand Forks winner faces the Fergus Falls vs. Bemidji winner at 8:45.

Championship game will be played Sat., Feb. 23. All North Half Region 8AA games will be played at Moorhead State University.

The North Half champion will meet the South Half winner in the Region 8AA championship game Fri., Feb. 29, at St. Cloud State University.

Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters said he wasn't surprised with the way the pairings working out. "That's about where we expected to be," he said. "We expected to face Crookston or Bemidji."

The Prowlers lost a pair of regular season games to the Pirates, losing 62-55 at Crookston back on Dec. 14 and falling 55-49 here Jan. 18.

"It's going to be a challenge," admitted Peters. "But we'll show up," he promised.

Thief River Falls closes out it's 1979-80 regular season schedule this week, hosting Park Rapids Thursday at 7:30 p.m. and visiting Detroit Lakes Friday.

PENETRATING the Warren defense, guard Kyle Hams of the Lincoln high school Prowlers goes airborne to hit teammate Greg Miller with a pass for an easy two-pointer. The action came in the see-saw fourth quarter with the Prowlers giving the Ponies their third loss of the season 46-45 Tuesday night. Hams went crashing to the floor after getting this pass away as officials overlooked a good deal of contact in the physical game. Defending for Warren is Bob Lubarski.

46-45 Win At Warren Added To TRF Streaks

Thief River Falls ran its winning streak to five games Tuesday with a 46-45 high school basketball win over defending Region 8A champion Warren, giving the Prowlers a string of six straight wins on the road.

Unbeaten over the last three weeks, Thief River Falls, now 11-6, will close out its 1979-80 regular season schedule this week when the Prowlers host Park Rapids Thursday at 7:30 p.m. and then drive to Detroit Lakes Friday. The Prowlers haven't lost since a 63-52 defeat at the hands of International Falls Jan. 19, and even more remarkable, they haven't lost on the road since dropping a 62-55 decision at Crookston Dec. 14, winning seven of eight games away from home.

"Every week we seem to be playing better ball," explained Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters. "It's a nice feeling. The kids are playing well together and they have confidence in themselves. We feel we have a good ball club."

Thief River Falls jumped out to a 9-2 edge over the host Ponies, who finished the year with an impressive 15-3 record. Thief River Falls' lead was 14-10 at the end of the first quarter, 22-21 at halftime and 34-33 going into the final eight minutes.

The second half was a see-saw affair until Kyle Hams drove the lane and passed off to Mark Schmitke for a bucket that put the Prowlers ahead for keeps, 44-43, with 1½ minutes remaining. Two Greg Miller free throws with 23 seconds remaining clinched it, giving the Prowlers a 45-43 edge and allowing them to surrender a final Warren basket with just three seconds left.

"We played good, sound defense," noted Peters who was most happy with his team's aggressiveness that paid off with a 29-16 rebound advantage.

"Greg Miller, Todd Young, Gregg Peterson and Jim Nyland all did the job for us on the boards," said Peters. "That won the ball game for us. We were much more aggressive than Warren. We took a lot of things away from them."

Balance was again featured in the Thief River Falls attack as Hams and Miller finished with 12 points apiece and Young had 10 to go along with eight rebounds. Doug Paulson led Warren with 13 points.

Thief River Falls shot 50 per cent from the field, hitting 20 of 39 shots and did likewise at the free throw line where the Prowlers were 6-for-12. Warren shot 41 per cent from the field, hitting 17 of 40 attempts and sank 11 of 14 free throws.

Prowlers Tip Lumberjills 31-30 With Final Shot

Sophomore Tara Nicholson scored from the base line with just one second remaining Monday to give Thief River Falls a dramatic 31-30 win over Bemidji in a girls high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym.

"It was a miracle," laughed Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg who had called time-out with nine seconds remaining to set up the last-ditch strategy.

A pair of Pam Gildersleeve free throws on a bonus situation with nine seconds on the clock put Bemidji ahead 30-29. Thief River Falls guard Ann Goodrich, as instructed, took the in-bounds pass, dribbled the length of the court and passed to Nicholson who won it with her shot from about 10 feet out.

It was the first win over a Region 8AA opponent for the Prowlers, 5-8 for the year. They'll be at Crookston Thursday before returning home to host a strong Fosston squad Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

A 49-44 loser at Bemidji a month ago, Thief River Falls had Monday's game in hand, sitting on a 29-22 lead with 4½ minutes remaining. But the Prowlers then missed the front end of three straight 1-and-1 free throw situations and Bemidji followed every one of those misses with a basket to pull within 29-28. Gildersleeve put the Lumberjills on top — briefly.

"We played pretty well except for the fact there wasn't much scoring," noted Sjoberg. "We played pretty good defense."

And the Prowlers dominated the boards, 49-29, as Nicholson grabbed 19 rebounds and fellow sophomore LeAnn Paetznick collected 14. Nicholson had 17 defensive rebounds as the Prowlers continually limited Bemidji to one shot.

"We also got the loose balls and controlled the jump balls," praised Sjoberg. "They really wanted it."

Offensively both team struggled. Thief River Falls was 13-for-50 for 26 per cent from the field and 5-for-12 at the free throw line. Bemidji was 12-for-60 from the floor for 20 per cent and 6-for-12 at the line.

Bemidji took both preliminary games, winning the junior varsity contest 42-38 and taking the freshman game 42-18.

Prowlers Rip Hallock 11-1

Co-captains Wade Hoppe and Dave Geatz combined for six goals Tuesday to lead the Lincoln high school hockey team to an 11-1 win over Hallock — the Prowlers' first experience with this year's new 10-goal rule in hockey where a 10-goal lead in the third period will end the game a la the 10-run rule in baseball. Last night it chopped 4:50 off the third period.

Hoppe led the way with four goals. Geatz got two on defense, then moved up to center a fourth line in the third period. They both had an assist, too.

Scoring single goals were Tom Ose, Bob Fitzgerald, Tom Bjorkman, Tony Loeffler and Mark Harder. For Ose and Harder it was their first goals of the year. Harder ended the game, played before a small crowd in the sports arena, with a slap shot from the blue line at 10:10 of the third period.

Jim Thompson collected three assists for the Prowlers who improved their record to 11-5-1 with the win, worth four points in Section 8 play where Thief River Falls was winless over the past two weeks.

"Hopefully that's what we needed to get us going again," mentioned Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "I don't know if it was the most well-played game of the year, but we're pleased with the offense."

Four of the Thief River Falls goals came on power plays, including Harder's game-ender and Hoppe's game-opener at 1:58 of the first period when he had an open net on a rebound. It was a power play, too, when Loeffler rapped home a centering pass at 4:12 for a 2-0 start. Hoppe went to the backhand on a rebound at 12:01 and Bjorkman finished off a pretty three-man rush with Fitzgerald and Paul Drees at 14:05 for a 4-0 first period.

Geatz found the corner on a power play slap shot from the point at 11:06 to begin a flurry of goal-scoring activity at the end of the second period. Hoppe got the corner at 13:38 and Geatz hit another one from the blue line at 14:58 for a 7-0 game.

Hallock goalie Larry Fertig gloved Fitzgerald's shot at the start of the second period, but it popped out of his glove and fell across the goal line at 2:06.

Just six seconds later Henry Mingo spoiled Jeff Mongoven's shutout bid when he backhanded a rebound into an open net.

Hoppe made it 9-1 with his hardest shot of the night at 2:45 and Ose brought the 10-goal rule into focus when he scored on a scramble in front of the Hallock net at 8:15.

Fertig, a sophomore, was kept busy handling 48 shots. Mongoven, starting in place of injured Bill Jury, turned back just 10 shots. Out with a back problem, Jury's three-year string of consecutive starts in the Thief River Falls nets since he stepped in at the start of his sophomore season ended at 63 for the all-section netminder. He isn't expected to play Saturday, either, when the Prowlers travel to Detroit Lakes for another four-pointer.

NCC Women Lose 64-50

An upset bid by the Northland community college women's basketball team vanished during a four-minute dry spell in the second half Monday and the Northwomen dropped a 64-50 decision to state tournament-bound Fergus Falls.

Final home appearance of the 1979-80 season for the Northwomen saw them challenge the Spartans for 30 minutes. Down 31-26 at halftime, Northland pulled within 44-43 when Carrie Sollom scored on a short set shot from the side with 9:58 remaining.

But Northland did not score again until Julie Anderson hit a short turnaround jumper with 5:50 left. Fergus Falls scored 10 unanswered points during that 4:08 stretch to open up a 54-43 lead.

"We had to open up our defense a little to get the ball when we started to fall behind," explained Northland coach Deb Jacobson who saw the Spartans out-score the Northwomen 20-7 down the stretch. Still, she wasn't disappointed. "I enjoyed the game," she said, remembering a 90-40 shellacking at Fergus Falls less than two weeks earlier.

Anderson was the game's high scorer with 19 points, but she was the only scorer in double figures for the Northwomen who were celebrating parent's night. Three Spartans reached double figures, led by Joice Ennen with 16 points.

Fergus Falls finished with a statistical edge, including a big 62-37 advantage on the boards. "That's the worst we've ever been out-rebounded," recalled Jacobson.

The Spartans shot 36 per cent from the field, hitting 25 of 69 shots, while the Northwomen shot only 25 per cent, making 18 of 73 tries. Both teams were 14-for-24 at the free throw line. Fergus Falls topped the turnover charts 24-20.

Northland, 4-14 for the year and 2-8 in the Northwest Division, will close out the season Friday night at Brainerd and Saturday afternoon at Anoka-Ramsey.

Fourth Quarter Blitz Lifts MCC Past Roseau

Ineffective on offense and held to an 18-18 tie through three quarters, Marshall County Central blitzed Roseau 22-9 in the final eight minutes Monday to run away with a 40-27 girls high school basketball win.

"We caught fire," was the way coach Tom Mjelde described the Nordics' fourth quarter outburst. "Everything came together for us."

That tie didn't last long once the fourth quarter started as the Marshall County Central full court press produced Roseau turnovers and a quick 10 points.

Jill Johnson and Sue Olson led a balanced Marshall County Central attack with 12 and 10 points, respectively. Nancy Harris had 13 for the Rams who led 22-20 at halftime.

"Roseau played tough defense," noted Mjelde. "We had trouble getting the ball inside on them."

Marshall County Central, hitting 10 of 18 fourth quarter field goal attempts, finished the game 36 per cent from the field, making 18 of 49 shots. Roseau shot just 28 per cent, sinking 13 of 45 shots. From the free throw line the Nordics were 4-for-7 and the Rams were 1-for-8.

Now 14-2, Marshall County Central will play Lake of the Woods Saturday at Baudette.

Oslo 50

Goodridge did not score a single point in the first quarter but still came up a 54-50 overtime winner over Oslo Monday.

The Bobcats led 10-0 at the end of the first quarter and carried a 24-10 lead into intermission. That difference was just 33-27 after three quarters, though and it was a 46-46 tie at the end of regulation time when a pass from Val Sand led to a Mary Jo Kiesow fast break lay-up in the final seconds.

Goodridge never trailed in the overtime as the host Huskies upped their record to 12-3.

Kiesow led the winners with 17 points while Angie Berndt scored 11 and Peggy Poppenhagen 10.

The Huskies finished with a slight shooting edge, hitting 22 of 56 shots for 39 per cent. Oslo made 20 of 53 shots for 38 per cent. Goodridge sank 10 of 24 free throws while the Bobcats made 10 of 23 at the line.

Goodridge will be idle until Tues., Feb. 19, when the Huskies host Grygla.

Oklee 42

A trio featuring Diane Fisher, Sandy Zimpel and Mary Westlake combined for 58 points Monday as Plummer made easy work out of destroying an Oklee defense designed to stop the high-scoring Fisher in a 74-42 victory.

"They played a box-and-one," noted Plummer coach Rick Koivisto, "and we're pretty used to that now."

Fisher still scored 27 points in the face of the special attention on defense, while Zimpel and Westlake netted 17 and 14, respectively. Zimpel was 8-for-9 from the field.

"We played pretty well in the second half," said Koivisto whose team led 33-20 at halftime and built that to a 52-29 third quarter cushion.

Plummer shot 56 per cent from the field, hitting 33 of 59 attempts. Oklee shot 30 points lower, making 13 of 50 shots for 26 per cent. From the free throw line the Cardinals were 8-for-16 and the host Bobcats were 16-for-28.

The Cardinals will take a 9-4 record into a Thursday game against Mount St. Benedict and will be at Strandquist Saturday.

Middle River 41
Warroad 37

Playing without injured starters Trudy Christofferson and Dawn Nelson, Middle River got by Warroad 41-37 Monday as Becky Jesme scored 13 points and Patti Blazek collected 10.

"It wasn't as smooth as if they were there," admitted Middle River coach Tom Neibauer when talking about the absence of Christofferson, who missed the game with a back problem but should be back in the line-up this weekend, and Nelson, the team's leading scorer who is out for the rest of the year with a broken foot. Both players were injured last Thursday in a 34-26 win at Roseau. "But," added Neibauer, "a couple of others pulled up the slack for us."

Middle River led at the quarter stops 14-11, 22-17 and 29-25.

The Skippers, now 8-7, will be at Badger Friday and at Grygla Saturday.

Huskies Trip Oslo 58-55 For Third Straight Win

Goodridge completed a late-season surge by closing out its 1979-80 regular season schedule Monday with a 58-55 Polar Conference high school basketball win over Oslo — the Huskies third straight victory in a season that produced just five wins against 13 losses.

Mark Grabowska and Neil Race were credited by coach Rick Nelson for supplying key roles in the win as Race scored a team-high 18 points and Grabowska got 12, rebounded well and came up with a game-preserving play at the end when he took a controversial charge.

Goodridge started with an 18-6 first quarter lead and took a 30-27 edge into halftime but found the visitors going ahead 40-36 in the third quarter.

Don Bushaw scored a game-high 23 points for the Bobcats and Tony Rakowski added 17. But the Huskies balanced attack featured four double figure scorers as Randy Henrickson and Kurt Wiseth scored 13 and 11 points, respectively, to join Race and Grabowska in double digits.

Oslo shot better, but Goodridge came through at the free throw line where the Huskies were 20-for-30. Oslo made nine of 18 free throws. From the field the Bobcats were 23-for-47 for 49 per cent and the Huskies were 19-for-52 for 37 per cent. Goodridge out-rebounded Oslo 35-28. The two teams divided 28 turnovers.

Post-season play starts for both teams Monday as District 31 play gets underway with three games at Warren. Pairings will be determined at a coaches meeting tonight (Wednesday).

Karlstad 70

Scott McKeever and Jon Neumann combined for 50 points Tuesday as Middle River out-scored Karlstad 85-70. McKeever pumped in 27 points and Neumann was close behind with 23 as the Skippers finished their regular season schedule with a 15-3 record.

Middle River began with a 14-8 first quarter lead, but the fireworks really started in the second period when the two teams poured in 50 points — producing a 43-29 halftime lead for the host Skippers.

"The ball was going in the basket for both teams," acknowledged Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "It got to be a fast break, run-and-gun game."

Middle River, ahead 59-45 at the end of the third quarter, shot 46 per cent from the field for the game, hitting 32 of 70 shots. The Skippers were also busy at the free throw line where they made 21 of 28 attempts. The Rabbits sank 14 of 25 free throws.

And despite the score, Sparby said, "It was a pretty good defensive game, too. Maybe the score doesn't show it, but it was a pretty physical game."

Middle River starts District 32 tournament play Thursday, facing Lancaster at 8:45 p.m. at Newfolden.

Northmen Lose To Royals By 111-79

Lake Region scoring bursts at the end of the first half and again at the end of the game accounted for a big point spread Tuesday as the Royals defeated the Northland community college basketball team 111-79 at Devils Lake, N.D.

Ahead 43-34 with 2:34 remaining in the first half, Lake Region finished with 14 unanswered points and a 57-34 cushion at intermission. The Royals, 21-6 for the year, then officially made it a rout by out-scoring the Northmen 12-2 at the end.

"Take away four minutes and we might have had an even game. . .hell, we might have even won. But they won't let us do that," said Northland coach Chet Engelman.

Terry Harris scored a game-high 25 points for the Northmen who shot 45 per cent from the field (33-for-74) and went 13-for-28 at the free throw line, missing 10 times on the front end of bonus situations. Lake Region shot 51 per cent from the field (51-for-89) and made nine of 15 free throws.

Northland is 8-14 for the year.

ANIMALS NEED HOMES TOO!

GRAND PRIZE winner in the annual National Wildlife Federation poster contest was Neil R. Syltie, 9, of Fargo, N.D. with this drawing that won him and his family an all-expenses paid, one-week vacation in New York's Adirondack Mountains.

Fargo Boy Wins National Wildlife Poster Contest

Children from 37 states, Czechoslovakia, Mexico and Canada are among the 118 winners in the annual Ranger Rick's nature club poster and essay contest sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation.

The young conservationists range in age from six to 12 and were chosen from nearly 1,300 entries.

Grand prize winner was Neil R. Syltie, 9, Fargo, N.D. Neil, a budding wildlife artist who likes rock hunting and tobagganing, won an all-expenses paid, one-week vacation for himself and his parents at NWF's Summit in New York's Adirondack Mountains next June.

Richard Plummer, 9, took second prize — an all-expenses paid 12-day trip to Ranger Rick's Wildlife Camp in North Carolina in July. A gardener, hiker, and camper, Richard lives in Atlanta.

Contestants had to imagine and describe a natural area in their town, and then devise a campaign — including drawing a large poster and coming up with a slogan — to save that area from development. The contest rules were published in the September, 1979, issue of Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine for children.

Neil imagined "an old four-acre horse pasture bordered by willow trees — it's also a stopping place for migrating birds, and when the snow melts ducks come and make their nests by the pools." His slogan was "Animals Need Homes Too!"

Richard said he will display his poster, which bears the message "Help Save the 'End of the Road'." Richard's idealized place actually exists right outside of his house; it is "very peaceful, quiet and beautiful. My nature club meets here. . .we see cattails, beaver dams, wildflowers, birds, fish, chipmunks, squirrels, muskrats and my favorites — the ducks."

Third prize winner Catherine Anderson, 11, Cortland, N.Y., said she likes her special place because "when I have a problem I go there to think it out." "Kate" won a 35-mm camera.

Fourth prize winners were Joey Boehning, 9, Crestwood, Ill.; Michael John Mills, 9, Palatine, Ill.; Brad Grosse, 8, Austin, Tex.; Laura Alice Congdon, 11, Horicon, Wisc.; and Jiri Hosek, 9, Prague, Czechslovakia. Each received a pair of 7x35 binoculars.

Lincoln Hockey JV Shuts Out Hallock 10-0

Jeff Imgrund and Dale Nelson both had the hat trick Tuesday in Thief River Falls' 10-0 junior varsity high school hockey win over Hallock.

Single goals were scored by Todd Anderson, Jim Dillon, Dean Dokkin and Steve Hoff as Thief River Falls won it on the new 10-goal rule at 5:04 of the third period.

Goalies Paul Wennberg and Brent Schmitz combined for the shutout, backed by a 5-0 first period lead and an 8-0 second period cushion.

The win improved Thief River Falls' season record to 12-4-1.

State Slalom Ski Meet Is Slated Friday

Second phase of the forty-ninth annual Minnesota State High School League state boys' skiing meet and the fifth annual state girls' skiing meet will take place on Friday when slalom competition for teams and individuals is held beginning at 10 a.m. at Welch Village south of Hastings.

Sugar Hills in Grand Rapids was the site of last Friday's first phase of skiing meets when cross country races were conducted. Armstrong won the boys' team title while Wayzata was tops in girls' team competition. The boys' individual winner was senior Todd Boonstra of Burnsville while junior Kathy Klungness of Burnsville finished first in the girls' race.

This Friday at Welch Edina West will try and defend its boys' state championship. Other teams qualifying include Bloomington Lincoln, Grand Rapids, Duluth East, Mounds View, Stillwater, Blake and St. Paul Harding. In boys' individual competition, last year's co-champs have graduated so a new champion is certain. Senior Chris Eagon of Irondale, who finished fifth in last year's state meet, is considered to be one of the favorites for top individual honors.

In girls' team competition, Stillwater is the defending champion and has once again qualified. Other team entrants include Mounds View, Hastings, Blake, Cooper, Robbinsdale, Duluth East and Bemidji. Stillwater is favored to repeat as team titlist. The Ponies have three of the top skiers in the state in sophomore Andrea Saterbak, junior Missy Cool, and senior Robin Nelson. They finished 1-2-3 in last week's section meet. Cool was state champion in 1977 while Nelson was runner-up in 1979.

Both boys and girls skiers will have two runs down the slope. Twenty-eight boys and 28 girls have qualified for individual honors. The first run will commence at 10 a.m.

CONCENTRATION is mirrored in the face of Greg Miller as the Prowlers' senior center shoots the first of a pair of crucial free throws Tuesday in the Prowler win over the Warren Ponies. Miller was ruled to have been intentionally fouled and cashed in both gift tosses to give Thief River Falls a three-point cushion. Warren scored with three seconds left as the Prowlers held on for a 46-45 victory.

Robert Redford Chairman . . .

Wildlife Week Is Set March 16-22

Robert Redford, environmental activist and film star, has been appointed honorary chairman of national wildlife week, to be observed from March 16 through 22.

More than 15 million students, teachers, and other conservation-minded citizens are expected to participate in wildlife week activities this year. The National Wildlife Federation, the nation's largest nonprofit, conservation organization, will distribute 394,000 education kits, 65,000 student kits and more than 1.3 million wildlife week posters to participants across the country and in Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

"We are pleased and honored that Mr. Redford will join us in demonstrating the need to 'Save A Place For Wildlife,' the theme of this year's wildlife week," said Dr. Frederick R. Scroggin, a Dry Ridge, Ky., physician and president of the NWF, which has sponsored wildlife week since it was first proclaimed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1938.

"Time and again, Mr. Redford has shown and expressed his concern for the environment and for wildlife," Scroggin noted. In recognition of this, last year the NWF board of directors named him an honorary vice president of the 4.1 million-member organization. This is the fourth consecutive year that Redford has served as honorary chairman. He also chaired the observance in 1971 and 1972.

As chairman, Redford will take time off from "Ordinary People," the movie he is currently directing, to narrate wildlife week public service announcements for television. These TV "spots" will be broadcast nationwide beginning in March, and will feature a grizzly bear filmed in its natural habitat. The spots explain how the grizzly, like so much of the nation's wildlife, is declining in numbers due to habitat destruction.

Redford, who has made more than 20 films, including the recently released "The Electric Horseman," first became interest in conservation as an undergraduate at the University of Colorado, where he was an avid outdoorsman. Over the years, he has spoken out on a number of environmental issues, including the importance of solar power as an energy source. He has recently been working with Secretary of the Interior Cecil D. Andrus on the possibility of establishing an institute to train experts in natural resource management. The Interior Department is conducting an $80,000 feasibility study on Redford's idea.

Accepting the wildlife week chairmanship, Redford stressed the importance of balancing the needs of wildlife with the needs of people.

"If we are to continue to have a wildlife population in this country, then we must preserve and maintain adequate wildlife habitats — places where wild animals can find food, water, cover and a place to raise their young," Redford said. "We can meet our human needs — for water, timber, oil and other natural resources — without needlessly and recklessly destroying wildlife habitat. That is one of the great challenges of the 1980s — to meet our demands for resources without jeopardizing one of our greatest resources — our wildlife."

Views On® Dental Health

THUMB-SUCKING SYNDROME

Does thumb-sucking lead to crooked teeth? Most experts don't think occasional thumb-sucking in infancy causes any problems with teeth. But there is a general agreement among dentists that prolonged and intensive thumb-sucking past the time the first permanent teeth erupt — at 5 to 6 years of age — can lead to misshapen mouths and displaced teeth.

Actually, the position of individual teeth displaced by thumb-sucking is of less concern to orthodontists than the effect on the bony support of the teeth — and the development of abnormal, deforming muscle activity. If, for example, the habit persists past two years, it could alter the child's swallowing pattern. Once this happens, the youngster may develop a protrusion of the upper front teeth, a narrowness of the upper dental arch, and an obvious malocclusion (improper bite) problem.

As long as there are infants, there will be thumbsuckers. However, if the habit continues longer than usual, it's best to have the child checked by a dentist before it causes any problems.

Coping With The Grain Embargo

The role of agriculture in the American economy is great. This industry not only supplies our food, but also supplies food for nations around the world in the form of trade. As the years pass, however, it is becoming more difficult for the average farmer to produce because of the rapidly increasing cost of agriculture production. Unless the farmer is protected from certain economic conditions over which he has no control, the productivity of the farmer will be further impaired.

The grain embargo which President Carter has implemented against the Soviet Union following its invasion of Afghanistan has the potential to economically hurt the farmer, rural agriculture communities and small businesses related to agriculture and they must be protected. Strong action by the United States and our allies is essential, but I am not convinced everything the Administration is doing is in the best interest of the American farmer.

Upon being notified of the President's embargo plans, I immediately called on Agriculture Secretary Bergland to announce a 20 per cent set-aside program in wheat and feed grains and to substantially increase price support loans and target prices. It was my concern that, without this action, the stoppage of grain shipments would leave the U.S. with an unmanageable grain surplus practically overnight. A few days later I urged President Carter, in a meeting at the White House, to increase and improve his efforts to protect the American farmer from undue economic stress as a result of the embargo. At that time, he had increased support prices for wheat by 15 cents and corn by 10 cents and had announced plans to minimally increase grain storage prices. However, I did not feel these actions were adequate and suggested they should be higher.

In addition, I wrote Secretary Bergland expressing my concern that farmers who placed corn in reserve prior to January 7, 1980 were required to continue paying interest on their loans while farmers who waited until January did not. This was unfair and apparently the Administration agreed because, following my efforts and those of others, Secretary Bergland announced that first year interest which accrued beginning on January 7th would be waived.

Another concern I have with the grain embargo is how and when the grain will be placed on the market if it is not sold to other countries. If the grain is held and suddenly placed on the market by the government, prices will be depressed and the farmers will suffer because of lower market prices. In order to prevent this from happening I have cosponsored legislation which will prohibit the embargoed grain from being released until the market price for each commodity respectively reaches 100 per cent of parity.

The American farmer is patriotic and will support the embargo. All they are asking is for the President to distribute a fair share of the economic burden caused by the embargo to the American taxpayer. I am concerned about the farmer and the rural communities which depend on agriculture for their survival and I will do everything possible to insure that this segment of our society is not unfairly treated by government practices.

3,867 Apply For Vacancies On Mn. Boards

Secretary of state Joan Growe reported that during fiscal year 1979, a total of 3,867 persons applied for 406 vacancies on the various advisory boards and commissions that are administered under the provisions of the open appointments act of 1978.

In the first annual report to the governor and legislature on open appointments, Growe noted that a significant number of citizens had had an opportunity to become aware of openings on these various boards and commissions. Growe said, "Minnesota news media has been extremely responsive to the effort to inform the public and I commend the media for their vital assistance."

Open appointments act applies to 137 committees around the state which advise state government on various subjects. There are 1,334 persons who serve on the committees and they generally serve on a voluntary basis or receive $35 per diem and expenses for each meeting.

Growe said, "These boards and commissions have a tremendous influence on state government. Every citizen ought to know of their existence, and have a chance to be considered for appointment to them."

The report also pointed out that 30 per cent of the 406 appointees were women and that 77 per cent of the appointees who indicated political party affiliation were Republicans. Other data indicates that the appointees are fairly evenly distributed by geographical location.

Growe said, "this is the first real chance we have had to get a clear picture of who is being appointed to these committees. We hope that over the course of time, we will be able to monitor the appointments to ensure that everyone is given an equal opportunity to participate.

Funding for the open appointments process ends March 31, and the current session of the legislature will consider future funding in the next few weeks.

"The most important aspect of this legislation," Growe said, "is that it is the first time that citizens of the state have had access to information about the openings on a regular and uniform basis. I am firmly committed to ensuring that this access continues."

Go With The Flow, But Avoid The Pack For Best Fuel Use

Going with the flow of traffic by maintaining smooth and steady driving while anticipating changes saves gasoline. Driving habits alone can influence fuel efficiency by 14 per cent, a University of Minnesota specialist says, and the cold start is a colossal fuel waster.

"The slightest pressure on the brake, the gas pedal, even the steering wheel costs extra," says Charles Eldridge, extension transportation specialist. "A driver who anticipates changes in traffic by watching well ahead is able to operate smoothly and maintain a fuel-efficient speed."

Eldridge helped trucking companies improve their fuel efficiency while a staff member of the agricultural transportation energy conservation project at the University of Wisconsin-Platteville. He also contributed to a driver education program aimed at boosting miles per gallon for passenger automobile owners. He joined UM in December.

"Smooth driving means you must avoid the pack," Eldridge adds. "When you get caught in a tight group you have to keep adjusting to the changes and mistakes of other drivers."

He advises drivers to anticipate traffic conditions 12 seconds ahead of themselves. In the city that means watching and responding to changes for a full block. On the highway keep track of conditions up to one-fourth mile away.

Another smooth-driving technique is to keep a buffer zone around your vehicle. Don't follow other cars too closely or drive right next to another vehicle. Maintaining a buffer zone of about two seconds on all sides gives you more room to maneuver, a margin of safety and more time to adjust to traffic.

All vehicles have a speed range in which they are most fuel efficient, usually about 35-45 miles per hour. Fuel use goes up drastically at speeds below 30 and above 50. "If you're getting 22 miles per gallon in the fuel efficient range, then at 10 mph you'll only get 14-15," Eldridge says. "Zipping along at 70 could raise fuel consumption by a third."

It seems obvious that planning ahead could reduce the number of short trips made for routine chores. But is it worth the bother?

"The most frequently-made vehicle trip is one mile long," Eldridge reports. "Trips of five miles or less make up 15 per cent of all miles driven, but consume 30 per cent of all gasoline used by automobiles. An average household takes five or six trips a day for family business, social and other reasons."

Reason for such inefficiency is the cold start. If your car is capable of getting 20 mpg when warm, it will only run at four mpg during a four-mile trip from a cold start.

Cold starts impose a heavy fuel penalty because the engine and all moving parts in the drive train and axles must attain operating temperature before friction is minimized.

"The solution to the problems of short trips and cold starts isn't simply to make your short trips longer, or to idle the car longer," Eldridge says. "Rather, you should plan more efficiently, combining several short trips into a long one, and eliminating some trips altogether.

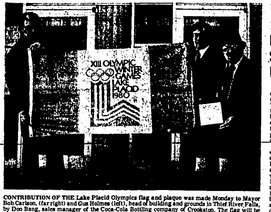
A 30-second warm-up, followed by driving at slow to moderate speeds provides peak fuel economy. "Any idling beyond one minute is simply burning money," he says.

Spark plugs and tires can cost you fuel efficiency if not properly maintained. Eldridge recalls, "We ran a free electronic engine analysis during a state-wide celebration this summer, and found that 67 per cent of the cars and pick-ups tested had faulty spark plugs."

One misfiring spark plug in an eight-cylinder engine increases fuel consumption by seven per cent. Two bad plugs raise it 20 per cent.

Low tire inflation can cut mileage five per cent. "Most of the vehicles we checked had tires under-inflated by 10-15 pounds," Eldridge says. "Low inflation causes excessive wear. Remember, it takes at least 14 gallons of crude oil to manufacture each tire."

Gas-saving habits don't come naturally, Eldridge warns. He suggests that drivers get details on fuel efficient car operation from brochures available through civic groups or the U.S. department of energy. It will take a few months of practice before the new techniques become a natural part of driving, but continued price hikes at the gas pump are likely to make it all worthwhile, he says.



CONTRIBUTION OF THE Lake Placid Olympics flag and plaque was made Monday to Mayor Bob Carlson, (far right) and Gus Holmes (left), head of building and grounds in Thief River Falls, by Don Bang, sales manager of the Coca-Cola Bottling company of Crookston. The flag will be flown in Thief River Falls throughout the Olympic games. Display of the flag across the nation represents "the spirit of the Olympics and establishes the first week of February 1980 as Winter Olympics awareness week," according to Rev. J. Bernard Fell, president of the Lake Placid Olympic organizing committee. This will be the fifth time that the games have been conducted in the United States.

FFA Week In State Starts February 16th

Governor Albert H. Quie has officially proclaimed the week of February 16-23 as "FFA Week" in Minnesota, part of the national observance honoring the national FFA organization and the nearly 500,000 members in approximately 8,000 affiliated chapters.

The FFA week will officially open the 50th anniversary celebration of Minnesota Future Farmers of America as the first state FFA chapters were founded in Minnesota in 1929 and the first annual meeting was held in May, 1930. There are 16,055 members of FFA in Minnesota's 279 affiliated local high school chapters.

Future Farmers of America (FFA) is an organization for students preparing for careers in agriculture. FFA activities and award programs complement instruction in vocational agriculture-agribusiness by giving students practical experience in the application of agricultural skills and knowledge acquired in the room. A major emphasis of the FFA is the development of leadership skills and abilities to prepare young people for agricultural careers.

Vocational agriculture programs provide training in eight basic areas of agriculture. The FFA has incentive award programs directly related to the instruction program in these areas: Agricultural mechanics occupations; agricultural products, processing and marketing occupations; agricultural supplies and service occupations; forestry occupations; horticultural occupations; natural resources occupations; production agriculture occupations; and other agriculture agribusiness, natural resources occupations.

Primary purpose of the FFA is to develop leadership, citizenship and the compatible skills of communications, safety, decision-making, positive attitudes towards learning the work ethic and personal and occupational responsibility.

State headquarters of the FFA is in the agriculture education unit of the state department of education, division of vocational-technical education, Capitol Square building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101.

Minnesota FFA members are involved in a variety of activities from community development projects to judging contests in career related areas. In addition, the state association and local chapters provide many opportunities for leadership development for FFA members.

It is educational and informational in content, noncommercial in nature, and suitable for showing to community groups, school classes or visitors to the area.

Tax Filing Is Due April 15, W-2 Or Not

Employees who have not received their wage and tax statements (Form W-2) from their employers must still file by April 15, the Internal revenue service advises.

To avoid delays in receiving the W-2, employees should furnish their employers with a current address. If employees did not receive the statement by January 31, they should first contact their employer. After February 15, the employee should ask for help by calling the IRS toll-free number listed in the telephone directory.

IRS reminds taxpayers that they must have a W-2 form from every employer they worked for during the year. Even if an employee is unable to get a W-2 before the filing deadline of April 15, a timely return must be filed. Report all income and attach a statement explaining the tax computations for the missing wage and tax information, the IRS says.

Medic Alert Emblem Helps To Speed Care

A few weeks ago, a thirty-five year old unconscious female was brought into the emergency room at Long Beach memorial hospital.

"Emergency personnel quickly noticed the "medic alert" emblem on her wrist with the 'daibetes' imprint. A call to medic alert's 24-hour answering service provided additional information which saved the physician and emergency nurse considerable time," replied Malcolm C. Todd, M.D., a doctor at the hospital who also is a former president of the American Medical association.

"The time factor involved with the gathering of a patient's medical history can be particularly costly in terms of dollars. In emergencies, where the patient is unable to speak or communicate, the time saved by obtaining vital data through the 24-hour emergency information service can make the difference between life or death," Todd said.

"The emblem also saved her or the insurance carrier money caused by unnecessary testing and studies," Todd added.

Medic alert, formed 23 years ago, is nonprofit, charitable and tax-emempt. Its mission is to provide a complete emergency identification and information service to everyone with a hidden medical condition ranging from allergies to medication, heart problems, epilepsy and diabetes. These are only four of the more than 200 reasons some 1.5 million people worldwide wear the medic alert emblem.

The emblem is worn either around the neck or on the wrist. On the reverse side is an engraved 24-hour emergency phone number, the wearer's hidden medical condition and an ID number. Emergency personnel, trained to look for alerting types of ID when faced with a situation where a victim is unable to communicate, can obtain lifesaving informatin through medic alert's central registry.

A wallet card is issued annually to each member which carries additional information about the patient.

"The physician can play an extremely important role in helping to bring the medic alert system to the attention of those patients who do have a hidden medical dondition," Todd said.

"One of the medic alert's primary objectives is to support the physician in his work to provide the best health care possible," Todd stated.

The medic alert organization says that there are over 40 million Americans, or roughly one out of five people, who have a hidden medical condition. They urge those people to write for informatiorito Medic Alert, Turlock, California 95380 or call a regional office in New York City, Chicago Orlando or Salt Lake City.

U of M Makes Proposal On Building Plan

University of Minnesota has introduced a proposal to spend $353 million on its buildings from 1981 to 1987. Two members of the university's board of regents immediately criticized the plan for slighting the building program on outstate campuses.

The long-range plan was requested by Gov. Al Quie, and it will be submitted to the governor in February. At a recent meeting of the board of regents, university officials emphasized that the document was a plan, subject to change, and not an actual legislative request.

"It's impossible to be that precise on this kind of plan because of inflation and the need to rely on 'estimates,'" said university president C. Peter Magrath. Projected costs used an eight per cent inflation rate, and figures were rounded off to the nearest quarter million.

New building accounts for two-thirds of the plan, Magrath pointed out. The other one-third, $177 million, is for energy, building maintenance and bringing existing buildings up to code, he said.

Regent Erwin Goldfine of Duluth called the plan "unfair and impractical." He said that for 1981-83 the plan provides the Twin Cities campus with over 95 per cent of the building request. "We can't leave the coordinate campuses out completely, and that's what you've done here," he told university administrators.

Goldfine said he feels there has been a tendency to slight outstate campuses during the five years he's served on the board.

"I find it highly offensive that you suggest this board has neglected the coordinate campuses. Nothing could be further from the truth," replied Regent David Lebedoff of Minneapolis. Regent Neil Sherburne, Lakeland, pointed out that the Twin Cities campus needs a higher building budget because it is 100 years older than the outstate campuses.

Goldfine also said the plan wasn't "very saleable. Legislators from rural areas won't like spending 95 per cent of the request on the Twin Cities campus. The university plays a key role in the economic life of communities in which it resides. A fair and equitable distribution of construction work should be given out," he said.

Regent Lauris Krenik of Madison Lake also said the plan was not practical because of its lack of appeal to rural legislators.

"I don't care if the plan isn't politically saleable," said regent Robert Latz of Minneapolis. "If we can't get funding on merit, then we don't deserve it."

The six-year plan does not include the university's 1980 building request, which will be considered at the legislative session beginning this month. "We had to assume that we'd get all the money we requested in 1980," said Al Linck, the university vice president who was in charge of the six-year plan. He said the plan would be revised in the fall to cover 1980 requests that were not funded by the legislature.

Magrath said the building projects were ranked in priority, and there were many proposed projects that failed to make the list. "If we endorsed all the projects with merit, the plan would have gone over a billion dollars," he said.

School Safety Patrol Week Set Feb. 17-23

February 17 marks the 59th anniversary of the founding in Minnesota of the nation's first school safety patrol program and Governor Albert Quie has proclaimed the week of February 17-23 as school safety patrol week.

Quie urged communities to give special recognition to the estimated 35,000 young persons who serve in the school safety patrols throughout Minnesota.

Commissioner John P. Sopsic, Minnesota department of public safety, says that the school safety patrol in Minnesota last year continued its perfect record of never having had a life lost at crossings guarded by patrol members.

First school patrol program began in St. Paul in 1921 when Sister Carmela organized a group of students to protect school children crossing the busy intersection at Summit avenue and Kellogg boulevard. A monument nearby honors the patrol program's founder.

St. Paul city council established a city-wide system of school police in 1922. By 1930, similar patrols were being formed throughout the state. In 1932 the Minnesota Legislature authorized a statewide school safety patrol system.

Patrol members will receive further public recognition at the governor's award banquet in May when the Minnesota safety council presents awards for outstanding school safety patrol activities.

ICCC Board To Meet In Gully

Arts Museum Plans Contest For Students

North Country museum of arts is readying the 1980 season opening and will start it off in May with a juried fine art exhibit of the works of high school students, grades 10-12, Regions 1-5, 7E and 7W. To publicize this event, the museum is offering a $75 award to the student, grades 10-12, whose banner design is chosen to represent this exhibit annually.

Contestants for the prize need not be currently enrolled in an art course to enter. Design should be reproducible to 10 feet by five feet and must be submitted unfolded, 20 inches high by 10 inches wide. Any colors may be used. Winner will be recognized at a special museum opening reception on May 4. Entries should be postmarked no later than February 15, and mailed to NCMA, P.O. Box 328, Park Rapids, MN 56470. Call 218-732-9572 if additional information is needed.

Fine arts exhibit will be held April 22 through May 3 for high school students only, and May 4 through June 8 for the general public. All students whose work has been selected to display will be recognized at the May 4 reception. First, second, and third prizes will be awarded in all categories as well as a best of show, a curator's choice and a director's choice. Merit awards will also be given.

Categories are: oil painting, acrylic painting, watercolor painting, colored drawings, black and white drawings, pottery, sculpture, fibers, jewelry and prints. Students may enter works in any or all categories but only one entry for each.

Students who are interested in entering their works should get information from their high school art instructor or call 218-732-9572; after April 1 call 218-732-5237. Entry deadline is April 12.

When it gets too much

A President of the United States in the middle of a war that nobody liked turned to prayer. Abraham Lincoln explained simply that he had been driven to his knees many times by the knowledge that his own strength, and that of all around him, was insufficient.

Sometimes we have to pray! It gets too much . . .

And don't feel awkward if you're not used to it. Folks before you have found that life gets too much. They have been driven to their knees — and turned to God — believing there was something better ahead.

Your worst day could become your best! Why not check it out in church? What Abe Lincoln was driven to may be what your soul needs, hungers for.

When it gets too much — there's a better way ahead.

Hmong People Find Life Here Not Easy

by Maureen Smith
U of M News Service

In the war in southeast Asia, they fought on the losing side. Fearing for their lives when the war was over, they fled from their villages in the mountains of Laos, swam across the Mekong river and landed in refugee camps in Thailand.

Now more than 2,000 of them are in Minnesota, most of them in a growing community in St. Paul.

They call themselves Hmong, pronounced mung, which means free. American life has not been easy for the Hmong. Catching buses, shopping in supermarkets and working in factories or living on welfare are alien experiences for a traditional tribal people who came from small independent villages, worked mostly out of doors, and usually had little prior exposure to English.

But most of them are glad to be here. "I'm pretty lucky I came to Minnesota," said Phay Vang, who is now working in the College of Liberal Arts (CLA) budget office at the University of Minnesota. "A barn in this country is better than a camp in Thailand," said Shoua Vang, a caseworker at the International institute of Minnesota.

"The Hmong are amazing for their lack of expressed bitterness, although they do have emotional and physical problems," said Timothy Dunnigan, associate professor of American Indian studies at the university who has worked with them and studied their culture. "They are very open and trusting toward Americans."

Mary Bilek, assistant to the dean in CLA, is sponsoring a Hmong family. She remembers meeting them at the airport on a cold winter day. "They arrived in their short-sleeved shirts, with bare legs and rubber sandals. They carried everything they had in a little box not much bigger than a shoebox."

The family of three — a young man and woman and a baby — stayed with Bilek and her husband and children for a month before moving to an apartment. Bilek has continued to help the family and she said they are "rapidly adjusting to this life, but they still have a long way to go."

Joseph Westermeyer, associate professor of psychiatry at the university, was in Laos from 1965 to 1967 as a physician in the public health division of the Agency for International Development and returned six or seven times between 1970 and 1975 to do research on opium addiction and mental illness among the Hmong and other ethnic groups in Laos. Westermeyer and his wife have a Hmong foster daughter, now in her thirties.

Every Thursday Westermeyer holds a clinic for Hmong people who are suffering from depression. His knowledge of the Hmong language is limited, but he does what he can with the help of an interpreter.

What has been devasting for the Hmong has been the separation from family members — and the Hmong define a family more broadly than the American government does. In working with the Hmong and other refugees, American officials have tended to keep nuclear families together — husbands, wives and children — but to allow extended families to be scattered.

For the Hmong, Dunnigan said, "the attachment to parents is very strong, and also to siblings and what we would call aunts and uncles and cousins." When important family members are left behind in refugee camps or sent to other parts of the United States, he said, the Hmong "feel as if parts of their body have been cut away."

Westermeyer said that some of the emotional problems of the Hmong have been eased as families have been reunited. "There are marriage problems that I felt at wit's end to help with, and now as more people have moved in, some of those marriages have stopped needing my services. The people's lives improve as more of the clan arrives."

Elders are revered in Hmong society, and here, too, American values and Hmong values have collided. Dunnigan said one of the tragedies for the Hmong has been that American policy has often prevented the immigration of old people — the very people regarded as most valuable by the Hmong. In deciding which people to bring out of the camps, American officials have tended to prefer those who are young and vigorous and employable.

For the old people who do make it to this country, Westermeyer said, life in America can be a painful comedown. "In the past, age brought with it wisdom. Now the old people are being asked to do janitor work. They faced malaria and tigers in Laos, they've been through the war, they've been through the refugee camps, they've survived all that, led their families through, and when they get here to the promised land, they are demoted."

Except for the handful of young people who are educated outside the community most of the Hmong are illiterate even in their own language, and learning English is a difficult challenge for them. Hmong is a difficult language for English speakers to learn, and English is difficult for speakers of Hmong.

Until they do learn English, most of the Hmong are isolated and unemployable in American society. Westermeyer said he has seen people who are going to language classes two or three hours a day, and "after two or three years they're not picking up English, and they don't have any American friends. The ones I see are so depressed that they can't study. Once they get some English they can go and try to find a job, but until then they are despondent."

Wherever they have lived, the Hmong have been in the minority, and they have learned to make accomodations. In America they know that they must change some of their ways. "Back home there was a bride price," said Leng Vang, a Hmong leader who is an outreach worker for Lutheran Social Services. "Here of course there is no bride price. We know that in the United States there are equal rights for all. We have to treat people equally, not like back home where the men have more power. We have to study it, iron it out."

But even as they are making changes, the Hmong are working to preserve as much of their culture as they can — to continue what can be continued, and to record what is lost.

One of the most interesting things about the Hmong is that they are so involved in communicating with others about their experience," Dunnigan said. "They have fantastic oral tradition, poems about their origins and the common experience of their people, and right now they are prolific creators of poems and ballads about the refugee experience. They want to record and record and record, preserve in any way they can."

The common toe corn is now an ailment of the past.

In fact, the Academy of Ambulatory Foot Surgery, a professional society of podiatrists with the skills and instruments to perform surgery in their offices, believes that the toe corn can be eliminated entirely through in-office procedures which eradicates the basic cause.

The research committee directing the toe corn study, said reports by the nearly 2,000 Academy members indicate "overwhelming success in permanently removing the bone deformities that cause toe corns utilizing in-office procedures that are completed in a brief period of time."

The toe corn, which is second only to the common cold in causing discomfort to Americans, results from an abnormal bone structure. The corn forms when the area is irritated, either from ill-fitting shoes or by exercise.

"By removal of the bone projection," said the Academy Committee, podiatrists who are ambulatory foot surgeons have found there is no recurrence in over 99% of the cases in their files."

Bone deformities also can result in painful bunions, callouses, in-grown nails and other pain-causing foot ailments.

"Shoes are not the primary causes of such ailments," the podiatrists explained. Nature is."

The Academy of Ambulatory Foot Surgery is headquartered at 1405 Locust Street, Philadelphia, with members in all states, Canada, Mexico, Australia and Great Britain.

Diabetics Respond To Transplants

by Paul Schurke
'U' M News Service

Results of a University of Minnesota study show that diabetics — long seen as poor candidates for transplant surgery — respond well to kidney transplants.

A recent report on the first decade of work on kidney transplants for diabetics done at University of Minnesota hospitals offers hope for the many long-term diabetics who face life-threatening kidney failure. Furthermore, success rates at Minnesota suggest that other transplant centers should reconsider their reluctance to work with diabetics, said David Sutherland, a university surgeon and co-author of the report.

A growing need makes this attitude change vitally important, Sutherland said. Improved control of the disease is now ensuring diabetics longer lives. As a result, the incidence of kidney failure among diabetics is rising: about half of the diabetics who live more than 20 years after diagnosis experience kidney failure.

Of the 30,000 kidney transplants that have been done worldwide, fewer than a thousand have involved diabetics. Yet diabetes accounts for about 25 per cent of new cases of kidney failure, Sutherland said.

University's transplant program, one of the busiest in the world, became, in 1968, the first to accept diabetics. It is now one of only four programs in the nation that regularly does so.

Unlike other persons whose kidneys fail, diabetics do not survive long on dialysis, a technique in which a machine assumes the kidney's role of purifying the blood. Many medical centers have been reluctant to choose the other option, kidney transplants, because it was feared that survival rates for diabetics would be much lower than those of other persons who received kidneys.

On the contrary, however, the survival rate for diabetics in the Minnesota program has been similar to that of non-diabetics. Of 305 diabetics who received kidneys between 1968 and 1978, 208 are still alive, having survived from three months to 10 years.

Two-year survival rates for diabetics who received kidneys from cadavers, from living related donors, and from identically matched related donors are 68, 73 and 90 per cent respectively. Corresponding survival rates for non-diabetic kidney recipients are 75, 88 and 98 per cent.

These survival rates translate into longer and fuller lives for many people. Consider Dale Rusk's experience.

Now 37, Rusk first experienced the symptoms of diabetes when he was 13. He controlled the disease with daily doses of insulin, but it later cost him his kidneys. In 1972, he became the 27th patient of the university's diabetic transplant program when his father gave him a kidney.

While he still has diabetes-related problems, the kidney is "working just fine," he said. He takes immunosuppressive drugs to prevent his body from rejecting the kidney, but otherwise "I do nothing out of the ordinary." Diabetes has left him legally blind, unable to drive but able to read large print. Yet like other transplant recipients, his eyesight has stabilized, and he has been able to return to work.

Sutherland attributes the university's success rate, which makes experiences like Rusk's possible, to many things. He cited general improvements in kidney transplantation techniques forged by the University researchers. Most notably, these include development of the perfusion machine, a device that sustains cadaver kidneys for up to 72 hours, and refinements in the use of ALG, a promising new anti-rejection drug.

Specialized care has also boosted survival rates, he said. Unlike other transplant centers, the university's houses its patients in a separate ward staffed like an intensive care unit.

Another factor Sutherland cited is that the university receives the majority of its transplant organs from relatives of the patients. Other centers must rely primarily on cadaver organs, for which success rates aren't nearly as good. Sutherland said the "strong structure and unique cohesiveness of Minnesota families" are responsible for this generosity. "Family members here vie with one another to give a kidney," he said.

Sutherland looks forward to the day when improved control of diabetes will reduce its tendency to injure the kidneys. Techniques include the portable infusion pump that regulates blood sugar level far better than once or twice-daily shots of insulin. One such device is being developed by university surgeon Henry Buchwald.

Sutherland also looks for improvements in transplantation techniques. The breakthrough will come when researchers learn to control the body's rejection of transplanted organs, he said. Currently, drugs given to suppress rejection allow disease germs to sweep through the body unchecked. Researchers are seeking drug or radiation techniques that can suppress rejection of a specific organ without disrupting the rest of the body's immune system.

On the frontier is an attempt to cure diabetes by transplanting all or part of the pancreas, the organ at fault in most forms of the disease. In an experimental program through the university's clinical research center, surgeons have performed 24 such operations.

These efforts have shown some success: grafts continue to survive in three of the patients. Participants have been diabetics who had had kidney transplants, since their bodies were already accustomed to immunosuppressive drugs. But, Sutherland said, "when we learn to control rejection, we can perhaps transplant the pancreas first and avoid kidney failure altogether."

Cattle On Feed In Minnesota Down Slightly

Minnesota feedlots contained 390,000 cattle on January 1, two per cent below last year but within one per cent of the January 1 average for the last four years. However this inventory is 47 per cent above last quarter.

Placements from October-December 1979 were two per cent below the same period in 1973, but 134 per cent above the previous quarter. Marketings of 135,000 fell five per cent below the same quarter last year and posted a nine per cent crop from the previous quarter.

Farmers reported they expect to market 200,000 cattle during the next three months (January-March), five per cent below the actual marketings for the same period last year.

Cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market in 23 states on Jan. 1, 1980 totaled 11.7 million head. This number was down seven per cent from Jan. 1, 1979 and eight per cent below Jan. 1, 1978. Placements during the October-December 1979 quarter were 8.10 million, seven per cent below 1978 and 15 per cent lower than the 1977 fourth quarter. Other disappearance of 571, leaves a net placement of 7.53 million. Marketings of fed cattle for slaughter during the October-December 1979 quarter were 5.73 million, 15 per cent and six per cent below 1978 and 1977, respectively.

The Jan. 1, 1980 number of cattle on feed included 7.91 million steers and steer calves, seven per cent below Jan. 1, 1979 and five per cent below Jan. 1, 1978. Steers and steer calves accounted for 67 per cent of total cattle on feed.

Cattle feeders intend to market 6.38 million during the January-March quarter of 1980. If this total is realized, the first quarter marketings would be five per cent below 1979 and six per cent below the same period of 1978.

Mn/DOT Won't Tow Stranded Motor Vehicles

If you skid into a snowbank this winter, don't expect one of the Minnesota department of transportation's (Mn-DOT's) orange trucks to tow you out, cautions Larry McNamara, state maintenance engineer.

Although Mn-DOT maintenance forces are able to offer emergency assistance such as obtaining medical help, calling a tow truck or summoning the state patrol, Mn-DOT crews are prohibited from towing stranded vehicles, McNamara said. "We can't risk incurring liability for the state by possibly bending a bumper or otherwise damaging a car in pulling it out."

McNamara added that since the driver's physical condition is sometimes a factor in causing the predicament, it's not always advisable to put a driver back on the road. "Our employees can't be expected to make judgments more appropriately in the province of the state patrol," he said.

"Stranded motorists often become indignant when maintenance personnel won't tow them out of a snowbank, but we really have no choice in the matter."

McNamara advised motorists to heed the travel advisories issued by the department through the media and not to travel roads known to be drifted or in dangerous condition. "Motorists who ignore a barricade on a road risk their lives and the lives of our crews who must then open a lane for emergency assistance if the motorists become stranded," McNamara said.

The department's road information unit receives road condition and weather reports from all maintenance areas statewide and furnishes up-to-date road information to the news media by teletype and to the individual traveler who calls for information (612-296-3076) in St. Paul.

McNamara warned it's not unusual to have clear weather in one part of the state and stormy weather in another.

Advice Given To Prospective Reptile Owners

by Robert L. Stear, D.V.M.

I've encountered a number of reptiles during my years of veterinary practice, but I don't ever expect them to become popular household pets. Turtles, lizards and snakes will probably always remain the odd fellows in the pet shop. Their dry, cool and scaly bodies just don't have the broad appeal of the more playful, warm-blooded pets.

If you are considering owning reptiles, however, here are a few thoughts to aid in keeping them healthy.

Providing the proper food and correct temperature for your pet will be your biggest challenges. Many reptiles are carnivorous, preferring only live meat. Small reptiles, such as collared lizards, want mealworms, earthworms, crickets and grasshoppers. Snakes prefer suckling (newborn) mice and other small rodents, although you might be successful in substituting small chunks of meat that "wriggle" from the end of a broomstraw or string. Some lizards, like the iguana, also need substantial quantities of vegetables, such as lettuce, tomatoes or spinach, and some fruit.

All your efforts in selecting the proper foods for your pet will be wasted if you don't also provide the proper temperature. Reptiles living in the wild use the sun to regulate their body temperature, and to speed up blood circulation and digestion. Animals kept in terrariums also need a source of warmth. Standard aquarium hood is equipped with light bulbs which generate enough heat for some lizards; others may need an overhead heat lamp to feel comfortable. Your public library should have reference books describing the environment suitable for your reptiles.

A major concern for any caged animal is fresh water. Although you will rarely see your reptile actually drinking, there should always be fresh water available. Evaporation from the water dish also adds moisture to the air, making tropical reptiles feel more comfortable. Turtles found in ponds and streams need several inches of water in their aquariums or terrariums, since they consume all their food underwater. All snakes prefer a water dish large enough to coil up in. Soaking process is essential when the time comes for them to shed the outer layer of skin.

You may notice that cold-blooded animals are somewhat shy and retiring. They often prefer to retreat out of sight within the terrarium. An inverted bowl or length of hollow log inside the terrarium adds to their sense of security.

Many reptiles are classified as endangered species. This means their numbers are rapidly declining, and the species may disappear permanently from the earth. For this reason, I don't encourage clients to keep most snakes, lizards or turtles. When natural habitats cannot be successfully duplicated, reptiles often refuse to eat and eventually starve. This removes one more animal from the already limited breeding pool, and reduces the chances that the species will survive.

Many states strictly enforce laws protecting endangered species and heavily fine collectors who take protected wild animals. Be aware of the laws in your state before purchasing or capturing an unusual reptile or mammal.

Experienced reptile owners will testify that some animals captured in the wild never resign themselves to living in captivity. It's not uncommon to see snakes with their noses rubbed raw after fruitlessly searching for a way out of screened cages. Those that do escape may die from starvation as they stubbornly hide in heat registers or crawl spaces. Average life expectancy for reptiles purchased by unprepared pet owners is three to six months.

My advice to a prospective reptile owner is to read all available material before buying the animal. You might also ask your veterinarian for suggestions regarding housing and diet. Then determine if you can really support the reptile in the manner to which it is accustomed. Too many of these animals die because of improper care.

Well Done, John!

It is not our position to pass judgment on the administrative abilities of John Penn, recently relieved of his duties as chief executive officer of Arctic Enterprises, but his unexpected presentation to the chamber of commerce annual meeting Monday evening left no doubt as to his measure as a man.

The applause he received when introduced to make a few comments and the standing ovation he received at the conclusion were indicators of the esteem in which he is held by the community. He should have been gratified by the response and we are sure he was, for he impresses us as a person with deep human feelings.

Penn was frank in his description of what happened. "I was fired," he said. "That's what I told my kids because I knew that's what they would hear in school and it is true."

In the years that we have known John we have found him to be possessed of such candor always. He was concerned not only about how well his company did for its stockholders but how well it did for its employees, customers and the communities in which it functioned. We are guessing, but perhaps it was this corporate compassion which contributed to his present unemployment. There is little room in big business — and Arctic Enterprises is big business — for humanism to extend beyond dollar return on investment. Survival is determined in dollars and cents.

Arctic Enterprises has been a newsmaker ever since it came on the Thief River Falls scene. We had a number of occasions to meet and talk with John about the company's successes and setbacks during his tenure at the helm and we never left his office or hung up the phone without feeling that he had been totally open and honest and straightforward in his information and his answers to questions. We appreciated that.

An insight into that relationship is provided by our ability to call and visit candidly with him after his dismissal. The circumstances were less than pleasant but John maintained the same professionalism and character that he displayed while heading the company. We appreciated that, too.

And we especially appreciated his comments Monday evening: That he accepted his removal from the top office in the company; that he would continue to have the company at heart and do what he could for it as a member of the board of directors; that the community is bigger than simply Arctic Enterprises; and that community residents should forget about Arctic's troubles and go about managing their own affairs in the best way they know how.

The time will likely come when it will be necessary for John Penn to leave this community and put his talents to use in other endeavors. He means it when he says he would be reluctant to leave.

But let us say from a grateful community before that time comes, for your contributions to our town and area and for your heartfelt comments Monday night. . .well done, John!

Headline Provokes

Scott Schoen of the Redwood Gazette didn't like an editorial page headline in the Minneapolis Star and is disappointed it didn't generate more indignation. Schoen writes as follows:

We're disappointed with Minnesota's Independent-Republicans, and particularly with those who are holed up in Minneapolis. This has nothing to do with Governor Al Quie or Senators Rudy Boschwitz and David Durenberger. It's rank and file party people who should have been indignant, and who should have made their pique known.

What should have perched them upon their ears and soon thereafter sent them to their typewriters was a headline in the Minneapolis Star which proclaimed: "George Bush, the least objectionable Republican."

It was stretched across the Opinion Page in what must be its equivalent of prime TV time and, lest the taunt might go unnoticed, it was repeated on the second Opinion Page where it was strung out across four of its five columns.

No doubt we are thin-skinned about some matters, as we have been accused. After all, it could have been worse. The Star could have substituted "abominable" for "objectionable," or come up with "least obnoxious Republican." But with objectionable going unchallenged, who can be certain that even stronger words won't be used to describe I-R's another time.

The Star is disposed to making endorsements prior to elections, and has a strong tendency to see more merit in DFL'ers. Very rarely does it endorse with such faint praise as "least objectionable." Offhand, we don't recall such an instance.

Gazetteland readers aren't as prone to letter writing as we would like, but our mail volume would have boomed, not bombed, had we described — and in a headline — Bob Starr or Archie Bauman as the "least objectionable" DFL'ers in the community!

The Star headline to which we object appeared in the Dec. 6 issue, over an editorial attributed to Alan Baron of the Los Angeles Times. Baron was reasonably tolerant of Republicans, noting that they come from Wall street, Main street and Easy street — three places, although he didn't say so, where Democratic candidates also originate. He said little about Bush to which Bush could object, and much of it was laudatory. It wasn't until very nearly the last line that Baron called Bush "less objectionable than anyone else," and he softened that by noting that Carter was the "least objectionable moderate" when he won three years ago.

It was the headline which invited the barrage which hasn't happened. Come to think of it, the headline doesn't even specify: least objectionable candidate. That leaves all Republicans in the objectionable category.

Hearing And Listening

Writing in "CA Highlights", a publication of Communicating for Agriculture, Inc., Pat Leimbach comments on the recent hearings held by Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland across the United States. She was impressed by Bergland's willingness to listen in person to individual testimony — including her own — and she editorially asks these questions of the Secretary:

"Did you hear those farmers saying, as I did, that what they wanted from the government was more education and research and less of everything else? Did you hear those words 'free enterprise' echoed and re-echoed in nearly every three-minute speech all day long?

"Did you hear them saying that more than anything else they want to be able to pass their profession and property on to their sons and grandsons, their daughters and granddaughters?

"Did you hear them calling for a definition of the family farm, unrestricted by physical size, economic limits or man-hours of labor? I hope so."

She also makes a point of understanding better now the dilemmas faced by a secretary of agriculture. Some of the questions Bergland raised with the farmers included — in Pat Leimbach's words — the following:

"Should the government make support payments to huge agribusiness complexes at the same rate they would to small units? Can the government shut the door to food imports when the lifeblood of the nation is in its own food exports?

"Whom do I believe when one panel of experts tells me nitrates are harmful to humans and a second panel of experts tells me they are not? What part should the government play in shoring up the railroads?"

Mrs. Leimbach empathizes with the somewhat feisty old gentlemen who said he was tired of the government talking about "our wheat" and "our cattle".

He told of going out and delivering a calf in the middle of the night, carrying the shivering animal into the kitchen of his home and climaxing his argument with "Dammit! It's mine!"

But she was encouraged by the top national agricultural figure taking the time and effort to listen and to hear what was said. "Who else in government," she asks, "has made such a broad and effective effort to solicit and honor the opinions of his constituency?"

Interesting Opinions:

"But I am opposed to putting garbage on television for the same reason I would oppose open sewers in our streets. It can be argued that what's in those sewers is 'natural' and 'normal' and 'everybody does it' and that 'it's not dirty'. But everywhere in the world where that sewage flows unconfined it breeds disease."

—Paul Harvey

Borrowed Nonsense:

News has leaked out that Amy Carter has won the spelling championship at her school in the nation's capital. It seems she's the only one in her class who can spell Chappaquiddick.

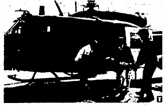
Army Medics Make House Calls



A tractor explosion on a remote, rural farm severely burns the operator. A child clings to life as he awaits immediate and sophisticated surgery due to a blood clot in the brain. Two cars collide on a near-deserted mid-west highway. Severe blood loss will kill one driver if medical aid isn't swift.

All of these are real situations. All required immediate emergency relief. And all were attended to by the U.S. Army's Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic (MAST) units.

MAST helicopter units, located mainly on Army posts in rural America, operate on an emergency call basis from state and local law enforcement agencies, fire departments, hospitals, medical centers and doctors. Patient transfers from hospital to hospital, medical assistance for flood and fire victims and emergency blood bank deliveries are routine for the units.

They even make "house calls." In many instances the patient can't survive a flight and a doctor must be flown to the scene. Typically, however, it's the speed in which the patient can be flown to a hospital, as opposed to driving the overland route, which determines the difference between life or death.

In the case of the boy with the blood clot, other complications occurred. Because of his condition, the MAST helicopter had to fly low at 100 feet above the tree tops to keep pressure from his brain. The copters normally whirl aloft at 1,500 feet. But the two and one-half hour flight trimmed three hours from an overland trek.

The Army's emergency teams initially came into being to pick up wounded troops in the field and in remote battle areas, then fly them to military hospitals. And MAST units continue to serve military needs at Army posts throughout the country. Crew members of Kentucky's 431st Medical Detachment MAST unit recently flew their 1,650th military emergency mission. Also, at approximately the same time, they completed their 1,000th mercy flight for the civilian community.

The crew, flying HUEY choppers, consists of a pilot, co-pilot, crew chief and medic. They also carry doctors and can take aboard three patients under "normal" conditions and up to six with aircraft alterations. Equipment transported by the helicopters ranges from incubators to cardiac monitors and is interchanged depending on the emergency.

And where else these days could you find a doctor who makes house calls?

cancer answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Cancer Answers:

I'm confused. Does DES cause cancer, or is it a treatment for cancer?

D.R.

Dear D.R.:

DES is felt to be a cause of cancer, but it has also proven effective in treating certain forms of cancer.

For many years, the synthetic estrogen DES (diethylstilbestrol) was prescribed for pregnant women in the belief that it would prevent miscarriage. Now it is known that this drug does not prevent miscarriage but that it can cause tissue abnormalities in the vagina or cervis of female children born to women who took the drug during the pregnancy. These abnormalities haven't been found to develop into cancer and don't interfere with intercourse, contraception or pregnancy.

However, some cases of a rare type of vaginal cancer have occurred in DES-exposed daughters. Women whose mothers took DES or similar drugs during pregnancy should be closely followed by a doctor. (There are no cancer-related findings in males whose mothers took DES-type drugs during the pregnancy, although some studies show that there may be an increased risk of infertility).

On the other hand, DES has been used to treat cancers, such as those of the breast and prostate, which are known to be sensitive to hormones. Treatment with DES can cause these tumors to shrink and, in some cases, give dramatic pain relief. DES therapy also has prolonged the lives of some cancer patients.

Dear Cancer Answers:

My sister's doctor recently told her that she had chronic ulcerative colitis. He said that the condition was not serious, but should be checked regularly because of the chances if it turning to cancer.

What is the risk of a person with colitis getting cancer?

M.S.

Dear M.S.:

The risk of colon cancer in patients with chronic ulcerative colitis varies, according to a number of factors. For example, persons who have had colitis since their teens run a 20 per cent risk of developing cancer of the colon if the colitis has persisted for 20 years.

On the other hand, adults with recently diagnosed chronic ulcerative colitis have a cancer risk of only about two per cent. The danger of dancer increases with the duration of the colitis.

The severity and extent of the colitis also influence the cancer risk. Other factors may be a family history of colon cancer or personal history of colon polyps.

Because each individual case is different, regular check-ups are a must.

In some cases of longstanding severe colitis, surgery is recommended when the physician feels that there is a significant chance of cancer developing. The operation involves removing the diseased portion of the bowel. This not only eliminates the danger of cancer; it restores the individual to good health.

Since your sister's doctor said that her condition is not serious,, her chances of developing cancer are probably slim. The fact that a risk does exist however, underscores the importance of regular checkups.

Dear Cancer Answers:

How common is cancer of the cervix? At what age do women usually get it? Is it really necessary to have a Pap test every year?

Linda

Dear Linda:

According to American Cancer Society figures, there will be 16,000 new cases of cervical cancer diagnosed in this country in 1980. 7,400 women will die of the disease this year. Women susceptible to cervical cancer are those over 20 years of age and those younger who have had frequent sex in their early teens or with many partners. Cervical cancer is more common in low socioeconomic groups. There is also more cancer of the cervix among black women (34 per 100,000) than white women (15 per 100,000).

The Pap test is highly accurate in detecting cervical cancer at an early stage. It also can show cell changes that could develop into cancer. If every woman had a Pap test with her regular health checkup there would be virtually no deaths from cervial cancer. The decision as to how often you should have a Pap test should be made by your doctor, but approximately once a year seems to be an acceptable schedule for most women.

Dear Cancer Answers:

I was told that "Good Morning America" had a recent feature about volunteers needed for a breast cancer study. I would be interested in participating. Could you tell me more about this study?

Carolyn

Dear Carolyn:

The clinical study/ of treatment for early-stage breast cancer discussed on the "Good Morning America" television show is being conducted by Drs. Alan Lichter and Ernest De Moss of the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Maryland. The Study compares two treatment methods for primary breast cancer. One method is total mastectomy with removal of the lymph nodes under the arm, currently considered the standard therapy for early breast cancer. The second method under investigation is the removal of the breast lump and a dissection of the underarm lymph nodes for indication of spread of cancer. This limited surgery is followed by both internal and external radiation treatments to the breast.

Because the study is randomized, women cannot choose which treatment they will receive. A computer will assign them to one section of the study or the other.

The Clinical Center trial is open to women throughout the United States who meet the following study criteria: (1) a diagnosis of breast cancer has been made, if a woman has a lump or other reason to suspect breast cancer, she should see her doctor and have a biopsy. If the biopsy is malignant, then the woman and her doctor are ready to consider participation in the study; (2) the cancer is confined to the breast; (3) the woman has not had previous treatment for breast cancer; (4) the woman has not had any other kind of cancer (with the exception of common skin cancer).

The Clinical Center will pay all medical costs for women participating in the study.

If you or your doctor have further questions or would like referral information, please call the Cancer Information Service, toll-free. The number in Minnesota is 1-800-582-5262. In North Dakota, call 1-800-328-5188. Office hours are 8:30 a.m. until 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Dear Cancer Answers:

I don't understand how laboratory studies done with rats and mice can prove that something causes cancer in people.

R.B.

Dear R.B.:

Your question seems to have two parts: how can scientists use animals to test whether something may cause cancer in humans, and why are mice and rats used in these tests rather than animals like monkeys that more closely resemble humans.

To answer the first part of your question, scientists have proved that almost all of the 30 substances known to cause cancer in humans also cause the disease in laboratory animals. Chemicals such as diethylstilbestrol (DES) vinyl chloride, and bis-chloromethyl ether were shown to cause cancer in mice and rats before it was known that people exposed to these chemicals have an increased risk of developing cancer.

There are several reasons why mice or rats are used most commonly for testing substances suspencted of causing cancer. They are small, easy to handle, and more economical than larger animals. They respond to cancer-causing substances (carcinogens) much as humans do. Scientists have reproduced most of the major forms of human cancer in these animals by exposing them to carcinogens. Since their natural lifetime is two to three years, mice and rats provide information about the cancer-causing potential of substances being tested more quickly than animals, such as monkeys, that have longer life spans.

RICE AND HAM TO THE RESCUE

Rice is the perfect partner for this low-calorie Polynesian-style dish of ham and fruits in a sweet and sour sauce.

Low-calorie nutritious meals that merit high praise may seem impossible but are not when you use carefully selected ingredients in exciting new ways.

Lean ham, for example, provides high quality protein, B vitamins and iron. A perfect partner is convenient, low-cost rice which contains no cholesterol, only a trace of fat, and is low in calories. Canned fruit cocktail is among the canned foods found in most kitchens. The three join naturally in food values and in taste in Spicy Ham with Fruit. At only 290 calories per serving, it's a winning meal combination.

Happily rice is really a convenience food. It can be stored without refrigeration and is ready to cook straight from the package. Whether you prefer regular, parboiled, pre-cooked or brown rice it is always available, inexpensive, easy to cook, and appropriate to use as a bed for the spicy, flavorful morsels of ham with its delectable sauce.

Hypertension Also Affects Children

by Paul Schurke
"U" News Service

Most of us think of high blood pressure as an adult's disease. But high blood pressure can also strike children, and while children rarely have severe cases, a University of Minnesota researcher says every child's blood pressure could be checked regularly.

High blood pressure also called hypertension, is a major factor in heart attacks and strokes among adults, said Alan Sinaiko, a professor of pediatrics and pharmacology. "The reason this condition has been ignored in children is that they almost never suffer the consequences of the disease while they're young," he said.

Sinaiko is part of a university group studying hypertension. The work of the group has put the university on the map as a major referral center for both children and adults with hypertension.

Simply put, high blood pressure prematurely ages the body's circulatory system. Great stress it places on the heart and blood vessels may cause heart attacks and strokes.

High blood pressure comes in different forms. For some sorms, the causes — diabetes and kidney disease, for example — are well documented. Cut the cause of the most prevalent form, called essential hypertnesion, is not precisely known.

In the past, children found to have high blood pressure were primarily those struck by kidney disease. Doctors now believe that persons as young as 12 years may also experience essential hypertension. As in adults, it shows a strong genetic component and appears to be aggravated by obesity and high salt intake.

"We have a feeling that the roots of essential hypertnesion among adults may stretch back into childhood," Sinaiko said. "If we are going to make inroads into the disease, it seems the most important place to start is in childhood."

The terms hypertension and high blood pressure are used synonymously, and should be distinguished from the term "hyperactivity," a nervous state related to high blood pressure. In adults hypertension has been defined as pressures at or above 140 over 90. "The problem in children is that no one has really established blood pressure standards for hypertension," Sinaiko said.

Blood pressure is lowest at birth and continues to rise throughout life. Some evidence suggests that children whose blood pressure if high relative to their age group tend to become hypertense adults, he said.

What is needed is an age or size-adjusted blood pressure standard for children. A university study led by epidemiologist Ronald Prineas may help fill that need.

Two years ago, Prineas began screening all first through third graders in the Minneapolis public schools, a group of about 10,000 children. Children whose blood pressure fell in the extreme high end, 130 over 90 and greater, along with randomly chosen groups from the middle and low end, are taking part in a special study led by Sinaiko and Prineas.

Their hormonal and cardiovascular systems are minotored periodically at the university's clinical research center (CRC), a federally funded in-patient research unit.

"We are attempting to identify differences in the physiological systems of kids with high and low blood pressure," Sinaiko said. Researchers are attempting to answer these questions: Do hypertense children continue to experience the condition through adulthood or does it fall off? Can one predict which of these children will revert back to normal blood pressure and consequently not need treatment?

The CRC study, funded by the Minnesota legislature, indicates that hypertense children, like hypertense adults, tend to be heavier, have less stamina and a faster heartbeat, and show a family history of high blood pressure.

Eventually, Sinaiko would like to do a large intertension study, testing various therapies on groups of hypertense children. In the meantime, the University's hypertension clinic is treating hypertense children with techniques that have helped adults, including diet changes, exercises and various drugs. University researchers are also testing anti-hypertension drugs on children. All such drugs on the market have been tested only on adults, Sinaiko said.

Sinaiki offered these suggestions for parents: Have the blood pressure of every child over the age of three checked at least once a year; doctors can determine if a child's blood pressure is high according to distribution curves. Observe and if necessary treat a child whose blood pressure is found to be high. Remember that severe cases of hypertension in children are rare: although there usually are no clear symptoms, high blood pressure can have an impact on a child's general well-being.

Farmers Face Operating Cost Increase In '80

Minnesota crop farmers are facing record increases in the cash operating costs of producing a crop this year, due mostly to rising energy prices. Operating farm machinery will cost about one-third more in 1980 than in 1979, according to University of Minnesota field crop budgets.

Extension agricultural economist Fred Benson conducted surveys showing that the average cost of using farm machinery to produce a crop will be about 33 per cent more than the average of 1979. An expected 40 per cent hike in diesel fuel prices accounts for much of the increase. Important increases in other costs were machinery purchase prices, interest rates, labor and repairs.

Benson and his assistant Judy Ohannesian found that inflation is hitting corn production harder than soybeans. They project cash costs (out of pocket costs) in south-central Minnesota will increase 32 per cent to produce corn, and 23 per cent to produce soybeans.

"More than twice as much fuel is used to grow corn than soybeans," Benson explains. "Corn also requires fairly large amounts of nitrogen fertilizer, manufactured from natural gas. Legumes such as soybeans synthesize their own nitrogen."

Cash costs for producing 120 bushels of corn per acre are projected at $157.07, a $37.82 increase over 1979. Forty-bushel per acre soybeans could cost $74.99, a $13.80 increase.

"It's becoming more important for the farmer to keep informed of projected costs," Benson says. "With these kinds of increases, a producer with tight capital limitations may want to consider replacing some corn acreage with soybeans. He can plant two acres of soybeans for the price of one acre of corn."

The return also looks better for soybeans, Benson says. Contracts for delivery of crops at harvest, 1980, show a stronger return over costs on soybeans than corn.

Wheat production costs in west-central Minnesota are expected to increase 32 per cent. This crop also requires added nitrogen.

Benson and Ohannesian surveyed the cost of planting, fertilizing, spraying, cultivating and harvesting crops, as well as land, insurance and interest charges. Benson does not recommend that farmers cut down on their normal crop inputs.

"These inputs are the basic recipe for cost-effective crop production," Benson says. "If you short-change the recipe, you short-change your results."

He uses nitrogen fertilizer as an example. "If a corn producer applies 15 lb. per acre less nitrogen than the optimum rate, he would save about $2.40 per acre, about the market value of one bushel of corn. His yield, however, could well be cut 15 bushels per acre," Benson says.

Farmers may obtain projections of producing major crops in their specific areas of the state by contacting their county extension offices in early February. Crop budgets will be provided in the "What to Grow in 1980" booklets published for seven areas of Minnesota. Statewide machinery operation estimates will be available in publication FM 609, "Minnesota Farm Machinery Economics and Cost Estimates" also available at extension offices in February.

1982 Planetary Alignment Is Faulty Claim

by Mark E. Canney
'U' M News Service

Faulty information about an alignment of the planets that will supposedly occur in 1982 has resulted in a flurry of anxious calls to the University of Minnesota astronomy department.

"The Jupiter Effect," a book written by John Gribbin and Stephen Plagemann and published in 1974, claims that all of the planets in our solar system will move into a direct line with one another on the same side of the sun in 1982.

Authors call the alignment a "superconjunction," and claim that it will cause major earthquakes in California and around the globe, along with a host of other problems.

Speculation on possible superconjunction-caused disasters has been high. Claims have been made, for example, that the alignment will trigger general unrest in the earth's population, leading to a nuclear war.

University of Minnesota astronomy professor Vincent Icke, however, says there will be no noticeable effects from any such planetary alignment. Moreover, Icke said, the planetary alignment described in "The Jupiter Effect" will simply not occur.

"If we are to have earthquakes or a nuclear war in 1982, it will not be the result of an imaginary alignment of the planets," Icke said.

Authors of the book maintain that the aligned planets will exert forces on the sun, raising the tide on the sun's surface. (Unlike the earth's water tides, the sun's tide is made up of gasses.) This heightened tidal force on the sun would, according to the authors, drastically increase the number of sunspots.

The increased number of sunspots would make an eruption on the sun more probable and such an eruption would cause more solar particles to reach the earth's upper atmosphere.

Particles would cause unusual movements of large air masses, which would, in turn, change the rate of the earth's spin. This alteration in rate of rotation, Gribbin and Plagemann say, would trigger massive earthquakes.

In the July-August 1979 issue of Mercury magazine, noted Belgian astronomer Jean Meeus states: "Careful examination shows that most minks in (Gribbin and Plagemann's) chain of events have a low probability of occurrence, or have not been proved or are non-existent, so that the complete chain must be considered as having a probability equal to zero."

In reality, what will happen is quite different, Icke said. On March 10, 1982 the nine planets will have moved into relatively close proximity. But the angle of the imaginary pie-shaped wedge containing the planets will be no smaller than 95 degrees. Gribbin and Plagemann maintain that the planets will move into a straight line, with an angle of 0 degrees.

"It will be a spectacular sight for astronomers, and nothing more," Icke said.

There has never been a superconjunction of planets in the history of recorded time, and no such alignment is preducted for at least 10,000 to 20,000 years, Icke said. Astronomers have long been able to calculate the future positions of the planets, and alignment is not preducted for 1982.

"Internal inconsistency kills their whole theory," Icke said. "Even if all nine planets were aligned, the effect would not raise the tide at the surface of the sun more than one millimeter, nor is there any proof that a large tidal force on the sun would increase sunspot activity," he said.

"That sunspot activity would cause a change in the earth's spin is also an unproven assumption," Icke said. "The authors of 'The Jupiter Effect' must have anticipated making a lot of money without submitting their theories to any type of reasonable crigicism."

ENERGY UPDATE

WITHOUT NUCLEAR POWER, CAN COAL MEET OUR ENERGY NEEDS?

By Floyd Culler

Floyd Culler, president of the Electric Power Research Institute, spent 30 years with Oak Ridge National Laboratory. He has been elected to the National Academy of Engineering, and is a fellow of the American Institute of Chemists.

Floyd Culler

If nuclear power is ruled out, we will have significant problems in meeting the electrical generating needs of the nation with only coal and other resources in shorter supply. There is a good chance that we will experience significant local and regional power shortages and brownouts before the year 2000, at which time our supply systems for providing fuel for electricity will fall very short of the economic demand. This growing difference between supply and the economic demand will significantly affect our productive capacity and employment by year 2000.

Continuing studies suggest that there would be a significant shortfall in our ability to dig, ship, and process coal to supply both the needs of the electrical industry and the synthetic fuel industry, which must emerge to reduce our dependence on petroleum and natural gas. There may also be an expanding coal export market to be provided for in the years ahead. Problems in mining, and transportation of coal, and the gross uncertainties about necessary regulation and legal procedures for protecting the environment from the effects of coal-burning restrain and, at times, confuse our efforts to get enough of this abundant resource into use. There is real concern that, even though the resource is there, we might lack the ability to make use of it in sufficient quantities. The need for nuclear power remains evident to most of the world. There appears to be relatively strong support for nuclear power in the general populace in the United States, even though the Three Mile Island incident brought about a sharp and temporary drop in public support. Recent Harris Polls indicate that public opinion in general is 56 percent in favor of continuing nuclear power, but those who firmly oppose its use as a future option remain at 37 percent.

I think that there is reason to hope for further strengthening of support of nuclear power during the next few years.

The recent efforts of the utility industry to improve both the public knowledge of and the actual attention to safety—safety of operations and safety in construction—will, hopefully, be a new force in retaining and restoring this confidence.

Utilities now, even more than before, recognize that constant attention to the plant and to its operation is required. And, more clearly, they recognize that licensing procedures and regulations do not alone guarantee safety. It is in the utilities' best interests, and the interest of the consumers of electricity, to achieve a very high level of safety by constant attention to the highest standards of excellence, in both technology and operation. This realization is now producing major and significant changes in the utility industry's approach to nuclear power.

In my opinion, after all the scientific evidence is reasonably evaluated, and the lessons from TMI systematically added to the rapidly accumulating power reactor experience, nuclear will turn out to be the safest as well as the most economic form of energy.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

The President deserves an Oscar. After solemnly announcing: "I believe current conditions argue for restraint," Mr. Carter proposed a budget in which federal spending will soar by at least $60 billion and taxes by $40 billion in the next fiscal year alone. That takes brass!

But let's not get carried away with those silly little statistics. After all, the President didn't. In fact, he never even mentioned them. What he did emphatically claim was this: His budget is both "prudent and responsible," because after allowing for inflation, it calls for virtually no real increase in federal spending.

Well now, just think about that for a moment. When Mr. Carter arrived in the White House in 1977, the rate of inflation was increasing by less than five per cent a year. Today, the rate of increase has almost tripled; it is close to 15 per cent. So let's assume he could do as good a job fighting inflation during the next three years, as he has during the last three.

By 1983, the rate of inflation, having nearly tripled again, would be increasing by almost 50 per cent a year. But, using his special "Carter logic," the President could once again address the nation and announce with a perfectly straight face: "Current conditions argue for restraint. Thus, I am submitting a very prudent, responsible budget. Federal spending will increase next year by only 45 per cent, or about $500 billion, which, as you all know, is actually less than our present rate of inflation. Indeed, since my budget calls for no real increase in federal spending, it will not be an inflationary force in the economy."

Wheeee! What fun. With tricks like that, the Administration could rocket our inflation rate all the way to 1,000 per cent, without ever having to say it's sorry.

Could all this be pure fantasy? I do feel nervous when I remember Mr. Carter's promise of regulatory reform was followed by the creation of big new bureaucracies and huge spending increases for regulatory programs. Then I feel worse when I remember his pledge to never raise taxes on working Americans was followed by the biggest tax increases in post-war history. So now I am frankly terrified, because he has promised to make fighting inflation his number one priority. I wish he would make it number two... maybe then he would try harder!

Watch Out America The IRS Has Good News For You!

Here in Washington, nothing can beat the speed and efficiency of Congress spending the public's money, except the IRS, when it collects what Congress taxes away. Through the years, we have learned our tax code is unique — it's the only code that actually breaks people. Imagine then my surprise, with tax time again upon us, to have recently heard one television network calmly announce: "The Internal Revenue Service says the average U.S. taxpayer will pay less federal income tax this year."

How, I wondered, could the IRS make such an absurd claim? When I saw the statement I realized what had happened, and I understood why millions of Americans are often misinformed and confused about economics.

The IRS spokesman was quoted saying: "Generally, the average American will pay less taxes in 1979 then he did on the same income in 1978, because the tax tables have been broadened... There are more pluses than minuses for taxpayers."

That statement is fine, and technically correct, as far as it goes. However, because it is incomplete, and because it omits the essential, it is misleading. It clearly gives the impression the average taxpayer might get a break. Will he or she?

No.

Taxes are not going down, they are going up, way, way up. In fact, they are rising by one of the fastest rates in the last 25 years. According to Commerce Department estimates, federal individual income tax receipts increased by $35 billion in 1979. That works out to about $400 per return. Funny, isn't it, that the IRS never cited those numbers?

The problem is simple, but rarely acknowledged. When taxpayers seek cost-of-living increases, they are automatically bumped into higher tax brackets. For each percentage point that taxable income increases, individual income tax receipts go up about 1.6 per cent. As inflation accelerates, the resulting loss in net take-home pay and purchasing power becomes more severe.

The federal government is the biggest winner, because inflation permits it to line its pockets at the average citizen's expense. Anyone who still believes otherwise should ponder very carefully the following facts. Since 1970, federal tax receipts have jumped from $195 billion to $514 billion without Congress ever voting a major tax increase. Indeed, we've supposedly had tax cuts! Taxes at all levels have shot up so fast, they have outpaced increases in both wages and profits, and now consume the largest share of the family budget.

The bottom line is this: As the federal government increasingly benefits from these automatic windfalls, more and more moderate-income Americans are being pushed into tax brackets formerly reached only by the wealthy. By allowing the tax system to transfer these huge sums of precious capital away from investment in research and technology, and into often wasteful government spending and consumption, we are damaging our prospects for real economic growth, more jobs, secure pensions, a better standard of living for all Americans, and ultimately, our national secrutiy.

Misinformation has played a key role in our recent economic decline. Profits, which are the very lifeblood our our economy and which when adjusted for inflatin, have not been keeping up with income, prices — or taxes, have been systematically denounced as excessive. On the other hand, taxes, which have risen so dramatically, and which have done so much to cripple personal savings, risk-taking, incentives and overall industriousness, have been described as declining. Finally, double-digit inflation was caused by government's own excessive creation of money to finance its own unrestrained expenditures, and has led to higher taxes and mounting deficits. Yet government consistently blames inflation on working Americans, using it as an excuse to control wages and prices, the raise taxes still higher, so government can eventually balance its budget — which it never manages to do.

In George Orwell's famous look into a totalitarian future, Nineteen Eighty-four, the heresy of heresies was common sense. The final, most essential command from The Ministry of Truth was to make people reject the evidence of their own eyes and ears. Only then could all truth by wiped out, and with it, the freedom to believe and say that two plus two equals four.

Such a society is still abhorrent to us. Nonetheless, we must realize freedom and truth will not forever endure, if we continue sacrificing them piece by piece.

FAST FRENCH FOOD — OOH, LA! LA!

French food needn't take hours of preparation—not with this delicious recipe for Turkey Champignons. Created with the American working wife in mind, it makes clever use of modern convenience foods and the newest kitchen appliances. The result is a molded entrée of continental elegance created in record time.

Cooked turkey and rice are combined with vegetables, walnuts and a protein-rich cream sauce that's lower in calories than you'd expect from a French recipe — thanks to instant nonfat dry milk.

Use a blender to chop all vegetables (except mushrooms) in small portions; it will even grind the meat. Or, use a food processor to prepare all of the vegetables, including the mushrooms and the meat.

Bake in a regular oven about fifty minutes, or cut baking time in half with the aid of a microwave oven.

Any way you bake it, Turkey Champignons is an entrée you'll be proud to serve. The cooking time is right, and the flavor is fantastique!

TURKEY CHAMPIGNONS

(Makes 6 1/2-cup mold and about 2 1/4 cups sauce)

1/2 cup butter
1/3 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
3 cups liquid Carnation instant nonfat milk
2 slightly beaten eggs
3 cups (about 1 cup raw) cooked rice
2 1/2 cups ground cooked turkey
1 cup chopped celery
1 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped pimientos
1/2 cup coarsely chopped walnuts
1 1/2 cups (1/4 pound) sliced mushrooms
1/4 cup dry sherry

Melt 1/3 cup butter in medium saucepan. Stir in flour, salt, and pepper. Gradually stir in liquid instant milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil and thickens. Gradually stir 1 1/2 cups sauce mixture into eggs. Reserve remaining sauce mixture. Combine egg-sauce mixture, rice, turkey, celery, onion, pimientos, and walnuts in large mixing bowl. Line bottom of buttered 6 1/2-cup ring mold with wax paper. Spoon turkey mixture into mold. Place mold in pan about 2 inches deep. Pour hot water around mold to 1-inch deep. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 50 minutes. Cool 10 minutes. Cook mushrooms in remaining butter and sherry; stir into reserved sauce. Heat to serving temperature. Loosen edges of mold. Invert mold onto platter. Serve with mushroom sauce.

MICROWAVE OVEN: Prepare recipe as above, except microcook molded turkey mixture at high speed 20 minutes. Rotate 1/4 turn every 5 minutes. Complete recipe as above.

Clarence O. Swansons Are Honor Dairy Farm Family

CLARENCE O. SWANSON of rural Thief River Falls is Pennington county's honor dairyman for 1980. Clarence and his wife Norma will be honored at the Red River Valley dairyman's association banquet February 22 as part of the winter shows activities at Crookston.

PIPELINE MILKER SYSTEM brings milk directly from the cow to the bulk tank at the Clarence O. Swanson dairy farm northwest of St. Hilaire. Mrs. Norma Swanson and daughter Pam are shown in the milkhouse of the Grade A operation where the pipeline enters the 400-gallon bulk tank. As in most dairy farm operations, the whole family gets into the act in one way or another.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Dairy farmers are very careful about the way they take care of their cows. Most insist on the finest forage and choicest grain for their cattle and are very particular that housing is warm and dry and comfortable. Clarence O. Swanson of rural Thief River Falls takes the personal attention one step further.

He burps his Holsteins.

Clarence and his wife Norma, who farm about 11 miles northwest of St. Hilaire, have been selected by the Red River Valley dairymen's association as honor dairymen for Pennington county this year. They will receive recognition at the honor dairyman's banquet to be held February 22 at the Eagles hall in Crookston as part of the Red River Valley winter shows.

The Swansons were recognized last year as the Pennington soil and water conservation district's farmer of the year. They operate 1,840 acres of land in Bray township and milk 38 dairy cows as part of their total farm operation.

But back to that burping bit: Clarence and his son Lyle, 23, add baking soda to the cows' feed ration, using about 200 pounds of the powder a month. Purpose of the additive is to make the cattle expel stomach gas through the mouth, making more room for food.

The more a cow eats, generally speaking, the more milk she will produce. And since the Swansons sell milk for a living, they would like to have as much of it as they can get their cows to produce.

"It seems to work," Clarence smiles, for he has been pleased with the production of his hard in the several years soda has been mixed with the feed. His herd finished the year with an average butterfat production of 551 pounds, although the average had been as high as 565 pounds at mid-year.

Dairy cattle have been a part of the Swanson farm operation for four generations. Clarence's grandfather (Charles Peter Swanson) homesteaded the farm in the very early 1880's and Clarence's children are now the fourth generation to live there.

Clarence got into DHIA testing back in September of 1957 when he wanted better production from his cows and helped to form the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association. He has remained a member since that time, using the records provided by testing to improve the quality and production of his herd.

A computer mating service is employed in sire selection in the herd and Lyle is a trained AI service technician. Clarence went to a Grade A operation in 1962 when he was milking 28 cows and since that time has always sold milk to Cass Clay creamery of Fargo, ND. The 350-gallon bulk milk tank installed in 1960 was replaced with a new 400-gallon tank two years ago.

The first silo was built in 1963 and was 14 feet in diameter and 30 feet high. It has since been raised to 50 feet and in 1970 a new 20x50 silo was added. Corn silage and haylage are fed from the silos with cattle getting one feeding of each every day. Roughage is fed outside every day except for extremely cold weather as the Swansons turn the cattle out of their stanchoin barn for exercise.

All feed for the cattle is raised on the farm and the cows are never pastured. They are fed in the lot throughout the summer months as well as the rest of the year. About 40 acres of corn and 70 acres of alfalfa are raised for the cattle each year, as well as a part of the 400 acres of barley. The Swansons typically have 360 acres of wheat, 400 acres of sunflowers and about 230 acres for summer fallow.

Clarence is particularly impressed with his barn cleaner which he praises for "doing so much work and causing so little trouble." It was installed in 1958 and modified in 1970 when a manure holding tank was added. The tank holds up to two and one-half months of animal wastes before being pumped into a "honey wagon" to be spread on the fields.

A pipeline milker system was also installed in 1971 and four units are now operated off the pipeline which leads directly to the bulk milk tank

Seek Comment On Government Plan

Any interested area citizens will have an opportunity to comment on the future of the nation's soil and water conservation programs during a 60-day public review period that lasts until March 28, the U.S. department of agriculture has announced.

Phil Bergland, Pennington county executive director of the ASCS office and spokesman for USDA, said proposals for the national soil and water conservation program were developed by a coordinating committee made up of members from nine USDA agencies plus the office of management and budget and the council on environmental quality. The process included consideration of public input from 9,000 public meetings held nationwide in 1978.

The soil and water resources conservation act (RCA) was enacted in 1977. The act directed the U.S. department of agriculture to appraise the condition of the nation's renewable natural resources and to propose alternative conservation programs to guide the nation's future conservation activities. Basic information about the RCA process and proposals may be seen in four draft documents available for public review in the soil conservation office.

The first document, "Draft Appraisal Part I", describes the status and condition of our natural resources and provides information on their quantity and quality, resource legislation and regulations, and major uses of nonfederal land.

"Draft Appraisal Part II", the second document, identifies and analyzes national resource conservation problems for: Reducing erosion and preserving prime farmlands; improving water quality; conserving water; improving fish and wildlife habitat, including the preservation of wetlands; reducing upstream flood damages; conserving energy; and solving related resource problems.

It also projects demands on soil and water resources to the year 2030 and suggests levels of management that could be used to preserve these resources. Further, it summarizes trends in rural land ownership and describes the contribution of state and local programs to soil and water conservation.

The third document, "Program Report and Environmental Impact Statement" presents the goals for resource conservation over the next 50 years, and details activities needed to meet those goals. Seven alternative soil and water conservation programs to carry out these activities are also discussed. The alternative programs are:

(1) Redirection of Present Programs — Under this strategy, USDA would continue existing programs, but the allocation of funds and personnel would be redirected to better solve certain national resource problems. Cooperation would continue to be mostly voluntary.

(2) Cross Compliance — Under this approach,

Arctic Reports $7 Million Loss

As projected by company management several weeks ago, Arctic Enterprises in Thief River Falls reported a consolidated net loss of $7,282,000 or $2.31 per share on third quarter operations ended Dec. 31, 1979. The loss compares with a net income of $2,455 or 78 cents per share for the same quarter a year ago.

Ken Severinson, newly-elected president of the company, said that lack of snow in many major market areas of the United States and Canada was a major cause of the adverse operating results for the quarter.

"The lack of snow. . . resulted in a significant decline in unit retail sales by our dealers and the rest of the snowmobile industry," Severinson said. "Accordingly, unit quantities shipped to snowmobile dealers did not meet our expectations for the quarter.

"Other factors which contributed to the net loss for the third quarter included the costs of heavy consumer advertising and promotion programs; costs of dealer support programs required to assist dealers of Arctic products; abnormally high warranty costs on certain models; higher than planned bank borrowings and interest rates; and a reduction of the carrying value of certain inventories."

It is also expected that a loss will be incurred in the final quarter ending March 31, 1980. For that quarter last year the company reported a net loss of $1,087,000 or 34 cents per share.

"Manpower reduction programs were announced several weeks ago," the new president said. "In addition, other cost reduction programs were initiated and will be continued. The full effect of these programs will not be apparent until early in the upcoming fiscal year. However, the large number of snowmobile units in the inventory of dealers and the company will substantially reduce production during fiscal 1981, and likely result in break-even or loss operations."

Net sales for the third quarter this year were $57,894,000 compared to $61,175,000 in the third quarter of last year. Despite reduced unit volume, dollar sales were off only $3.3 million because of inflationary factors and the acquisition of Nero Equipment, Inc., during the current fiscal year, the company report said.

Net sales for the nine months ended Dec. 31, 1979, totaled $163,374,000 in comparison with $145,089,000 for the same period last year. A net loss of $6,160,000 ($1.95 per share; was reported for the latest nine months versus net income of $2,994,000 (95 cents per share) for the nine months ended Dec. 31, 1978.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Jolene Kay Engen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eldor Engen, Sr., of Newfolden, and Arnold Dean Ryba, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ryba of Middle River, exchanged marriage vows at a three o'clock ceremony at the Bethlehem Lutheran church in Newfolden.

Rev. Hans Floan officiated at the double ring ceremony with Sheila Holten, a friend of the bride, as organist. She played the traditional wedding marches and also served as accompanist; Valorie Larson, Newfolden, sang "Evergreen," as the bridal attendants approached the altar; Myles Hogberg, Newfolden, sang "The Lord's Prayer," as the couple knelt at the altar; Mark Halvorson, Viking, sang, "Wedding Song," as the unity candle was lit, and "Lady," as the bride and groom presented the mothers with single long-stemmed yellow roses. All three joined in singing, "For Baby, For Bobby." All are friends of the bride. Roxanne Olberg and Brenda Johnson, friends of the bride, lit the candles and distributed the wedding programs.

Bouquets of yellow football mums and ferns graced the altar. Ribbon bows with orange and yellow silk mums marked the pews.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a gown of white organza and Chantilly lace featuring an empire bodice with a Queen Anne neckline edged with lace and pearls. Her sheer bishop sleeves were gathered into wide lace cuffs edged with a sheer ruffle. To add interest, her A-line skirt with an apron look of lace, was complemented by a chapel-length train, edged in lace. Matching lace edged her floor-length veil. She carried a bouquet of orange and yellow silk roses, accented with white daisies.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Adele Kujava of Pipestone, a friend. Other attendants were Patty Stephens, Greenbush, a niece of the bride, Faye Myhrer, Newfolden, and Jodi Brandon, Viking, friends of the bride and groom. All wore identical gowns of yellow crepe featuring an orange miniature floral pattern. The gowns were styled with lace bodices, long sleeves with wide lace cuffs, and floor-length skirts with a ruffled flounce. In their hair, they wore yellow daisies. They carried orange woven baskets filled with yellow and white silk daisies and roses with ribbon streamers.

Miniature bride was Nicole Stromgren, Strandquist, a niece of the bride. She wore a gown, styled like the bride's, and carried a matching miniature bouquet. The rings were carried by Kelly Kruta, Strathcona, a nephew of the groom. Like the groom, he wore a white Lord West Tuxedo with a white ruffled shirt and a boutonniere of orange miniature rosebuds.

Terry Brandon of Viking, a friend of the couple, was best man. Groomsmen were Gary Ryba, Middle River, a brother of the groom; Bradley Engen, Port Orchard, Wash. and Danny Engen, Newfolden, brothers of the bride. The ushers were Myron Jesme, Middle River, and Kelvin Myhrer, Newfolden, friends of the groom. They were rust colored Lord West tuxedos with white carnation boutonnieres, centered with a yellow rose.

The mother of the bride was attired in a rust colored floor-length gown topped by a matching lace vest. The mother of the groom wore a green floor-length gown with a lace bodice and attached cape. Their matching corsages were of silk roses and carnations.

Honor guests were Ingvold Lien, grandfather of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Luvern Sorter, godparents of the bride; and Carolyn Lundquist, sister of the bride, and April Kasprowicz, sister of the groom, who were the bride's personal attendants.

Following the ceremony, a reception for approximately 200 relatives and friends was held in the church parlors. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Stromgren, brother-in-law and sister of the bride; and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Ryba, brother and sister-in-law of the groom. Debbie Waldron, a cousin of the bride, and Debbie Voytilla, a friend, registered the guests as Pam Yutrzenka and Dawn Weber, friends of the bride, ladled the punch.

Centering the serving table was a triple-tiered wedding cake, decorated with wedding bells and hearts with yellow centers. The tall Grecian pillars with ceramic cherubs that supported the cake also surrounded the flowing water fountain. At the base were four heart-shaped cakes, also topped with miniature fountains. A cherub couple topped the cake, which was baked and decorated by Mrs. Clifford Reierson. The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Ronald Engen and Marilyn Waldron, aunts of the bride. Mrs. Ernest Lien, aunt of the groom, and Margaret Chaput, a cousin of the groom, poured the coffee.

Waitresses were Tammy and Sandra Sorter, Nancy Engen and Nancy McCullough, nieces of the bride. Kevin and Corey Davidson, nephews of the groom. Donald Engen and Loren McCullough, nephews of the bride, served as gift bearers; Steven Engen and Kimberlee Davidson, nephew and niece of the bride and groom, respectively, distributed the lucky pennies; and Sharon Davidson and Gail Kurta were in charge of the flowers, which were all made by the bride's mother.

A wedding dance at the Meadowbrooke Ballroom followed with music provided by Foolish Pleasure.

Following a wedding trip to Duluth and long the North Shore Drive, the couple is now at home in rural Thief River Falls. The bride is a 1979 graduate of Marshall County central high school, Newfolden. The groom, a 1978 graduate of the Middle River high school, and a 1979 graduate of the Thief River Falls AVTI, is employed by Metz Baking company as a truck driver. Photo, Alice Hofstad, Plummer

TRF Auto Body Students Win VICA Contest

Thief River Falls obtained the highest number of points when students from Crookston and Thief River Falls competed in an auto body vocational industrial clubs of America (VICA) contest Friday afternoon at the Thief River Falls AVTI. Contest was conducted in conjunction with National Vocational Education week.

Students competed in a welding skills-sheet metal test, masking test, spray gun handling techniques, and an activity involving straightening damaged sheet metal panels. Each division was based on a point system, with Thief River Falls students earning 1,170 points, and Crookston students earning 1,045 points.

Winners included, first place, Jeff Philipp; second place, Dean Davidson; both of Thief River Falls; third place, Elliott Solheim; fourth, Bobert Hansen; and fifth, Mark Doda, all from Crookston. Students (all seniors from both schools) who did not place in the contest but who competed included: Cory Nelson, Kyle Anderson and Jay Erickson, all of Thief River Falls, and Brian Anderson and Kip Opgrand, both from Crookston.

Philipp will now represent Northwest Minnesota in state competition. He received a trophy from the Northwest vocational center auto body center, and will be awarded a $100 scholarship from the Thief River Falls AVTI if he selects that school as his choice to complete auto body training upon completing graduation from high school.

Auto body instructors, Ken Wagner, John Egge, Dennis Wilkens, Roger Rivera, all of Thief River Falls, Dave Muir, Crookston, and Thief River Falls AVTI students, all aided in setting up the contest, while AVTI students judged the contest.

Student judges were Allen Kowalski, Don Paulson, Pete Sandstrom, Joel Kvasager, Craig Amolt and Bruce Lafrenier, all Thief River Falls AVTI students. Student welding judges included Greg Kilen, Lonnie Serfling, and Brian Weleski all Thief River Falls AVTI welding students.

The contest was conducted between Crookston and Thief River Falls mainly because "these are the only two schools in the northern half of Minnesota with vocational auto body courses offered in high school," according to Muir.

High school and college students hired during the summer of 1979 by state employment security agencies helped recover nearly $1.9 million in unemployment benefit overpayments and delinquent employer unemployment taxes.

CROWNED VALENTINE king and queen at Oakland Park nursing home in Thief River Falls Thursday were Art Stenberg, and Emma Copp, both 87. Annual coronation is performed by secret ballot, in which each resident of the home is asked to nominate who he or she believes should reign as king and queen for the day.

Hazard Exists From Carbon Monoxide Gas

Keeping warm is part of life during the Minnesota winter season. We use our fireplace, weather-tighten our homes, idle our cars more, depend more heavily on our furnace and use recreational heaters for outdoor sports such as winter camping.

Each of these commonplace and normally safe activities could expose us to a common hazard — carbon monoxide, a dangerous and sometimes deadly gas.

Carbon monoxide (CO) is a colorless, odorless gas produced when fuel is not burned completely, or when the flame does not receive sufficient oxygen from the air. Automobiles, charcoal, wood fires and improperly vented, defective or air-starved coal, oil and gas furnaces can produce carbon monoxide.

Fresh air is needed for combustion in furnaces, fireplaces, wood stove, gas water heaters and clothes dryers.

As homes are caulked and weatherstripped to reduce cold air leaks, and we continue to use exhaust fans, vented clothes dryers, fireplaces and wood stoves, our appliances can starve for air. We simply draw more and more air from the house until fresh air may be sucked into the house down the furnace flue or fireplace chimney. Carbon monoxide poisoning can be the result.

Watch for these signs of air starvation: Headaches, nausea, dizziness, excessive humidity or heavily frosted windows, fireplaces that smoke.

Here are some safety tips from the Minnesota safety council to avoid carbon monoxide hazards:

—In automobiles — Don't leave the motor running in an enclosed space. Inspect exhaust system for leaks. Leave a window slightly open when sitting in an idling car.

—Home heating — Inspect heating flues for blockage or holes. Add fresh air intake to furnace if winterization has cut off fresh air. Inspect burners for proper adjustment.

—Fireplaces — Add glass doors. Open a window or permanently add outside air supply. Be sure fire is out before closing damper.

—Charcoal grilling — Do not charcoal grill inside. Grill only with adequate fresh air supply. Dispose of coals safely outside.

—Camping heaters — Inspect camper stoves and heaters for flue leaks. Insure fresh air supply by opening a window or vent. Do not use charcoal or flame heaters in tents without open flaps.

If you suspect a carbon monoxide problem with your car, have it inspected by an auto exhaust system specialist. In your home rely on your local utility or appliance service technician.

Penn. Co. To Get $5,182 In Bridge Funds

Pennington county will receive $5,182 as its share of the $1,534,128 in township bridge funds allocated to qualifying counties, according to Gordon Fay, director, Office of State Aid, Minnesota Department of Transportation (Mn-DOT).

Established by the 1975 State Legislature, the town bridge account assists those counties with two or more organized townships to replace deficient township bridges 10 feet or more in length. This account can be used to fund up to 90 per cent of the cost to replace the deficient bridge.

To date, Fay said, the counties have been allocated $7,151,165 and have authorized replacement of 316 deficient township bridges with $5,163,512 from the town bridge account. As of January 1, 2,279 township bridges were deficient.

County engineers hold public meetings to discuss priorities for replacing deficient bridges within their area. After the public meetings are conducted, the county boards pass resolutions to set bridge replacement priorities. The engineers then apply to Mn-DOT for these funds.

Replacement funds are granted only after Mn-DOT approval of the bridge plans and only for construction of the structure. The local units of government must pay for removal of the old structure, engineering costs and approach grading.

Deficient bridges are those structures which do not meet minimum standards in one or more of the following categories: load, condition, width or clearance.

Child Abuse Takes Different Forms

"Child abuse. It sounds ugly, and it is," states Kathleen Nelson, public relations intern at Minneapolis Children's health center.

According to U.S. government statistics, an estimated 1.6 million children a year suffer from child abuse, the study of which dates back only to 1962 when the term "battered child" first was coined. Nelson has prepared the following article.

The term battered child no longer is used — professionals prefer the term "child abuse and neglect" but, according to Daniel P. Kohen, N.D., director of the emergency room at the health center, any term used is filled with emotions.

"The word itself, 'abuse,' is supercharged. People get all uptight, and the barriers go up. What's important, though, is not the term or the diagnosis — what's important is that by this time the child needs help. If mom is denying an injury to her child, for whatever reason, mom has strong feelings about it even if mom isn't the cause of the injury," Dr. Kohen said.

He defined child abuse as physical injury incurred by non-accidental means with or without intent by parent or legal guardian or institution under the eyes of the law. Legislators and professionals have found defining child abuse to be a difficult task; as a result, many such definitions exist.

Neglect was defined as the failure to provide the necessary environment for healthy growth and development including provisions of adequate food, clothing, shelter and medical care as well as a conducive environment to healthy emotional growth and development by any caretaker through any act of commission or omission.

Just as the legal definition for abuse differs from that of neglect, so do the behaviors of the abused and neglected child differ, Kohen noted. Indeed, even children who are mildly abused often show different behavioral responses from those who are severely abused.

"Still," states Kohen, "whatever the level of abuse, one of the biggest clues for the professional is age-inappropriate behavior; that is, kids who act differently from their classmates. They could be withdrawn or extremely aggressive. Often, too, you'll see a 'role-reversal'. That happens when the parents have been so chronically unable to get their own emotional needs met that they have expectations for their kids to meet those needs for parenting. In effect, the child is expected to be the parent. We see that in the emergency room — a parent will be upset at having the authorities involved and the child who's just been beaten may go up to the mom and say 'there, there, mommy — it's all right.'

"Another clue is the child may be inappropriately reluctant to go home. That's often the case with the mildly abused child. The severely abused child would go with no fuss — that child has learned that he or she would get whomped otherwise."

Dr. Kohen notes that the professional's role in all of this sometimes can be quite difficult. Aside from the problem of trying to determine whether or not abuse has occurred, is the difficulty the professional has in approaching the subject with the parents. Parents are often extremely defensive, and the good professional confronts the issue in a caring way without backing the parents up against the wall.

Dr. Kohen noted that professionals sometimes respond in a hostile way when faced with such an emotionally charged situation. "The capacity to abuse children is in everybody — often more than most of us care to admit. Most professionals who respond with hostility are afraid — it has to do with helplessness in terms of one's own relationships. They get threatened when they don't know how to relate since this seems contrary to the traditional helping role, and they feel powerless."

Dr. Kohen's own resolution of this professional dilemma involves what he calls family advocacy. "I realize that I've got to be an advocate for the whole family. Unfortunately families don't always allow that so, if push comes to shove, as a pediatrician I'll have to side with the child."

Sometimes for the professional this means recommending that the child be removed from his or her environment. This is why an accurate legal definition is so important — a widely accepted legal definition describes the situations in which the state may intervene on behalf of the child. By necessity there must be no guesswork. The definition must clearly determine the conditions which constitute abuse and neglect.

Removing the child from his or her environment is a drastic step, and consequently, the situation is not taken lightly by professionals. Dr. Kohen noted that the doctor must be prepared to make a difficult judgment. "The doctor has to try to answer, 'is the home safe for the child?' He or she must err on the side of caution and put the child in the hospital if need be. The doctor also has to be prepared for threats to his or her own well being. He or she is going to hear, 'I hate you, kiss off.' I've been knocked across the room before. The fear of physical harm is not unbased."

This type of hostility on the part of abusive parents to professionals is typical. It's described as a kind of "knee-jerk defensiveness," and often accompanies an authoritarian attitude. J. Gary May, a noted author on sexual abuse, has written, "What happens to a child in a private home is the concern of all of us. Parents do not own children — they are custodians for them. It is often an authoritarian misview of the abusive father that the home is his sanctuary and he can do what he pleases with all who live there, a view often associated with the abuse of children."

Dr. Kohen added, "Children do not belong to parents. If they belong to anyone, they belong to society, and society has an obligation to protect children and ensure their safety, so in addition to our legal obligation, we have the moral obligation to recognize and report suspicion of child abuse and neglect and help to develop management plans for abused children and abusive parents-families."

Education Day At Crookston February 26

A panel of five close observers of the educational scene has been assembled to react to featured presentations at the morning seminar on Education day at the University of Minnesota — Crookston (UMC).

Following the seminar, Minnesota Lt. Gov. Lou Wangberg will headline the Education day luncheon. Wangberg will be speaking on "Public Education for Tomorrow's World." The luncheon begins at 12:30 p.m., Tuesday, February 26, in Bede Hall on the UMC campus.

Both the morning session and luncheon are open to the public.

Topic for the seminar, to be convened in Rooms 204-5 of Dowell Hall, will be various alternatives proposed and now being scrutinized to forestall any state-mandated move toward consolidation of small, sparsely-populated rural school districts. Residents of many public school systems throughout the state have already signaled their intention to do battle with state educational and legislative officialdom in opposition to being merged with nearby school districts.

Commenting on these alternate methods of obviating the threat of consolidation will be Rep. Willis Eken (DFL — Twin Valley), former chairman of the House School Aids Committee, and Rep. Carl M. Johnson (DFL — St. Peter), chairman of the House Committee on Education. Both Eken and Johnson presided over committees who devoted a large part of the 1979 legislative session to studying and taking testimony on the pros and cons of legally consolidating school districts with dwindling student enrollment.

Included among the panelists who will elaborate upon or react to remarks by the two lawmakers will be State Sen. Roger D. Moe (DFL—Ada), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee; State Sen. Marvin B. Hanson (DFL — Hallock); Dr. Randy Johnson, director, School District organization with the Minnesota Department of Education; Henry Tweten, of East Grand Forks, seven-year member of the State Board of Education, having served as its chairman and also as chairman of the elementary and secondary education subcommittees; and Adeline Vollan, regional planner of Northwest - Minnesota Educational Cooperative Service Unit. Moderating the discussions will be UMC Provost Stanley D. Sahlstrom.

SCOTT PHILLIP Peters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Peters from Viking, and senior at Marshall county central high school, has been awarded a $600 Presidential scholarship by Moorhead state university. Established by the Moorhead state faculty, foundation and alumni association, Presidential scholarships are reserved for students demonstrating academic ability and talent and are awarded to incoming freshmen. This scholarship is equivalent to a full year's tuition at the university.

No Cash When Paying Income Tax, Says IRS

To pay your Federal income tax send either a personal check or money order, but never send cash, the Internal Revenue Service advises.

Using a check or money order is safer from two standpoints, the IRS explains. First, a check or money order is harder to steal, and secondly, the cancelled check or money order receipt will serve as a record that the payment was made.

The IRS also says that taxpayers should be sure to write their Social Security number on the check or money order. This assures that the taxpayer will receive credit for the payment should the check or money order be detached from the return.

On the panel will be Davis Helberg, manager of the Port of Duluth-Superior; Robert Johnson, executive director of Minnesota Good Roads, Inc.; Ralph Avery, vice president of Burlington Northern Railroad, and Buster Slaughter, vice president of the International Longshoreman's association.

Seek Comment On Plan For Conservation

producers would be required to apply effective conservation measures to qualify for benefits under other USDA programs, including commodity price supports, low interest loans, cost sharing and crop insurance.

(3) Regional Resource Project Approach — This strategy would direct USDA programs toward the more urgent and chronic regional resource problems. Federal participation would be available only for programs that contribute to meeting national conservation objectives.

(4) State Leadership — Under this strategy, states would assume leadership for planning and carrying out conservation programs. State and local governments would develop conservation programs for USDA approval, provide technical assistance to producers, and fund those activities that have national benefits but are beyond the interest or financial resources of the producer or state and local governments.

(5) Regulatory Emphasis — This strategy would emphasize the use of backup regulatory authorities at the local, state, and national level to carry out an effective national soil and water conservation program. This approach would be coupled with a strong cost-share and technical assistance program and low interest loans that would offer incentives for resource management.

(6) Conservation Performance Bonus — This strategy provides incentives to producers who voluntarily apply and maintain conservation measures that meet USDA standards. It offers incentives to obtain benefits under federal programs but has no required cross compliance. Priority would be given to resource areas where present conditions pose the greatest threat to future food and fiber production.

(7) Natural Resource Contracts — Under this strategy, USDA would offer to purchase erosion reduction, irrigation water reductions, and other outputs of conservation from producers. The public would, in effect, buy specific benefits from those who run, operate, or control private natural resources.

A fourth RCA document or summary is a condensed version of the information in "Draft Appraisal Parts I and II" and in the "Program Report and Environmental Impact Statement" document.

During the public review period, regional, state and local meetings will be held to inform the public on the contents of the documents. The public is urged to provide comments on all parts of the RCA process.

Citizens are invited to send written comments to the RCA Response Analysis Center, P.O. Box 888, Athens, Georgia 30603.

"The RCA process is an effort to look ahead to the future, to project resource demand over the next 50 years, and, based on this information, to select a strategy or combination of strategies that will be acceptable to producers and will also meet national objectives," Bergland said. "Many questions need to be answered, such as how much are we willing to invest in conservation to insure a continued supply of food, fiber, clean water and wildlife. At what level of government should a national conservation program be developed and carried out? Who will pay for these conservation efforts?"

Citizen input will play an important role in deciding what strategies will be used to develop the national conservation program, which will be transmitted by the President to Congress in 1980, and again in 1985, according to Bergland.

Anyone interested in reviewing the documents or in finding out more information about upcoming RCA meetings should contact Allan Gustafson at the Pennington soil conservation service office, Phil Bergland of the agricultural stabilization and conservation service staff; Terry Courneya, county extension office; or Francis Koehmstedt of the Farmers Home administration.

Pennington To Get $737,082 For Highways

Pennington county will receive $737,082 as its share of the $100,581,191 allocated to the 1980 county state-aid highway (CSAH) fund, according to Gordon Fay, director, office of state aid, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn/DOT).

Forty Minnesota counties have been allotted more than $1 million each. The allotments range from $590,000 to $6.6 million. Almost $1.2 billion has been shared by the counties since the initial apportionment of $23.9 million in 1958. Marshall county will receive $1,401,127; Red Lake, $590,194; Roseau, $1,164,122; Polk, $2,086,149; and Beltrami, $1,437,722.

The county state-aid highway fund makes available to the counties $60,162,951 for construction and $40,418,240 for maintenance of the 30,000-mile CSAH system. Included in these amounts are $7,107,076 for construction and $4,689,315 for maintenance costs on county state-aid highways in municipalities of less than 5,000 population.

The yearly apportionment, which represents 29 per cent of the funds available for distribution from the highway user tax distribution fund, is allotted according to prescribed formula to Minnesota's 87 counties. The highway user tax distribution fund is composed of monies from the state motor fuel tax and motor vehicle registration fees.

The remaining 71 per cent of the highway user tax fund is distributed as follows: 62 per cent to the trunk highway fund and nine per cent to the municipal state-aid street fund for municipalities having populations of 5,000 or more.

Farmers Still Skeptical Of Grain Embargo

Farmers Union members who recently participated in a round of meetings with government officials and members of Congress remained skeptical that actions taken by the Carter administration are sufficient to minimize the effect on farmers of the Soviet grain embargo.

Over 100 members from 16 states who participated in a "Farmers Union Grain Emergency Legislation Fly-In" discussed the effect of the embargo with White House and U.S. Department of Agriculture officials prior to visits with members of Congress.

Farmers Union members from Minnesota who participated in the "fly-in" were Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Chervestad of Oklee.

A paid diversion program for corn is under consideration and a decision can be expected "very soon," Lynn Daft, a member of the White House Domestic Policy staff, told the farmers. "Agriculture is in the host seat," Daft admitted, although he countered criticism with reassurance that "farmers are not bearing the whole burden."

USDA Undersecretary Dale Hathaway agreed with members of the fly-in that "the rise in production costs is horrendous" and assured his audience that "we are looking into this." The projected reduction in net income this year, he said, would most affect the livestock industry.

Following a briefing by National Farmers Union staff members and the discussion at USDA with Administration officials, the farmers moved up to Capitol Hill for a day and a half of meetings with Members of Congress.

Deadline For Grant Program Is March 1st

Priority deadline to file an application for the Minnesota State scholarship and Grant-in-Aid programs for the 1980-81 school year is March 1, 1980.

Applications have been mailed to most high school seniors and renewal candidates.

Forms also may be obtained from high school counselors, financial aid officers at post-secondary education institutions and from the Minnesota Higher Education Coordinating board, which administers the program.

Board's address is: Suite 400, Capitol Square Building, 550 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55101.

State awards range from $100 to $1,250 per year but cannot exceed one half of a student's financial need. State award combined with a Federal Basic Educational Opportunity grant may not exceed 75 per cent of a student's need.

Minnesota residents who will be full-time, first year students at one of the 165 eligible state schools may apply for scholarships. Awards are based both on scholastic achievement and financial need.

For the grant program any full-time student who has not previously received a scholarship or grant may apply for any year of undergraduate study. Grants are based solely on financial need.

Embargo Hurts Bankers And Grain Farmers

Minnesota cash feedgrain producers and their bankers could be the groups hardest hit by the partial embargo on grain exports to the Soviet Union, according to agricultural economist Paul Hasbargen.

"Minnesota producers will be hit more so than producers in other states because we're at the end of the transportation line," the University of Minnesota extension economist says. "Minneapolis grain terminal prices are 30-40 cents below Chicago prices, while before the embargo they were about 20 cents below Chicago."

Hasbargen says it's likely that cash grain prices are more depressed in Minnesota than in any other state, and that this situation could prevail through 1980.

A transportation tie-up caused by longshoremen's refusal to load grain destined for the Soviet Union is also hurting farmers "They're not able to move their grain and pay off some debts," Hasbargen says. "Because of high interest rates, the farmers' costs of holding that grain are up substantially."

Rural bankers are having trouble meeting their clients' growing credit needs, the economist adds. Bankers were running into problems already last summer when farmers were asked to pay back loans on grain in the federal reserve program, but transportation tie-ups prevented them from delivering that grain.

At the same time as credit demand has been rising, the Federal Reserve Board has been trying to control inflation by curtailing the money supply. "Some banks will not be able to serve the full needs of the farmers," Hasbargen says, "which means some of their clients will have to shift to other credit sources. Some of these shifts could be permanent."

Farm machinery dealers in the state would also be hurt by lower cash farm incomes and higher interest costs.

Livestock producers who buy a substantial amount of feedgrains will benefit from lower cash prices. This could translate into lower pork and beef prices for consumers.

"It's likely that by the end of 1980, and certainly in 1981, that we will be producing more pork and beef as a result of depressed grain prices," Hasbargen says. "However, consumers could be hurt more in 1981 by the growing inflation rates generated by added government spending to maintain grain prices after the embargo, than they are helped by lower meat prices."

Students competed against six other cooperative center schools, with a total of 132 registered contestants representing 36 communities. The next competition will be the state VICA contest in St. Paul in March.

Report Reye's Syndrome In State Cases

Four cases of Reye's syndrome have been reported among Minnesota children since January 1, according to state health department.

The affected children are 12, 8, 7 and 2 years of age. Three are from the Twin cities area and one is from Winona county.

Reye's (pronounced "rye's") syndrome is a relatively uncommon disease affecting the brain, liver, kidneys and muscles. The cause is unknown, but it usually affects children under 18 who are recovering from a viral illness like influenza or chickenpox. The condition is not contagious.

Reye's syndrome usually develops one or two days after a child begins to recover from a mild viral infection. The early symptoms can include repeated vomiting, personality changes, unusual behavior, irritability, restlessness, headache and drowsiness. Later, the child can become disoriented, combative, aggressive, extremely sleepy or even comatose. The condition is fatal in about one out of three cases, but prompt recognition and treatment of the problem increase the chances of survival and recovery.

Department officials are concerned that more cases of Reye's will occur in the wake of a series of type B influenza outbreaks now occurring in the state. Twenty cases of Reye's were reported during the last outbreaks of influenza B in the state, in the winter of 1973-74. Nine cases were reported last year during an outbreak of type A influenza.

Health officials are urging parents to be alert for possible symptoms of Reye's, and consult a doctor or seek emergency room treatment promptly if they suspect a child has the disease. The warning signs include persistent vomiting, marked changes in behavior, disorientation, hostility and extreme sleepiness.

BSU Sessions On Wood Use Set For March

How important is a tree? That question is bothering many Minnesotans these days, especially those who live and make their living in the timberlands of the State's north country.

No where has the question taken on more meaning than in Bemidji where three major wood products companies are poised to begin production in the next two years.

If the question has an answer it will probably come during the three days of intense examination at a symposium in Bemidji called North Country Futures: Industrial Impacts on Forest Resources, Community and You.

This major conference on wood use will be held March 27-29 at Bemidji State University, sponsored by the University and the Headwaters regional environmental education council (HREEC).

Bemidji area has always been the center of timber harvest — remember the Paul Bunyan legend and the stories of the early timber barons. But in recent years the industry has slowed its pace.

Only one major plant has operated in Bemidji, fabricating plywood. That plant and several smaller ones, plus buyers from distant points have kept alive the logging industry.

Now, three other major users plan to open their doors. Potlatch corporation is nearing completion of its new plant. Northwoods Timber products (Canadian) and Louisiana-Pacific are still in the planning stages. All will cut aspen for waferboard production.

They will bring in new families, new staff and raise the demand on local loggers. Support businesses will follow. There will be a major impact on the Bemidji school district, already one of the featest-growing in the state.

And what happens to the forest ecosystem as the aspen are cut? Can they regenerate fast enough? Will cattle and crop production fill in the cut acreages? How will wildlife adapt to a habitat change this dramatic?

One simple question about the importance of a tree takes on a large meaning in the north country right now. Experts from many professions will examine these meanings at the North Country Features conference.

Timber users will explain their programs, the use of the wood, the likelihood of a sustained yield on the forest. Minnesota Department of Natural Resources staff members will sit with University of Minnesota researchers to discuss wildlife and forest management.

Bemidji city and school district staff members will examine the economic impact of an area already stretched thin from rapid growth.

North Country Futures conference promises to take a hard look at the future. According to conference organizers there may be more questions raised than answered, but, they say, planning has to start somewhere.

Anyone may attend the North Country Futures programs March 27-29, at no cost. For more information about accomodations in the Bemidji area, the conference itself, and for tickets to the special banquet (there will be a charge for the banquet) contact the Headwaters regional environmental education council, 1705 Highway 2 West, Bemidji, or phone 218-755-2732.

Costs Of Regulations

"The car you bought for $7,200 a few weeks ago — the one you shopped around for so long — well, it would have cost you about 10 per cent less if the federal government hadn't insisted it come equipped with all those extra devices."

This is the statement by Murray Weidenbaum, considered the country's leading expert on the costs of federal regulations to the consumer. He says that almost $700 of the price of a new car goes for equipment that's there because government regulators say it has to be there.

Wes Pedersen of the Automobility Foundation, a division of the national automobile dealers association, says the amount does seem high for things like a catalytic converter, seat and shoulder belts, structural reinforcements and other changes mandated by Washington officials.

"It is high, by golly," he says, "when you consider that the catalytic converter is not nearly as efficient as improved combustion in the engine would be, and that it demands a steady diet of expensive unleaded gas.

"It is high when you realize that the extra side guard door beams that the government told us would be "a significant safety factor" actually provide — in the words of the official United States general accounting office — 'little, if any, benefits in terms of reduced deaths or serious injuries'.

"And it is high when you consider that the so-called 'safety' bumpers specified by government 'experts' are costing consumers nearly $800 million a year — just about as much, according to a Calspan corporation study, as they were supposed to save American motorists in reduced insurance premiums and repair costs."

Studies by Chase Econometrics, the U.S. chamber of commerce and the auto makers themselves agree that additional regulatory requirements will add up to $1,000 more to the cost of a car by 1985. Even the department of transportation and the environmental protection agency, which have always minimized the costs of their edicts, concede that the new rules will boost prices by almost $500 per car. That means that in terms of today's dollar, the car bought in 1985 would have as much as $1,700 worth of federally mandated equipment on it.

Expensive? Unbelievably costly. In order to meet all of the new regulations now on the books for automotive safety, emission control and fuel economy, the auto industry will have to spend approximately $80 billion (that's BILLION) by 1985, or more than the combined profits of all American corporations in 1975!

Dr. Weidenbaum points out that present emphasis on installing ever more complicated safety equipment in the car may be a more costly alternative to achieving a higher degree of motor vehicle safety than tougher enforcement of current traffic laws. Statistics show that most fatal accidents involve a driver or a pedestrian who has been drinking, and such incidents are not effectively dealt with by decreeing more equipment on the automobile.

Emphasis is now being placed on airbags which are supposed to inflate on impact to protect front seat occupants from injury in accidents. What happens when an airbag inflates in the face of a smoker? And what about the experience factor. There are now an estimated 12,000 autos on the highways equipped with airbags. In 348 accidents in which the car equipped with airbags had to be towed away, the airbags failed to inflate in about a third of the crashes, according to Patrick Boyle of the Los Angeles Times.

It will cost as much as $800 to install an airbag in a 1982 model car. The department of transportation itself acknowledges that it surveys show lap and shoulder belts already on cars could save 50 per cent more lives than airbags could.

One would be tempted to concur with the statement by Jerry Jasonowski, assistant secretary of commerce, when he says, "Our regulatory system is out of control."

Fuel Assistance Farce

Following comments were written by Bob Graham, manager of P.K.M. Electric Cooperative in Warren in a recent issue of the "P.K.M. News":

Is it any wonder our Social Security System is going broke? Recently fuel assistance checks were sent out willy-nilly to low income people. Thus it is a large number of people who don't even have fuel bills received checks for $250 and more.

When asked why they didn't check this out in advance, the administrators said there wasn't time, and so, rather than have someone freeze to death, they sent checks out to everybody.

When further asked as to whether or not they intended to try to recover the funds mailed in error, they said the cost of recovery wouldn't make it worthwhile.

What a compounding of stupidity! If there is anything that will erode the confidence of citizens in their government, it is slipshod, hang-the-cost administration of this kind.

Anyone who counts himself as a human being is more than willing to help the disadvantaged with his tax dollars, to see that they are properly housed, warmed, fed, and clad. But, what makes his blood boil is when their hard-earned dollars are just simply thrown away by lazy and unimaginative bureaucrats.

This entire sorry episode vividly illustrates what's wrong with trying to run everything out of Washington instead of on the local scene. Surely, if time was of the essence, it would not have taken a great deal of ingenuity or effort to have enlisted the assistance of local welfare agencies in determining the status of local people and their need or lack of need for fuel assistance.

Where The Balance Lies

Following article appeared recently in "Dairymen's Digest":

The dismissal by an administrative law judge of the FTC complaint against the California Milk Producers Advisory Board and its ad agency for their "Every body needs milk" ads is in the news. "For those who yearn to know everything about symptomatic lactose intolerance, the recent opinion of Judge Daniel H. Hanscom is 'must' reading. . .His opinion reflects the sensibilities of a man who has been thinking milk, breathing milk, and possibly evern drinking milk, for thirteen months." So wrote Fortune magazine (Oct. 8, 1979) in a lengthy review of the judge's findings that included three "nuggets" in the opinion:

"There are indeed racial differences in reactions to milk. This condition (primary lactose deficiency) is found among about 10 per cent of Caucasians, 50 per cent of Mexican-Americans, 60 per cent of American Indians, 70 per cent of blacks, and 100 per cent of Orientals.

"Among people with primary lactose deficiency, about 15 per cent would experience symptoms of some kind from drinking eight ounces of milk. Most of these symptoms would be trivial, however; among California's minorities, only about two per cent would have any real discomfort.

"Food allergies in general involve a high degree of self-bamboozlement. Among persons over the age of three, only about one-third of food allergies end up being confirmed in tests involving 'double-blind challenges' (blindfold tests in which the biases of both the patient and the observer are eliminated)."

Fortune noted, however, that the judge "relied less on these data than on a simple exercise in logic. In dismissing the FTC complaint, he observed that the U.S. government has been telling the public for years that it should drink milk. (One bulletin published by the U.S. Department of Agriculture refers to milk as a daily requirement 'for everyone.')"

A recent editorial in Hoard's Dairyman termed the ruling "a solid victory for the dairy industry" and said that "the nutritional value of milk has been reaffirmed once again." Hoard's was correct in predicting that the outcome and some of the testimony would "become national news."

"Even though California dairymen spent at least one-half million dollars in legal costs and thousands of hours fighting the case, the facts brought out by the many expert witnesses concerning the nutritional value of milk will be used in promotional activities for years to come," Hoard's said.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"If we went to Arizona this winter," said the domineering woman to her meek-mannered husband, "do you think the climate would agree with me?" "Yes, dear," he said. "It wouldn't dare to disagree."

Dr. O. D. Beich, master of ceremonies at the chamber of commerce banquet, told the following good news-bad news story: The good news is that Ayatollah Khomeini has accepted Jane Fonda as a replacement for the 50 hostages held at the U.S. embassy in Tehren. The bad news is that Ted Kennedy is going to drive her to the airport.

KAYDELL EGGEN, Thief River Falls, and Kelly Kane, Valley City, modeled for "Cover Story," the winter fashion show put on by second-year students in the fashion show coordination class at the University of Minnesota, Crookston (UMC). Students make all the arrangement for a fashion show, including selecting a theme, planning the scenes, selecting clothes from stores in the community, fitting the student to the clothes and deciding on accessories.

EIC Refundable In Two Ways To Taxpayers

Earned income credit (EIC) has become a permanent fixture with a new look, the Internal Revenue service says. More taxpayers will be eligible for more credit, and they can receive it in a choice of two ways.

Earned income credit is a unique tax credit: it is refundable, which means it will be paid to the taxpayer if it exceeds tax liability.

Generally, the law now makes the credit available to married or widowed taxpayers with at least one dependent child and to heads of households who maintain a home for at least one unmarried child.

The base amount has been raised to 10 per cent of earned income up to $5,000, for a maximum credit of $500. In prior years the credit was 10 per cent of the first $4,000, for a maximum credit of $400.

However, like the Earned Income credit in years before 1979, it phases out. For 1979 it phases out at $10,000, where it used to phase out at $8,000. In other words, the closer earned or adjusted gross income gets to $10,000, the smaller the credit, until it reaches zero at $10,000.

Until the law was changed, qualifying persons received their EIC in the form of a tax refund after they filed their Federal income tax return. Now, taxpayers who are eligible may still receive the credit in the same way, or, if they wish, may get it in advance in small payments each pay day.

However, as in the past, taxpayers must still file a tax return to show that they are eligible for the credit.

To receive advance payments, qualifying persons must certify to their employers that they are eligible by filing Form W-5, "Earned Income credit advance payment certificate."

Persons who want additional information on the Earned Income credit and advance payments should contact their local IRS office. Also, many state and local social service and welfare agencies offer information on the EIC and advance payments.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

We want to take this means of communication to thank each person that were members of the emergency crews and also the shop personnel that stood by as we made that emergency landing on the evening of January 31 at the Thief River Falls Regional airport. Knowing that those crews were standing by gave us, in the plane, an assuring feeling.

A special thanks also to the young man who took a couple of us uptown to get that borrowed car.

Thank you again..

Sincerely,

To The Editor:

The headlines of the Jan. 23 Times which read, "Northwest Legal Services Receives $468,820 Grant" caused me to do some thinking about the direction our government is taking. First of all, are these programs, like Social Security, Medicare, Aid to Dependent Families, etc., and now Judicare, steps in the direction of a state that meets all our needs and asks our total allegiance, at the price of individual freedom? Communism it appears to me appeals to the benevolence of the state as the rationale for subservience. (i.e. "Because the state is so good to you, you will obey it, comrade!")

Secondly, all these programs were developed in the name of social engineering, which is the betterment of the mass of humanity by means of planning and organization. This is a drastic departure from the original philosophy of government established by our founding fathers. Their concept was to give the individual freedom under law and the result would be the greatest good for the greatest number of people. It was never part of their thinking to require the individual to submit to the will of the state on an economic, political or religious level for the good of the entire population.

I recently read a book by Larry Christenson which makes this point. The book is entitled "Social Action Jesus Style" and in this section, he is scolding the liberal church for siding with the social scientist on the basis of "Christian principles".

He says, "Here we see the basic issue with its seductive garb of altruistic principles stripped away. Government welfare programs which are urged on the basis of "Christian Principles" are an attempt to accomplish Christian goals by means of force or coercion. To the man who does not want to be his brother's keeper we say: 'You will contribute to your brother's need whether you want to or not; you will act like a Christian or go to jail.' The time is long overdue when we should expose this sentimental propaganda for what it really is: An invitation to tyranny."

That's an amazing thought isn't it? Are we suffering the beginnings of tyranny in the name of human progress? If we understand the Marxist concept of the dialectic, we will understand that its idealized goal is a perfect human state. As it has worked out in reality, communism is tyranny in the name of human progress.

We are moving toward a planned economy and a planned society. But the question becomes planned by whom? If we look at some of the recent legislative and judicial decisions, for example the establishment of OSHA, CPSC and ERISA by the legislature and the decision to require bussing to achieve racial integration by the Supreme Court, we see examples of persons in positions of power seeking to accomplish pre-conceived goals in the general population. This is a result of the humanistic world view which sees people as things which can and should be manipulated for the sake of creating a perfect society.

The framers of the constitution believed no such thing. They came out of the reformation world view, which said that the individual was unique and important because he was created in the image of God. The statement, "We hold these truths to be self-evident that all men are created equal, endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights, including life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" is an excellent example of their view of the individual.

I believe the time is long past for us to begin moving back to the philosophy of government that was one of the keys to our success. This being an election year, we must look for candidates who will reverse this trend. We need people who will stand against an increasing bureaucracy, the use of economic or social planning to solve our problems and larger and larger budgets. We cannot continue on as we have been for the last forty years and expect to have a country that even resembles the America we know and love.

Sincerely,
Thomas S. Shetler

To The Editor:

This year as in the past four years there are many children and some adults participating in the recreational skating program. Many of these individuals will be completing this basic twelve badge program in the near future and this letter will help explain how to answer your child when he or she says, "Hey, Mom and Dad, I passed my 12th badge! Now what?"

For the individual that wishes to continue organized figure skating upon completion of the basic test program, dance, patch, freestyle (DPFS) and pairs skating are available.

Dance, patch, freestyle (DPFS) is skating time when the official USFSA program is taught and practiced. Most of this skating time is available in the early mornings before school, Sunday mornings, and occasionally during the day or evening on a time available basis.

The USFSA requires membership in a skating club associated with the USFSA for a skater to test the DPFS skills. For this reason the Thief River Falls skating club was formed. This local club sponsors and makes the necessary arrangements for the test sessions held here in Thief River Falls. Upon successful completion of any of these tests, pins and badges may be purchased from the USFSA and the skater's achievement is recorded in USFSA records and published in skating magazines.

Membership in the TRF skating club is open to any person or family in the area interested in promoting skating, whether you skate or not. If you are interested in joining the skating club or desire more information, please contact any skating pro, the recreational skating committee, or the TRF skating club directly.

The DPFS skating program is organized as follows:

Free skating (5 classes): Preliminary, juvenile, intermediate, novice and junior.

Pairs tests (4 classes): Preliminary, bronze, silver and gold.

Standard dance tests (9 classes): Preliminary, bronze, pre-silver, silver, silver free dance, pre-gold, gold, gold free and international.

Each of the above dance categories consists of three to five dances in each set; for example, preliminary dance consists of three individual dance routines: the Dutch waltz, Canarto tango and swing dance.

Those participating in DPFS will require some private lessons to learn the necessary skills. All of our professional skaters teach private lessons a portion of the time they are here. Please contact the skating pro or skating committee for more information.

Membership in the TRF skating club does not require completion of the 12 badge basic test program, and is open to all skaters and even non-skaters who wish to promote skating in this area.

Sincerely,
Gary Knox

Sanitarian Registration Is Due Mar. 1

Minnesotans who have worked for five years or more as "sanitarians" or "environmental health specialists" have until March 1 to register with the state Health department without meeting the regular registration requirements, according to department officials.

The department's manpower division has been registering environmental health workers as Environmental Health specialist sanitarians under a voluntary program originating six months ago. Besides passing an examination, registration applicants must normally have at least a year of experience in environmental health work and a college degree, with the equivalent of at least 30 hours of course work in the natural sciences. However, persons who apply before the March deadline will not have to meet these requirements if they have already passed an entrance examination for an environmental health position, and have worked in environmental health for at least five years.

Interested persons should write the Manpower division, Minnesota department of Health, 717 Delaware St. S.E., Minneapolis 55440, or call (612) 296-5393.

Photography Workshop Set February 23

Cameras, film types, equipment and print mounting will be topics included in a photography workshop scheduled by the women's division of the Red River Valley Winter Shows for February 23, at the Crookston armory.

Presented by Donald L. Breneman, assistant professor and extension information specialist for the University of Minnesota, the workshop will be conducted from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and will cover the topics of cameras, equipment, how to create interesting pictures, display and use of photographs, print mounting and a critique of the participant's work.

Fee for the workshop will be included in the daily Winter Shows admission rate of $2 per person or by Winter Shows pass.

Breneman, who also teaches photography on the St. Paul campus of the University has had his photographic work produced in various extension publications, slide productions, films and television.

This activity is made possible in part by a grant provided by the Northwest regional development commission through funding from the Minnesota state arts board and the Minnesota state legislature.

Theme for this year's Valley Farm photography contest is "Pictorial in the Red River Valley." This contest is open to all amateur photographers with special divisions for adults and the 4-H & FFA section.

Two main purposes for this contest are: to provide additional means for show visitors to get a pictorial glimpse of the Red River valley, and to make available an activity whereby anyone in the valley can exhibit something of his own creation.

Rules and regulations for the adult division (16 years and up) are as follows:

Contest is open to all amateur photographers of the Red River Valley show area; photos must have been taken in the last year; black and white prints will be accepted; photos must be mounted on mount board (8 in. by 10 in. size, 16 in. by 20 in. maximum size); photo size must by 5 in. by 7 in. minimum and 16 in. by 20 in. maximum; there are no entry fees. Exhibitors may enter any number of photos.

Also, all photos must have a title; the name and the address of the photographer must be placed on the back of the mount board; and all transportation charges to and from the Winter shows must be prepaid by the exhibitors.

If an exhibit is mailed, please use a container with adequate protection for safe return of the exhibit, and enclose a self-addressed return label plus return postage. Education Day To Be Held At UMC Feb. 26

The thorny issue of public school district consolidation in sparsely populated areas will be the subject for the annual Education Day at the University of Minnesota — Crookston (UMC). Northwest educational improvement association will join with the College in sponsoring the Red River Valley Winter Shows event on Tuesday, February 26.

Northwestern Minnesota educators as well as the citizenry of rural Minnesota are invited to attend, according to Dr. S.D. Sahlstrom, UMC provost, who will preside at both the morning seminar and luncheon. Tickets for the afternoon meal will be on sale at the door of Bede Hall for $3 per person.

Theme of the seminar, which will be held in Rooms 204-5 of Dowell hall beginning at 10 a.m., will be "Alternatives to Consolidation: Pairing-Sharing-Cooperation." Two prominent state legislators will address the topic during the morning session. They are Rep. Willis Eken (DFL — Twin Valley), chairman of the House's school aids committee during the 1979 session, and Rep. Carl M. Johnson (DFL — St. Peter), who chaired the House Committee on Education last year. Eken last week was named chairman of the powerful Rules Committee of the House by the newly-elected Speaker, Rep. Fred Norton (SFL — St. Paul). A panel of regional and state officials will offer their reactions following the presentations by Eken and Johnson.

Speaker at the luncheon, with dining hall doors opening at 12:30 p.m., will be Lot. Gov. Lou Wangberg. Second-ranking state executive will examine the future of public school systems in an address entitled "Public Education for Tomorrow's World."

State Jobless Claims Down During 1980

Minnesota Department of Economic Security, Job Service-Unemployment insurance division administers the unemployement insurance program in Minnesota. To properly assess the impact of unemployment the department maintains statistics of the number of individuals in active claim status each week.

According to figures released by J.K. Stadum, Thief River Falls area office manager, the number of claimants in active claim status stood at 2,259 for the week ending February 2, which was up 541 claims from year ago figures. A further review Stadum indicated, revealed the 1980 figure to be 70 claims below 1978 figures and substantially below the 2747 claims counted in 1977 or the 2975 claims counted in 1976.

It must be pointed out that figures are only available for administrative areas and not for individual towns. Stadum indicated the area included in his administrative area to be the counties of Red Lake, Pennington, Marshall, Kittson and Roseau.

Changes Made In 1979 U.S. Income Tax

Although there were no major changes in the income tax law for individuals last year, a number of previously enacted changes will come into effect for the first time on our 1979 federal income tax returns.

Minnesota Society of Certified public accountants has reviewed these federal income tax changes to alert taxpayers on what to expect when preparing 1979 income tax returns.

A key change is the loss of the general tax credit — the greater of $35 per exemption, or two per cent of the first $9,000 of taxable income. To compensate for that loss of up to $180 — or even more for larger families — the personal and dependency exemptions have been raised from $750 to $1,000.

Zero bracket amount (ZBA) — once known as the standard deduction and available to taxpayers who don't itemize — has been raised to $2,300 for singles and to $3,400 for those filing jointly. If the deductions you claim don't exceed these amounts, consider using the convenient short form 1040A, and taking the ZBA.

Deduction for political contributions has been abolished, but the credit for contributions has doubled. You can now get a credit of up to $100 on a joint return ($50 on a single return. Gasoline tax is no longer a personal itemized deduction on your federal income tax return; but it is still deductible as a business expense. Mileage rate has been increased from 17 to 18½ cents.

Some previously untaxed income will be taxed for the first time this year. Part of any unemployment or disability benefits that take your income past the $20,000 mark ($25,000 on a joint return), now are subject to taxation.

Refundable maximum earned-income credit for parents in low-income brackets has been increased to equal 10 per cent of the first $5,000 of unearned income. If you have no tax liability because you do not meet the income requirements, you may still be eligible for the credit, simply by filing a tax return. And, if your tax bill is less than your credit, the difference is refunded. Credit starts decreasing, however, as your income increases beyond $5,000 and is completely phased out at $10,000.

Parents who claim child-care costs incurred in order to hold a job, may now pay a relative to provide child care, so long as that relative is not a dependent.

In an effort to offset the affects of inflation on any salary increase you might realize, Congress broadened the tax brackets, making it possible to earn more money without going into a higher tax bracket. This doesn't work completely, however, because if the dollar keeps shrinking, and the tax rate is not shrinking — then we aren't really staying even.

Employers will want to note that the jobs credit, intended to encourage the hiring of the hard-core unemployed, has been modified to place an emphasis on the hiring of specific types of individuals: Vietnam veterans, certain welfare recipients, the handicapped, the young and some ex-convicts. Investment credit has been made permanent and has been liberalized. It also has been extended to cover the purchase of certain buildings — mostly used in agriculture — and the rehabilitation of some buildings that have been in use at least 20 years.

Rules covering tax-qualified pension plans have been simplified to make it easier for a small employer to take care of his employees' retirement needs through contributions into individual retirement accounts. Where the employer does make such contributions into an IRA, the limits have been raised on how much can be invested in a plan each year; it's now 15 per cent of earned income, up to $7,500.

$39 Million In SSI Payments Made In Minn.

Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments of $39.5 million were paid to some 33,000 needy aged, blind and disabled people in Minnesota in 1979, according to William Phalen, social security district manager in Grand Forks.

Aged recipients received $13.7 million of that amount while $639 thousand was paid to the blind, and $18.7 million to the disabled.

Some 4.2 million people are now receiving SSI. In 1979 payments totaled $6.8 billion, including $5.3 billion in Federal funds and $1.5 billion in State funds.

The SSI program is a Federally - administered program that provides a basic cash income to people in financial need who are 65 or older, blind, or disabled. Currently, SSI provides up to $208.20 for one person and $312.30 for an eligible couple in monthly benefits. "Not every person qualifying for SSI will receive that amount," Phalen said. "Some may get less because they have other income, while some may get more if they live in a State that adds money to the Federal payment."

SSI is not the same as Social Security, even though the program is administered by the Social Security administration. Money for SSI checks comes from general funds of the U.S. Treasury, while Social Security benefits are paid from payroll taxes.

People who receive Social Security checks may also be eligible for SSI but, a person does not have to be eligible for Social Security to get SSI.

More information about the SSI program can be obtained by contacting the Social Security office at 772-8517. The address is 124 North 6th Street, Grand Forks, North Dakota 58201.

UMC Shows 14% Growth In Enrollment

University of Minnesota technical college — Crookston (UMC) has announced a 14 per cent increase in winter quarter students. This is the highest winter quarter increase systemwide, according to data released by UM president C. Peter Magrath.

UMC currently has 1107 students attending classes, according to Provost S.D. Sahlstrom, which is up from a 970 figure for winter quarter last year.

All other campuses of the University also reported enrollment increases ranging from a modest 1.7 per cent on the Duluth campus to 14 per cent on the Crookston campus.

In terms of actual head count from other campuses, Twin Cities enrolled 43,257, Duluth, 6,621, Morris, 1,387, and Waseca, 1,218.

Overall, the University's enrollment of 53,590 is ahead of the total last winter, which stood at 52,122. Systemwide there was a 2.8 per cent increase over last winter quarter.

Gas Prices Up, Supplies Good During January

Gas prices took another substantial leap during January while supplies remain good throughout the state, according to the latest survey of 56 stations by the Minnesota state automobile association (AAA).

Prices increased an average of 7 cents per gallon at both full-service and self-service stations. Currently, the average price per gallon at full-service stations is $1.175 for regular, $1.263 for premium, $1.211 for unleaded, $1.252 for premium unleaded and $1.086 for diesel fuel.

At self-service pumps, the average price per gallon is $1.144 for regular, $1.22 for premium, $1.186 for unleaded and $1.246 for premium unleaded.

"The price increase is partly due to wholesalers raising their prices," according to Bonnie Morrow, Minnesota AAA spokeswoman. However, Ken Wingard, executive secretary of the Minnesota Independent Retailers association, said, "Much of the increases we are seeing at the pumps now are due to a recent OPEC price increase which is retroactive to the month of January."

Fuel supplies continue to remain good throughout the state. None of the stations surveyed reported being out of any grade of fuel, nor are any limitations being made on purchases.

Foundation At MSU Solicits Over $176,000

Moorhead state univeristy foundation's first annual fund drive to support university scholarhips and special programs raised over $176,000 during its fall campaign.

"We're closing most of the books on the drive now," said Frank Williams, executive vice president of the Foundation. "And we just about made our goal. We're about $20,000 short of covering all our special programs, but that might be cleared with funds that are still dribbling in."

MSU foundation, an independent fund-raising organization created by alumni and other friends of the university a decade ago, boosted its commitments to the campus last fall when it established an annual fund drive, the first in the university's 96-year history.

"On the average," Williams said, "the foundation raises about $120,000 a year for the university and its program, much of that going for scholarships. But with the costs of education going up and a desire to keep enrollments stable, the foundation decided to take a larger role at the university."

Last year Moorhead State, using foundation revenues, gave scholarships to 372 students totaling $76,625.

This year, with the help of the fund drive, Williams said, the university will award scholarships to 445 students for a total bill of $127,000.

University awarded $150 and $300 scholarships to students last year. But to meet rising costs and to attract more students, Williams said, they were raised to $300 and $600 this fall.

"With the addition of $176,000 on top of the usual $120,000 riased by the foundation," Williams said, "we'll be close to meeting our stated goals, which amounts to just over $300,000."

Besides scholarships, the foundation will provide money to support faculty research and study, arts programs — including The Straw Hat Players — and special projects, such as the concert choir's scheduled tour of Europe this summer.

Support for the university's first fund drive, said Williams, came from the MSU alumni organization, which raised $40,000 during a three-week phonathon last fall, from regional businesses and corporations and from individual and foundation donations.

Campaign began in October and was expected to end in six weeks, Williams said. But money kept flowing in through the winter and the final tally was delayed until this month.

MSU foundation expects to begin its second annual fund drive next fall. "We are very thankful for the community support we got this year," Williams said. "And we hope the community will continue to support us."

'U' M Students May Get Refund For 'Daily' Fee

Students on the university of Minnesota Twin cities campus who do not wish to pay for the Minnesota Daily would be able to get a refund for the Daily portion of their student services fee if a recommendation made recently by a student fees subcommittee is approved.

Recommendation will go to the full student fees committee March 3, and from there to its parent group, the Twin Cities student assembly, and to the University administration. Board of regents is expected to hear final fee recommendations in April.

If the subcommittee's recommendation is approved, students will be able to seek refunds for the portion of the $63.35 per quarter fee that goes to support the Board of Student publications, which publishes the Daily.

Subcommittee also approved an increase from $1.80 to $2.01 on the Board of Student publications fee.

Liz Keller, chairman of the fees committee, said the proposed refund system would be handled by the Board of Student publications. Currently, students pick up the Daily at several locations around campus, and there are no plans to change the way the Daily is distributed, she said.

"The feeling is that it would cost more to regulate who gets the Daily than would be paid out in refunds," Keller said.

Fee support for the student-run Daily came under criticism after the publication last spring of a humor issue that many critics considered anti-religious, defamatory and obscene. The humor issue itself and the mandatory nature of the student fee that helps support the Daily were discussed in two legislative hearings and a series of meetings of a board of regents subcommittee.

A survey taken this fall by the University's office of Student Life studies showed that 50 per cent of the students surveyed approved of the mandatory fee, while 42 per cent said they felt it should be made optional.

Subcommittees of the student fees committee are currently hearing budget requests from the 22 campus organizations that receive money from the student services fee.

MN Delegates Featured At Shows Feb. 25

Legislative delegations from the Minnesota House of Representatives and from the Minnesota Senate led by the Honorable Tony Stadum and the Honorable Roger Moe, both of Ada, will visit the Winter Shows February 25. They will be arriving about 9 a.m.

Some of the members will wish to attend the special technical seminar sponsored by the ag engineering department of the University of Minnesota on "Alcohol for Agricultural Fuel." The University of Minnesota is planning a special research project to be located at one of their granch stations to look into and study the management questions involved in the production of alcohol and the feeding of distilled grains. Legislators will also be touring the show.

At a noon luncheon the legislators will meet with the Red River Valley Winter Shows board of managers and with the ag engineering researchers. Legislators will wind up the day with a tour of the Technical college and the Experiment station, and will be returning to the Twin Cities after a dinner with the local citizens.

Ag. Center To Be Topic At Winter Shows

A statewide center for agricultural history is under study by a group of citizens and backed by state government as well as the agribusiness of the state. Purpose of the interpretive center will be to provide a major site where the agriculture of this state, as it has developed to date, can be seen in historical and current perspective.

Waseca was selected through the legislative process from among several Minnesota communities for the site designation. With the site selection came a $50,000 planning grant from the legislature. This was matched locally by the donation of 40 acres of prime agricultural land by Roy and Marcie Lukken of Waseca.

The Lukkens added another 40 acres with the stipulation that the center emphasize people — past and present — and their interactions in agriculture. The last session of the legislature granted an additional $50,000 for further development of the center.

Architects have submitted the master plan concept for approval and the board is actively seeking interest and input to make the Minnesota agricultural interpretive center one of the most unique in our nation.

Board of directors will be on hand to explain the purpose and plans for the interpretive center. All historical society board members of northwestern Minnesota are especially invited. Public is invited to learn firsthand about this very worthwhile project for the state of Minnesota. Dean Curtiss, president of the Bboard and farm director of KDHL, Faribault and Ed Frederick, secretary-treasurer of the board and provost of the Technical college at Waseca will be present. The meeting will be conducted at 10:30 a.m. in Room 114, Ag Research center, in Crookston experiment station February 26.

Tuesday night will offer quite a package for Thief River Falls sports fans as the Lincoln high school hockey and basketball teams face keen challenges.

The bill of fare that night will find the boys basketball team squaring off with long-time athletic rival Crookston in a first round North Half Region 8AA tournament game at Moorhead State University; the hockey team will be fighting for a top finish in the Section 8 point standings at Warroad; and the girls basketball team will host a strong Detroit Lakes team that many consider to be the favorite in Region 8AA this year.

Take your pick. All three should provide some great entertainment.

Prowlers, Pirates Renew Rivalry

That Thief River Falls vs. Crookston first round North Half Region 8AA basketball tournament game should be a dandy. The Pirates beat the Prowlers twice during the regular season, but Thief River Falls' seven-game season-ending winning streak snatched the Northwest Athletic Conference title away from Crookston and gives the Prowlers a great deal of confidence going into tournament play.

The seven-game winning streak and 13-5 finish are the best figures for the Prowlers since they won eight in a row en route to a 16-4 regular season record in 1974-75 — their final year of Class A basketball when their bid for a second straight state tournament trip was shot down by Mahnomen 39-37 in the Region 8 finals at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse in Grand Forks.

Thief River Falls picked off its first Class AA basketball trophy last year when the Prowlers won the Sub Region 4 title at Crookston with wins over Bemidji 60-56 and Crookston 72-69. But now Sub Regions 3 and 4 have been combined to form this year's new North Half Region 8AA tournament and the Prowlers, even if they get by Crookston, face the prospects of playing powerful Moorhead in Friday's semifinals. The Spuds, 16-2, are ticketed for Class AA state tournament play according to some basketball observers.

The Spuds waiting in the wings, however, won't take anything away from Tuesday's Prowlers-Pirates encounter. Neither one wants to lose to its top rival and both will likely look forward to the challenge Moorhead would present.

Only negative aspect of tomorrow's game is its 8:45 p.m. start at Moorhead State University. The time and distance is going to take a toll on the fan support the two teams could expect if the game were played closer to home.

First round North Half Region 8AA tournament predictions would include Moorhead over Park Rapids, Thief River Falls over Crookston, Detroit Lakes over East Grand Forks and Fergus Falls over Bemidji. Moorhead and Fergus Falls are likely Saturday finalists.

Hockey Standings Are Tight

Key games in Section high school hockey this week include a Crookston Central vs. Mount St. Benedict game tonight (Monday) and then Tuesday matches featuring East Grand Forks at Roseau and Thief River Falls at Warroad.

All sorts of possibilities still exist for the order of finish in the Section 8 point standings that determine post-season tournament pairings. Roseau, Crookston and Thief River Falls are guaranteed a top four finish and automatic berths in the Section 8 tournament quarterfinals. The fourth spot is still up for grabs between East Grand Forks and Warroad.

While you naturally want to finish as high as possible, you can't blame Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand if he would settle for third place. And that's where the Prowlers will be if Crookston beats Mount St. Benedict, Roseau beats East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls beats Warroad — all very distinct possibilities.

Those results would make Roseau No. 1, Crookston and Thief River Falls tied for No. 2 and Warroad No. 4. The Pirates, based on their 5-2 win over the Prowlers earlier this year, would get the No. 2 position and the Prowlers would be No. 3 at tournament time.

But that's all right, because likely Section 8 pairings would find Roseau, East Grand Forks and Warroad all put into the upper bracket while Thief River Falls and crookston would be the bottom bracket "toughies."

Miscellaneous

+Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA), into its fund-raising drive to install an artificial ice plant in the old arena, is not alone in trying to raise ice money. Red Lake Falls is trying to come up with a plan for money for artificial ice and the membership of East Grand Forks VFW Post 3817 voted last week to pledge $100,000 toward the construction of an indoor, natural ice skating building. The project is headed by the East Grand Forks Blue Line Club members who hope to have the building in operation next fall. In addition, Fergus Falls just moved into a second arena, a $90,000 natural ice building next to its old fairgrounds arena. Over half of the Fergus Falls funds have been pledged to date.

+Northland community college freshman Terry Harris ranks eighth in the latest NJCAA national basketball scoring charts with a 27.2 average for 17 games.

+That Friday night hockey score raised some eyebrows as Roseau blanked highly regarded Grand Rapids 1-0. The Indians bounced back to beat Warroad 5-1 Saturday. These decisions come on the heels of the Indians' 6-3 Tuesday loss to Greenway-Coleraine that snapped a 12-game Grand Rapids winning streak. Greenway, a 4-3 overtime winner over Thief River Falls earlier this year, carried the play against Grand Rapids, holding the Indians scoreless on five power play opportunities and on two occasions held Grand Rapids without a shot on goal during the Indians' man-advantage. Pat Guyer got the Raiders off to a 1-0 start just 20 seconds into the game and they took a 3-1 lead into the final 15 minutes when Scott Bellefy scored with just seven seconds left in the second period.

Region 8AA Tournament Scheduled This Week

Moorhead and St. Cloud Apollo are the number one seeded teams this week heading into Region 8AA boys high school basketball tournament play. The Spuds are heavy favorites to win the North Half title at Moorhead State University, but the Eagles are expected to have a tougher time coming out of the South Half at St. Cloud State University.

North Half quarterfinals start Tuesday at Alex Nemzek Hall with Moorhead vs. Park Rapids at 7 p.m. and Thief River Falls vs. Crookston at 8:45. On Thursday it'll be Detroit Lakes vs. East Grand Forks at 7 and Fergus Falls vs. Bemidji at 8:45.

Semifinals in the North Half will be played Friday when the Moorhead vs. Park Rapids winner plays the Thief River Falls vs. Crookston winner at 7 p.m. and the Detroit Lakes vs. East Grand Forks winner faces the Fergus Falls vs. Bemidji winner at 8:45. Championship game will be played Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

South Half quarterfinals open tonight (Monday) at Hallenbeck Hall with St. Cloud Tech vs. Little Falls and Cold Spring-Rocori vs. Alexandria. On Tuesday it'll be St. Cloud Apollo vs. Sauk Rapids and Melrose vs. Brainerd.

Semifinals in the South Half will be played Thursday when the Tech vs. Little Falls winner plays the Rocori vs. Alexandria winner and the Apollo vs. Sauk Rapids winner meets the Melrose vs. Brainerd winner.

North and South Half winners will tangle in the 8AA championship game.

"We're excited about it," said Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters as he looked ahead to the first-year North-South tournament format that replaces the four-year-old concept of four sub regions within Region 8AA.

Thief River Falls lost twice to first round opponent Crookston during the 1979-80 regular season as the Pirates won 62-55 at home Dec. 14 and then took a 55-49 decision out of Thief River Falls Jan. 18. But Peters and the Prowlers are looking forward to the third meeting.

"The kids are really looking forward to playing Crookston," reported Peters. "Our kids feel we can beat them. We've come a long ways since we played them last, and if we play good ball we will beat them."

There will be little if any, in the way of different strategy in the way the Prowlers attack the Pirates the third time around, said Peters. "I don't know if we need to do anyting differently. We have to put emphasis on rebounding — both offensively and defensively. That's all," he said.

A win over the Pirates would most assuredly bring about a semifinal confrontation with the powerful Spuds who boast one of their strongest teams in years and are picked by some as the Region 8AA favorite. But that doesn't concern Peters at this point.

"We're not concerned about Moorhead right now," he noted. "Our first and main thought is Crookston."

Northmen To Play Mesabi In First Round

Mesabi, an 81-74 winner when the two teams met at Virginia Jan. 13 in the opening weekend of MJCAA play, will be the first round opponent for the Northland community college basketball team Thursday in the 1980 Minnesota junior college athletic association state basketball tournament at Normandale community college in Bloomington.

The Northmen and Norsemen will square off at 3 that afternoon following a 1 p.m. tournament opener involving Willmar and Anoka-Ramsey. Games that night will match Fergus Falls against Vermilion at 7 and Golden Valley Lutheran vs. Bethany at 9.

Friday night's semifinals will have the Fergus Falls vs. Vermilion winner playing the Willmar vs. Anoka-Ramsey winner at 7 while the Northland vs. Mesabi winner takes on the Golden Valley Lutheran vs. Bethany winner at 9. Consolation games will be played at 1 and 3 Friday afternoon.

Schedule on Saturday will have the consolation championship game going at 11 a.m., third place contest at 1 p.m. and title game at 3.

Once-beaten Golden Valley Lutheran is the pre-tournament favorite.

Normandale is located at 9700 France avenue south in Bloomington.

Warren Wins Wrestling Title In District 31

Host Warren successfully defended its title Friday in the 1980 District 31 high school wrestling tournament.

The Ponies finished the triangular competition with 179 points, followed by East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 145½ and Plummer 80.

Top two finishers in each weight class will compete Saturday in the Region 8A individual matches at Bagley.

Northmen End 1979-80 With 0-18 Record

A last chance effort to avoid a winless season evaporated in the final 10 seconds Saturday when Rainy River scored to pull out a 9-8 victory, completing a weekend MJCAA hockey sweep over Northland community college in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

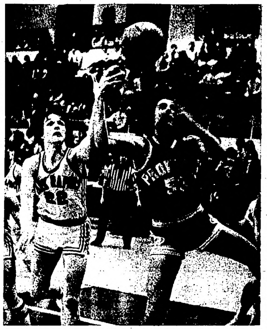
Rainy River won Friday night's series opener 16-9 but trailed much of the way Saturday afternoon before tying it in the final two minutes and winning it with just 10 seconds remaining.

Northland finished the 1979-80 season winless in 18 MJCAA starts Saturday also marked the end of Bob Lundbohm's coaching career with the Northmen. Lundbohm, whose four-year coaching record at Northland was 20-63, announced earlier he was stepping down at the end of the 1979-80 season.

Tom Goddard was named earlier this year to succeed Lundbohm as Northland coach.

Sportsmen's Club To Meet Wednesday

Pennington County Sportsmen's Club will conduct their monthly meeting this Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the meeting room in the basement of the city hall. Lunch will be served.



A LOOSE BALL was corralled by Thief River Falls' Greg Miller who was battling Park Rapids' Tony Nelson for the rebound during Thursday's high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym. The Prowlers closed out their 1979-80 home season schedule with a 69-56 win over the Panthers.

Section 8 Standings Will Be Finalized On Tuesday

A 5-0 win at Detroit Lakes Saturday clinched a top four finish in the Section 8 point standings for the Lincoln high school hockey team and an automatic berth in the 1980 Section 8 tournament quarterfinals.

Jockeying for positions continues through Tuesday, however, as teams try to better their spots in the point standings that are used to determine post-season tournament draws. In some key matches, Crookston Central and Mount St. Benedict meet tonight at Crookston in a game postponed from Friday because of the flu that struck the Blue Wave, while Tuesday contests will find East Grand Forks at Roseau and Thief River Falls at Warroad.

Roseau will finish first with a win over East Grand Forks, with Crookston, Thief River Falls and Warroad filling out the top four in any of several orders. But an East Grand Forks win over Roseau could put Crookston or Thief River Falls on top, and could find the Green Wave supplanting Warroad as the No. 4 finisher if the Warriors should lose to the Prowlers.

Sub section tournament play starts Mon., March 25. Two rounds of sub section competition will produce four teams who will join the four automatic qualifiers for the Section 8 quarterfinals in Thief River Falls starting Feb. 29.

Jeff Mongoven, starting in place of Bill Jury in the Thief River Falls nets for the second straight game, shut out Detroit Lakes on 19 shots Saturday, facing just one shots through the first two periods. It was actually the fourth straight appearance by Mongoven who replaced Jury in two games the preceding week before beating Hallock 11-1 last Tuesday. Bothered by a back problem, Jury is still listed as a questionable starter for Tuesday's game at Warroad.

Thief River Falls opened up a 3-0 first period lead over the Lakers—and was never threatened. Jeff Ulrich, Jim Thompson and Bob Fitzgerald all scored in the first period for the Prowlers. Thompson made it 4-0 in the second period and Murray Jorde finished off the Lakers at 11:56 of the third period.

The win lifted Thief River Falls to 12-5-1 for the year. The Prowlers close out their 1979-80 regular season schedule by hosting Fergus Falls Friday. The game comes after Tuesday's cut-off date for Section 8-counting contests.

Hunting, Trapping Openers Announced

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has announced the opening dates for most of the 1980 hunting and trapping seasons.

Joe Alexander, DNR commissioner, said that many hunters must make vacation plans early and like to know when the seasons will open.

However, said Alexander, a series of public meetings on hunting and trapping seasons will be held in each of the six DNR regions to discuss the various aspects of the seasons and to obtain the views of all interested persons. As a result of these meetings and depending on the development of unusual circumstances, the opening dates could be changed.

Bag limits and closing dates will be announced in July after the population status of various species has been evaluated.

Following is a list of game species and tentative opening dates:

Small Game

Woodcock, rail, snipe — Mon., Sept. 1

Rabbits, squirrel, grouse, Hungarian partridge — Sat., Sept. 13

Ducks, geese — Sat., Oct. 4

Pheasant — Sat., Oct. 25

Prowlers Top Lakers 62-49

Playing for the third time in four days took its toll on the quality of play by the Lincoln high school basketball team Friday, but the Prowlers still came out a 62-49 winner over Detroit Lakes in a poorly played ball game.

"We were tired. You could really see it in the fourth quarter. Our kids just weren't moving," said Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters. "Neither team played up to their potential."

Still, the Prowlers got themselves a win and finished their 1979-80 regular season schedule with a 13-5 record, which includes a current seven-game winning streak and a remarkable 8-1 record on the road. Friday's win was the Prowlers' seventh straight road victory.

"It wasn't the best ball game, but at least we won," figures Peters who coached the Prowlers to their best finish since a 16-4 regular season mark in 1974-75.

Thief River Falls led the host Lakers 12-7 at the end of the first quarter carried a 26-18 lead into intermission and pulled away to a 44-25 third quarter advantage.

Mark Schmitke received praise from Peters for his game-high 16-point night while Kyle Hams rebounded from a scoreless first half to finish with 13 points and Jim Nyland had an 11-point, 11-rebound game. Jeff Anderson and Eric Brinkman finished with 10 points apiece for the Lakers.

Thief River Falls shot 47 per cent from the field, hitting 21 of 45 attempts, and made 20 of 31 free throws. Detroit Lakes shot 41 per cent from the floor, hitting 19 of 46 shots, and sank 11 of 25 free throws. The Prowlers out-rebounded the Lakers 36-18. Turnovers plagued both teams as the Prowlers lost the ball 23 times and the Lakers turned it over 21 times.

"We just weren't as sharp as we have been," admitted Peters whose ball club started the week with wins over Warren 46-45 Tuesday and Park Rapids 64-56 Friday.

Prowlers Use Fast Break To Beat Panthers 64-56

Lincoln high school basketball coach Glen Peters figured his team showed its versatility Thursday when the normally patient Thief River Falls offense went to the fast break style of play enroute to a 64-56 win over Park Rapids in the Prowlers' final home appearance of the 1979-80 season.

"It was a different brand of ball," admitted Peters. made his final home game a memorable one with a 26-point performance that included six fast break lay-ups.

"I thought Hams had an outstanding ball game for us," praised Peters. "He played a good floor game."

It was a 19-19 tie after one period, but the second quarter belonged to the Prowlers, beginning with a short base

"We're not a running ball club; we don't practice it because we don't have the speed. But we could see in the first quarter that we could run on them. I thought at times we moved the ball downcourt real well and scored some nice baskets."

Chief architect of the redesigned Thief River Falls offense was senior guard Kyle Hams. The third-year starter line jumper by Hams from a tough angle — almost from behind the backboard — with just 15 seconds elapsed that gave the Prowlers a lead they never surrendered.

The real corker, though, was a series of three straight fast break lay-ups by the Prowlers that took a 26-21 ball game and turned it into a 32-21 affair. Hams and Mark Schmitke both plucked basketballs away from the turnover-plagued Panthers and turned them into baskets just 19 seconds apart, followed by a Jim Nyland fast break off another Park Rapids loss.

Thief River Falls' biggest lead of the first half came on the final play as Todd Young came up with a three-point play and a 37-25 game with just four seconds left.

It was 53-40 after three quarters and the Prowlers had their biggest lead of the night, 59-42, with 5:09 on the new scoreboard clocks. But inability to convert several free throw opportunities stymied the Prowlers at the end and Park Rapids cut that 17-point spread to 64-56 in 2½ minutes.

That was as close as the Panthers got, though, as the Prowlers dribbled off 1:15 before surrendering the ball — on a missed free throw.

Park Rapids had a couple of chances to close within six points but couldn't convert and Thief River Falls scored the final five points, including a short turnaround jumper at the buzzer by Young.

"Free throws held us back," noted Peters. "It could have stayed at 17 or more if we would have made our free throws. But we're happy to win."

The Prowlers finished with a 27-for-56, 48 per cent shooting performance from the field and 15-for-27 at the free throw line. The Panthers went 25-for-63, 40 per cent from the field and 6-for-13 at the line. The visitors out-rebounded the Prowlers 30-25 but also committed 20 of the game's 29 turnovers.

Nyland and Young joined Hams in double figures with 16 and 13 points, respectively. Scott Johnson, a 6-3 forward, led Park Rapids with 16 points.

"I was dissatisfied with our defense," acknowledged Peters. "We couldn't handle the boards with our zone. But give Park Rapids credit; they have some big kids underneath. They played a good ball game."

ON HAND for the dedication ceremonies Thursday of the new scoreboards in the Lincoln high school gymnasium was Vi Henning, who was entrusted with the Huck Olson memorial money used by the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club to purchase a set of scoreboards at Lincoln; a new scoreboard for the old arena; a portable baseball-softball scoreboard; and an electronic timer that can be used for both swimming and track. Remainder of the memorial funds from the long-time Thief River Falls sports writer who died Sept. 28, 1968 at the age of 62, have been designated to go towards the purchase of an artificial ice plant for the old arena, a project currently underway by the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA).

Nordics Win Big, 114-18

Marshall County Central raised some eyebrows Thursday with a 114-18 route of over-matched Humboldt in a first round District 32 boys high school basketball tournament game played at Roseau.

But winning coach Ron Ueland said it wasn't a case of the Nordics "pouring it on" after jumping out to an 18-2 lead in the game's first three minutes.

"Everybody played at least a quarter," explained Ueland. "I'm sure if we wanted to, it could have been a lot worse."

All 15 Marshall County Central players scored and five of them reached double figures, led by Ray Kvalvog with 14 points. The Nordics were up 31-3 at the end of the first quarter, took a balloon-size 60-6 lead into halftime and made it 84-11 in the third quarter.

Marshall County Central shot 66 per cent from the field (55-for-83) and made four of eight free throws. Humboldt shot just 18 per cent (6-for-32) and went 6-for-17 at the free throw line. The Nordics out-rebounded the Huskies 44-12.

The Nordics, now 13-6, will face Warroad tonight (Monday) at 8:30 in the District 32 quarterfinals at Newfolden.

Thief Lake WMA Is Beginning Ten-Year Plan

Thief Lake staff announced that work is beginning on the ten-year management plan for Thief Lake wildlife management area.

Those that were not able to attend the public meeting September 25, 1979, at the Middle River school may still provide comments and suggestions.

A questionnaire covering various management topics to be considered in the plan such as water, cropland, forestry, wildlife and public use management is available from the Thief Lake headquarters. Copies of this questionnaire can be obtained by writing to Thief Lake headquarters. Copies of this questionnaire can be obtained by writing to Thief Lake WMA, NE Star, Box 17, Middle River, MN 56737 or calling 218-222-3747.

Completed questionnaires or comments should be forwarded to the Wildlife Planning Team, Section of Wildlife, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Box 7, Centennial Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

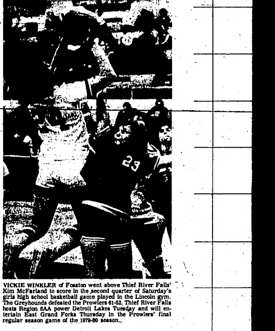
A second public meeting will be held to review the draft management plan after it is completed.

Millions Of Walleye Are Stocked Yearly

More than 2.7 million fingerling size walleyes were produced in state ponds last year, the Department of Natural Resources reported. The ponds were initially stocked with approximately 37 million fry which produced 80,129 pounds of fingerling walleyes.

In addition to the pond reared walleye fingerlings, over 282 million walleye fry were stocked into state lakes where test netting has shown good survival from fry plants.

The walleye fry and fingerlings were sticked in over 500 lakes for the future angling pleasure of state sportsmen. DNR fisheries chief Jerry Kuehn pointed out, however, that not all of the fish will survive to catchable size, because predation by larger fish and other natural mortality will thin their ranks.



VICKIE WINKLER of Fosston went above Thief River Falls' Kim McFarland to score in the second quarter of Saturday's girls high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym. The Greyhounds defeated the Prowlers 61-52. Thief River Falls hosts Region 8AA power Detroit Lakes Tuesday and will entertain East Grand Forks Thursday in the Prowlers' final regular season game of the 1979-80 season.

LHS Girls Tip Pirates 42-41

Second one-point win over a Region 8AA rival within four days was notched Thursday by the Lincoln high school girls basketball team as the Prowlers shaded Crookston 42-41. Last Monday Thief River Falls edged Bemidji 31-30 in a last-second shot.

"This one wasn't as dramatic," laughed Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg whose Prowlers won it when the Pirates' Lesley Ramey missed the front end of a bonus free throw situation with 11 seconds remaining.

Crookston tore up a Thief River Falls zone at the start, opening with an 11-2 lead. But a switch to a man-to-man defense paid immediate dividends for the Prowlers who promptly scored 14 straight points for a 16-11 lead.

The two teams swapped quarter leads. That early edge gave the Pirates an 11-10 lead at the end of the first quarter. The Prowlers went into halftime with a 20-19 advantage, but Crookston was ahead 28-26 after three quarters.

Crookston had a chance to win it with Ramey at the line at the end. The Pirates had connected on five of six fourth quarter free throws at that point and Ramey had made four straight. But this time she missed. Thief River Falls rebounded and ran out the final 11 seconds.

"We played well at times," said Sjoberg, "but generally it wasn't a very good effort."

Sjoberg did praise the play of LeAnn Paetznick, who had herself a 12-point, 11-rebound game, and Kathy Beito, who scored eight points coming off the bench. Ramey had 14 to lead the Pirates who beat the Prowlers 45-42 earlier.

Thief River Falls shot 39 per cent from the field, hitting 19 of 49 shots, and made four of 13 free throws. Host Crookston shot 30 per cent, making 14 of 47 shots, and sank 13 of 22 free throws. Thief River Falls finished with a 37-26 rebound advantage.

Crookston was a 34-30 winner in the junior varsity game, but Thief River Falls won the freshmen contest 52-33 behind Cristy Stromlund's 19 points.

A DONATION of $1,000 was presented by the Minnesota state archery association (MSAA) to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources for its wildlife feeding program. Making the check presentation to regional wildlife supervisor Bob Farmes was Dana Klos of Thief River Falls, the MSAA governor.

Archery Club Funds Are Used By DNR

A $1,000 check presented recently by the Minnesota state archery association (MSAA) to the Department of Natural Resources has brought the MSAA donations to conservation projects in Minnesota to some $26,000 over the last seven years, it was reported by Dana Klos of Thief River Falls, MSAA governor.

Klos made the latest check presentation to DNR regional supervisor Bob Farmes.

The money, raised during an annual spring archery tournement for conservation, is used to purchase food plots from farmers in Marshall, Polk, Kittson, Roseau, Beltrami and Pennington counties.

"Wildlife feeding is an important program, especially for the deer, pheasant and grouse," noted Farmes who explained that while it's a state-wide program funded by the state legislature, "our need is always greater than the money we have available, so this extra money will be put to good use and is certainly appreciated."

Northwestern Minnesota archery organizations include the Bemidji archery club, Lake Agassiz Bowmen of Moorhead, Northwest Archers of Kennedy, Roseau Bowhunters and the Thief River Falls archery club.

Fosston Sophomore Kills Lincoln Ball Club 61-52

Sophomore Janice Woods singlehandedly destroyed Thief River Falls Saturday as Fosston defeated the Prowlers 61-52 in a girls high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym. Woods' 28 points and 20 rebounds left quite an impression on Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg.

"One player destroyed our entire team," sighed Sjoberg, "even though I supposedly had two players guarding her — one in front and one in back."

The aggressive Woods did most of her damage on the boards, getting 10 offensive rebounds in the second half and scoring nine times after coming up with rebounds off the Fosston backboard.

"She could play with anybody in the state and be a star," said Sjoberg of Woods. "She's not a smooth as a Janet Karvonen, but she's more aggressive."

It was a duel of sophomores in the first half when Thief River Falls' Tara Nicholson nearly matched Woods' play. A rebound put back in by Nicholson had the Prowlers ahead 24-23 with 1:42 remaining in the first half, but Woods answered with a fast break lay-up and teammate Marla Erickson added a free throw with 33 seconds left for a 26-24 Fosston lead at halftime.

But Nicholson added just one basket to her eight first half points after intermission while Woods bettered a 13-point first half with 15 over the final 16 minutes as the Greyhounds pulled away to a 42-36 lead in the third quarter — with Woods, predictably, getting the final points on a rebound basket at the buzzer.

Nicholson's only basket of the second half — a rebound shot — kept the Prowlers within 42-38 at the start of the fourth quarter, but Fosston then produced six points in the next minute to go up 48-38, with Woods once again scoring on a rebound to complete the surge that decided the issue once and for all.

Erickson added 12 points to the Fosston attack, which represented a team-high figure by Thief River Falls' Roberta Engel.

With Woods getting almost half of them, Fosston outrebounded Thief River Falls 43-31. The Greyhounds also made 13 of 25 free throws while the Prowlers went 2-for-7 at the line. Thief River Falls out-shot Fosston, going 25-for-62 from the field for 40 per cent to the Greyhounds' 24-for-75, 32 per cent night. Fosston topped the turnover figures 18-14.

The loss dropped Thief River Falls' record to 6-9. The Prowlers will host Region 8AA power Detroit Lakes Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. and then close out their 1979-80 regular season schedule Thursday at home against East Grand Forks.

Fisher Scores 63 Points In Two Plummer Wins

Diane Fisher scored a season-high 30 points Thursday in a 66-45 win over Mount St. Benedict, but Plummer girls basketball coach Rick Kolvisto was hoping for a little more from the high-scoring senior who surpassed the 1,000-point barrier earlier this year.

"We want her to have a big scoring night before she's all done," smiled Kolvisto who described "bit" as being in the 40-point range. "We thought she might have it in this one, but she fouled out."

Fisher's 23-point scoring average is a consistent figure for the Plummer standout who will set her sights on Strandquist Saturday.

Mount St. Benedict led 18-14 at the end of the first quarter Thursday, but the host Cardinals went into halftime with a 32-28 edge. It was still close at 45-30 after three quarters, but Plummer out-scored the Blue Wave 21-6 over the last eight minutes to boost the Cardinals' record to 10-4.

"We had way too many turnovers (35)," said Kolvisto who wasn't happy with his team's play. "It just didn't look like they wanted to win it very badly."

Plummer was playing without starter Mary Westlake who has been averaging 10 points per game. She is sidelined indefinitely with a severe muscle injury in her hip.

"I told Diane she would have to be more offensive-minded now," joked Kolvisto.

Jodi Pahlen and Sandy Zimpel helped pull up the slack with 12 and 10 points, respectively. Mary Biermaier scored 23 points for Mount St. Benedict.

Plummer shot an even 50 per cent from the field, hitting 28 of 56 attempts. Mount St. Benedict shot 33 per cent, making 17 of 52 shots. From the free throw line the Cardinals were 10-for-19 and the Blue Wave went 11-for-23.

Grygla 56
Middle River 39

Terri Holthusen scored 17 points Saturday to lead Grygla to a 56-39 victory over Middle River in a make-up game postponed from Jan. 31.

"Terri really had a good game," praised Grygla coach Bill Radeunz. "She played really strong defense and had those 17 points. She really did a good job for us."

Grygla led at the quarter stops 14-10, 23-14 and 35-23.

Sherri Anderson and Jill Saurdiff were also in double figures for the 14-3 Eagles with 16 and 11 points, respectively. Patti Blazek scored 12 points for the Skippers.

Grygla used a big edge at the free throw line to win it, making 16 of 23 gift tosses while Middle River was just 1-for-7 at the line. From the field the Eagles were 20-for-62 for 32 per cent while the Skippers were 19-for-47 for 40 per cent.

The Eagles will be at Goodridge Tuesday for their final start of the 1979-80 season. The Skippers will close the season Saturday at home against Plummer.

Plummer 52
Strandquist 45

Diane Fisher bettered her 30-point Thursday output with a 33-point effort Saturday afternoon as Plummer beat Strandquist 52-45.

In one of her best performances ever Fisher connected on 11 of 17 field goal attempts, made 11 of 12 free throws and pulled down 17 rebounds. And with the Cardinals trailing 35-30 at the end of the third quarter, Fisher dominated play in the final eight minutes when she poured in 17 points to give her team a come-from-behind victory.

"The fourth quarter was one of the best we've seen her play," acknowledged Plummer coach Rick Koivisto who has seen his star come up with a bundle of strong performances over the past four years.

Deb Koskela added 11 points for the Cardinals who trailed 15-12 at the end of the first quarter and found themselves trailing 33-20 at halftime.

"We just stood around," said Kolvisto when he talked about his team's first half problems.

But the Cardinals shot well, hitting 17 of 38 field goals for 45 per cent and sinking 18 of 24 free throws. The host Warriors made 19 of 55 field goals for 35 per cent and made seven of 15 free throws.

Plummer, 11-4, will host Argyle Friday and will be at Middle River Saturday.

Northmen Lose 83-82 In Overtime At Brainerd

A Northwest Division title tie in the Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) developed for the second straight year Friday when Brainerd tripped Northland 83-82 in an overtime community college basketball game played at Brainerd.

The loss cost the Northmen an outright Northwest Division title, but a 7-4 finish was still good for a title tie with Fergus Falls. The Northmen and Spartans, who also shared the pennant a year ago, will both be appearing in this week's 1980 MJCAA state basketball tournament, with Northland going as the No. 1 team from the Northwest by virtue of a coin clip. Northland draws Mesabi and Fergus Falls faces Vermilion in Thursday's opening round tournament games at Normandale community college in Bloomington.

"It was kind of a bad way to end the season," said Northland coach Chet Engelman about Friday's setback. "We did not play very well. We didn't come out with any intensity and Brainerd did."

Brainerd built an 18-point, 38-20 cushion before settling for a 46-33 halftime lead. Northland battled back, going ahead 69-65 with just 1:10 remaining in the game following back-to-back shots by Terry Harris, the game's high scorer with 26 points.

But Brainerd standout Jeff Oliphant, who played only briefly in an 81-70 loss at Northland earlier this month when he sprained an ankle in the game's opening moments, canned a 17-foot turnaround jumper with seven seconds remaining for a 70-70 tie, forcing overtime.

It was nip-and-tuck in the five-minute overtime until Brainerd's Warner Lewis made the first of two free throws with 15 seconds left to give the Red Raiders an 83-80 edge. Vince parker scored with seven seconds on the clock for an 83-82 game, but the Northmen never got the ball back.

Oliphant finished with 25 points. "They went to him quite effectively," noted Engelman who said the Northmen found it tough to guard him under the officials' rule interpretations. "There was nothing we could do with him except put our hands up in the air."

Brainerd did a better job from the frre throw line than Northland to win it as the Red Raiders made 13 of 20 free throw opportunities while the Northmen made just six of 15 from the line. Northland outscored Brainerd from the field, hitting 38 of 81 shots for 47 per cent, while Brainerd made 35 of 76 shots for 46 per cent.

The next afternoon Brainerd defeated Crookston 94-89 to keep the Trojans from creating a three-way title tie and continued a season-long home court advantage in the Northwest Division that found visitors losing 11 of 12 road games against division rivals.

Only Northwest team with a road win against a division foe this winter was Northland, with the 83-82 win by the Northmen at Crookston Feb. 7, ultimately deciding the state tournament entries.

Spotlight On Crappies

From now until the walleye season opens on May 17 fishermen will be concentrating on the crappie and fishing for this species will get better as spring approaches.

There are two species of crappies in Minnesota — the white crappie and the black crappie. Both are members of the sunfish family along with the bluegill and the bass. The crappie often co-exists with populations of carp and bullheads.

Grand Rapids

Don Wendt of Rapids Tackle Shop at Grand Rapids is happy about the perch fishing in his area. There is no fish tastier than a winter-caught perch. The perch are being taken on Winnie in the Bena area. Several people have reported nice catches using small jigs and minnows. Twin Lake has been good for crappies.

State Anglers Are Reminded Of Regulations

Minnesota fishing seasons on walleye, northern pike, muskellunge and black bass closed on inland waters Feb. 15, the Department of Natural Resources reminded.

The season is open year 'round for crappies, sunfish and certain other species. But after Feb. 28 fishing shelters may not be left on the ice between the hours of midnight and 7 a.m.

After that date, the shelters may only be placed on the ice and used between the hours of 7 a.m. and midnight.

TWO LARGE SILOS hold corn silage and haylage at the Clarence O. Swanson dairy farm. A pole shed affords protection to young stock and dairy steers. The Swansons, Pennington county honor dairymen for 1980, milk 38 cows and are charter members of the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association.

Swansons Are County Dairy Farm Family

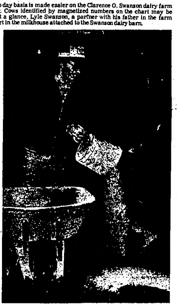
Every farm operation has its own unique ideas or problem-solvers and the Swanson farm is no exception. We noticed the handle on an electrical power box was secured in place with an expandable rubber truck tarp strap.

"A cow will get loose once in awhile," Swanson explained, "and they are smart enough to know where the feed comes from (it is augered in from an outside bin). They will nose around until they finally bump the switch that turns on the auger and brings in the feed." The truck tarp band keeps them from turning on the switch.

In addition to Lyle, two other Swanson children, Jim 19, and Pam, 17, live at home. Four of the other five children are married and all five live in the Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire areas.

Having family involvement in the dairy operation makes dairying a little more bearable. When Clarence and Norma go to Crookston to pick up their honor dairyman plaque and take part in the honor banquet, Lyle, Jim and Pam can handle the chores at home. And when Lyle is out racing snowmobiles in events like the I-500 (he made it to within about 60 miles of the finish line this year) or area weekend cross country races, other family members can fill in for him.

Most of the time, however, everybody keeps busy doing his or her own part in a fairly standard routine. Dairying is like that; it's a tedious task. But it provides us with a wholesome and nutritious food product and it is good that an event is set aside each year to recognize some of the people who do the work so that the rest of us can enjoy the products.



GRAIN RATION is being fed to dairy cattle at the Clarence O. Swanson farm by Lyle Swanson, a partner with his father in the farming operation. The Swansons add baking soda to the feed ration, causing cows to burp and thus eat more feed and produce more milk.

WELL-GROOMED APPEARANCE is presented by this cat perched on a partition in the Clarence Swanson dairy barn. The cat was an interested observer as photos were being taken in the barn and seemed unperturbed about being a photo subject itself.

Movie "Joni" To Be Shown At Galaxy

Under sponsorship of a local committee headed by Walt Redinger, the motion picture "Joni" will be shown February 20-26 at the Galaxy Twin theatre south of Thief River Falls with showings at 7 and 9 p.m. nightly. There will also be a 2 p.m. matinee February 24.

"Joni" is the story of Joni Eareckson, injured in a diving accident in 1967 and left a quadriplegic, who has since become a noted artist, author and national personality. The film is produced by World Wide Pictures, a division of the Billy Graham evangelistic association.

Other committee members locally in addition to Redinger are Barbara Page, executive secretary; Rev. Curtis Anderson, church director; Rev. Frank Armstrong, counseling director; Rev. Floyd Dalzell, prayer director; Glen Espe, civic clubs and religious organizations; Paul Able, student director; Rev. J. L. Hagemeister, outlying towns; Jerry Hendrickson and Chuck Erickson, publicity; Paul Wold, arrangements; and John Wallberg, finance.

"You are bound to have a different outlook on life after seeing this film," Redinger said. "Its purpose is to show and demonstrate that there are answers to many of the questions we all have regarding doubts, struggles, problems and especially suffering in our own lives. This is an excellent film for children and families."

Tickets may be purchased at the theater or discount coupons are available at local churches, the film office at Holiday motel or Bethany Book store in downtown Thief River Falls.

Land Sales To Be Discussed At Meetings

Educational meetings on the various methods of buying and selling farmland will be conducted in 14 Minnesota counties during March by the University of Minnesota agricultural extension service.

"Taking part in a meeting on land value, finance and transfer could improve one's ability to deal with the many problems of buying or selling a farm," says extension farm management specialist Paul Hasbargen. Speakers from the University and local financial institutions will help individual participants consider such questions as: what is land of different quality selling for in this area?, what is the maximum bid price I can justify?, what financing alternatives are available?, will buying farmland cause problems with yields, cash flow, estate transfer or taxes?, how can parents best transfer a farm to the next generation?

Hasbargen says the meetings will try to deal with the issues involved in land pricing that stem from a basic dilemma: "On the one hand land is almost always a good investment. But on the other hand the net income from cropping is almost never enough to cover land payments in the early years of the repayment schedule."

Participants will receive worksheets to help them estimate their ability to meet cash flow requirements when buying land under various financing methods. For details on the land transfer meetings, contact the county extension office.

Fourteen Minnesota counties including meeting dates are: Martin — March 3, Jackson — March 4, Pipestone — March 5, Lyon — March 6, Yellow Medicine — March 10, Meeker — March 11, Freeborn — March 11, West Otter Tail — March 12, Olmstead — March 12, West Polk — March 13, Goodhue — March 13, Kanabec — March 18, Wadena — March 19, and Morrison — March 26.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

NEWLY PROMOTED to the office of regional wildlife supervisor at the Region One office of the Minnesota department of natural resources in Bemidji is Robert Farmes of Thief River Falls. Farmes, who has been with the state department in Thief River Falls since August of 1949, will be in charge of all wildlife management activities in a 22-county area of northwestern Minnesota. He succeeds Vern Gunvalson who has retired from state service. Following graduation from the University of Minnesota with a bachelor of science degree in wildlife management in 1949, he came to Thief River Falls as a research biologist in waterfowl and prairie grouse studies. In 1959 he succeeded Emil Frank as area game manager and was named area wildlife manager in the early 1970's. For the last four years he has served as assistant regional supervisor and has been in charge of wildlife habitat development for Region One.

Hospital And United Blood Services Join

Northwestern hospital services in Thief River Falls has joined United Blood services of the Upper Midwest, bringing the number of area hospitals affiliated with United Blood services to 46. The hospital has also severed its long-standing affiliation with War Memorial blood bank of Minneapolis.

Announcement of the new affiliation, made jointly by chairman Harry Solberg of the board of Northern Blood bank, Inc., and hospital administrator Norman Peterson, cites four major factors in the decision to join the Fargo-based operation.

Major importance was placed on the desire of the board of directors of the blood bank and hospital to have the best possible blood program available for area residents. Cooperation of Northern Blood bank and United Blood services will merge advantages of the regional blood program and local / blood bank organization.

Since the United organization resources encompass a blood inventory for 46 hospital in a 34-county area of Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota, the regional system assures a greater availability of blood as needed.

Secondly, the decision of Northwestern hospital and Northern Blood bank to join UBS will also strengthen the blood program for other northwestern Minnesota communities. The blood bank laboratory here will be purposely overstocked by UBS so blood could be moved from here to other hospitals in an emergency. Hospitals already served by the organization include Red Lake Falls, Baudette, Warren, Karlstad and Greenbush, and all should benefit by having greater availability of blood products.

Third factor considered is the efficient use of blood. United Blood services' record indicates that only one of 40 units of blood drawn becomes outdated. National average is about eight out of 50 units drawn.

Fourth factor outlined in the announcement was the availability of additional blood products. United is able to supply specialized blood components which were previously not routinely available. The change has been unanimously endorsed by the medical staff and the blood bank board.

Executive director Rony Anthoinsen of United Blood services emphasized that, "We at UBS do one thing — we provide blood to area hospitals when, where and in the amount it is needed. Addition of Thief River Falls will insure the best blood program possible for Thief River Falls as well as other area hospitals."

He further explained that blood drives will be conducted in Thief River Falls on a regular basis. Goal will be to collect blood during one year in proportion to its use. Last year the hospital here used about 700 units of blood. Drives will be scheduled during 1980 to collect approximately the same amount used in 1979. Northern Blood bank in the past collected about 20 blood donations a week; UBS expects to hold about nine or 10 blood drives this year.

Blood drives will be organized by the blood bank board of directors here. Staff of UBS will assist in planning the drives but actual recruitment will be done locally. UBS professional staff will do the blood drawing and local volunteers will assist in other ways.

An open forum with representatives of the hospital, Northern Blood bank and United Blood services is planned for Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the American Legion club rooms in Thief River Falls. General public is welcome to attend and a question and answer session is planned.

Local blood bank services were formed in 1953, at which time an affiliation with Minneapolis War Memorial blood bank was formed. On Nov. 17, 1964, Northern Blood bank was incorporated with the incorporators including Verner Erickson, Madeline Robarge, Jon Melusalem, Philip Kays and Norman Peterson.

Other members of the first board were Gordon Reierson, Vern Lindquist of St. Hilaire,

Minn. Share Of US Budget $11.5 Billion

Taxpayers in Minnesota will pay $11.5 billion as their share of the cost of the federal budget for fiscal year 1981, according to the budget figures just released by President Carter, the Minnesota Taxpayers Association estimated.

This is $1.6 billion or 16 per cent higher than Minnesota's estimated share of the proposed 1980 federal budget. (In comparison, Minnesota taxpayers will pay $7.76 billion to fund the state general fund budget for fiscal years 1980 and 1981).

The estimate of Minnesota's share of the federal tax burden associated with the new budget is derived from a formula for estimating the allocation of the federal tax burden by state, computed by the tax foundation, a nationally recognized research organization that estimates that Minnesotans will pay 1.86 per cent of the federal budget in 1981, compared with 1.85 per cent in 1980 and 1.77 per cent in 1979. Minnesota's increasing share is partly attributable to recent higher rankings in personal income. Latest figures available show Minnesota 19th highest in the nation, based on 1978 per capita personal income.

Traditionalism Found In US, Says Gitte Birlev

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

For Gitte Birlev, exchange student from Motala, Sweden, most everything in the United States is different from her homeland, including church, school, food, people, and the farm life at LaVerne Hamre's, where Gitte is living while in the United States.

Gitte, 17, was born and raised in Motala, a "normal sized" city of 40,000, which is situated between Stockholm, the capital of Sweden, and Goteborg, the second largest city in Sweden.

She applied in Sweden to become an exchange student, she said. Students selected are outgoing students with fairly good grades. After students are selected for consideration, they are interviewed and their papers are sent to the United States to the main office in Boston, where they are in turn sent to various representatives throughout the United States, she said. The families where the students reside while attending school are also interviewed.

"It is a volunteer thing that the family wants to do," she said.

Gitte has two American brothers, Kirk, 17 and Kirby, 12, and one American sister, Tawnya. She will be residing with her American family until she graduates from Lincoln high school in June, she said.

This year of school at Lincoln will not count towards Gitte's education in Sweden, she said, and she will begin her education as a freshman instead of a sophomore in junior college in Sweden when she returns home. But the trip has been worth "missing" one year of school, she said.

"I always wanted to know what it was like in the United States. I had heard so much about it," she said. Everything was becoming so routine in Sweden and I wanted to try something new. The trip has really been worth it."

There is no cost for going to a junior college in Sweden, since schooling after high school is paid through taxes, Gitte said. When students attend universities beyond the junior college level, payments are made through loans, with the student repaying the loans when he or she finishes school.

"We have 16 classes in high school but we don't have all the classes every day," she said. "We can't choose our classes as much as students can here. Every student in Sweden is required to take English from fifth grade, and all the other classes we take are required."

"I BELIEVE YOU should take what you like yourself without being pushed into it," Gitte Birlev, exchange student from Sweden, said during a recent Times interview. Gitte was explaining the differences in roles between men and women in the United States and Sweden, and the ways in which young men and women are taught from the time they are very young in Sweden, that a woman for example, does not have to become a nurse and a man does not have to become a carpenter.

Caucuses Cut School Activity

There will be no school sponsored activities in the Thief River Falls schools after 7 p.m. on the evening of February 26 due to party caucuses being held that evening.

Census Takers Recruited For TR Falls Area

Census takers are needed in this area, according to Carole Wilson, district manager of the area's 1980 census office in Bemidji.

Census bureau welcomes applications from persons who will be able to work 40 hours a week, including many evenings and Saturdays, calling upon householders for their census forms. Work will begin soon. Before being hired, applicants will be tested for their ability to understand printed instructions and do simple arithmetic.

The manager says census takers must be physically fit to be on their feet for long periods and to climb stairs; must have good eyesight for reading small print and good hearing for normal conversation. Most should have a home telephone and many will need a car for their work.

Census takers will receive a fee for their training and will be paid a piece rate for the number of household listings completed. Earnings can average $4 an hour or more. Most jobs will last three to five weeks. Applicants should call 751-0730.

School Dist. Board Denies Grievance

Personnel difficulties in the School District 564 transportation department were brought before the board of education at the regular meeting of the board Monday evening at the school district service center.

A grievance by bus driver George DeWall, filed through the union representing bus drivers, was denied by board resolution. Rev. DeWall's grievance resulted from appointment of another person to a full-time nine-month bus driver position for which he had applied.

The board also authorized advertising and posting for another full-time nine-month bus driver position following the resignation of Mrs. Eliesabeth Carlson from that job. Her resignation was accepted Monday evening.

Acceptance of premium payment from bus driver Harold Halvorson for insurance as long as he continues to be a driver for the district and the contract permits was authorized by the board. Resolution was based on his having qualified for insurance as a full-time driver and his position was later reduced to part-time by the board.

The board also accepted the job description for the position of bus mechanic foreman and authorized posting and advertising for that position.

Resignation of Ted Anderson as regular route bus driver was accepted. Joe Courneya was hired as a regular route bus driver (morning only) and Marie Hallada was hired as a long term substitute at Franklin middle school while the regular teacher is on maternity leave. After 10 days at regular substitute rate, salary will be $60.15 per day.

Carol Ihle was hired on a part-time basis for the balance of the 1979-80 school year to serve identified students at St. Bernard's school on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 1:30 to 3 p.m. at an hourly rate of $14.10.

Resignation of Myron Paterson from the position of boys ninth grade basketball coach was accepted, effective at the end of the current season.

Bid from H.G. Nordquist in the amount of $12,000 for the school district to purchase residential property for remodeling by the AVTI carpentry class next school year was accepted. Three other bids offering property for sale and ranging from $11,500 to $32,000 were considered.

Bid of $6,566 from Tunberg Motor company for a new mid-sized station wagon was accepted. The vehicle is to be

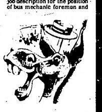
Presidential Straw Vote Holds Caucus Interest



Interest will be centered in straw votes for U.S. Presidential candidates when precinct caucuses are held throughout Minnesota Tuesday evening. In Pennington county three caucus sites have been announced by each of the two major political parties — the Democrat Farmer-Labor (DFL) and the Independent-Republican (I-R) parties.

Anyone who will be qualified to vote on November 4 of this year, whether presently registered as a voter of not, may participate in a precinct caucus. No previous party affiliation is required since caucuses serve as open part, meetings.

"If concerned, dedicated citizens are not formulating policies and electing good representatives for their districts, others will," warns Mrs. Joan Anderson Growe, Minnesota secretary of state. "Anyone participating at a caucus may offer a resolution or recommend persons for elective office. Resolutions need not be written or formal."

Straw votes will be taken among caucus participants to determine support for announced Presidential candidates since Minnesota has no presidential primary election.

DFL caucuses will be held at the Bray and Highlanding township halls and the Lincoln high school cafeteria in Thief River Falls. I-R caucuses will be held at the Thief River Falls city auditorium, Goodridge school and St. Hilaire school library.

Precincts involved in each of the caucuses will be as follows:

Independent-Republican

City Auditorium — Thief River Falls wards and townships of North, Smiley, Silverton and Rocksbury; Kurt Marben will preside;

Goodridge School — City of Goodridge and townships of Cloverleaf, Deer Park, Goodridge, Hickory, Highlanding, Kratka, Mayfield, Reiner and Star; Dr. David Brown and Mrs. Sharon Howard will preside;

St. Hilaire School — City of St. Hilaire and townships of Black River, Bray, Norden, Numedal, Polk Centre, River Falls, Sanders and Wyandotte; H. James Erickson will preside.

Democrat Farmer-Labor

Lincoln Cafeteria — Thief River Falls wards and townships of North, Rocksbury, Silverton and Smiley;

Bray Town Hall — City of St. Hilaire and townships of Numedal, Bray, Polk Centre, Norden, Sanders, Black River and Wyandotte; Highlanding Hall — City of Goodridge and townships of Cloverleaf, Kratka, Mayfield, Goodridge, Highlanding, Deer Park, Reiner, Star and Hickory.

All caucus sessions will start at 8 p.m. with registration beginning at 7:30 p.m.

"You can nominate the President of the United States and you won't have to leave your own area," states Pennington county DFL chairwoman Fran Stromberg in commenting on the caucuses. "Each precinct is part of a legislative district and the basic voting block of the state.

"The precinct caucus if the first step in the process that leads to the 1980 Democratic national convention. This is where the members tell the party what is important. Caucuses begin writing the party platform; if it isn't brought up at a caucus, it can't be part of our platform," she said.

Caucuses held by the DFL will elect delegates to the country convention to be held on March 16 at 1 p.m. at the Lincoln high school cafeteria in Thief River Falls.

At I-R caucuses delegates will be elected to the county convention to be held Monday, March 10 at 7 p.m. in the Thief River Falls city auditorium. One or more delegates will be elected from each precinct in accordance with votes cast in the past Minnesota gubernatorial election.

By Minnesota law, no school board, county board of commissioners, township board or city council may conduct a meeting after 7 p.m. on the day of a political party precinct caucus. The same applies to state universities or community colleges unless approval has been received from state governing boards.

No public elementary or secondary school may hold a school-sponsored event after 7 p.m. on the day of a political party precinct caucus. No school official may deny the use of a public school building for a caucus if written request for the use is made 30 days or more prior to the caucus date.

Nelson And Sundby Vows Solemnized At Stephen

Miss Tammy Jo Nelson and Craig Arden Sundby were united in marriage at 3:30 p.m. on Saturday, January 19, at the First Lutheran church at Stephen.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Russel Nelson of Stephen and Mr. and Mrs. Arden Sundby of Argyle.

The double ring vows were solemnized in an ecumenical ceremony by Rev. Howard D. Wagner and Rev. Henry Carriere. Tina Linstrom served as Scripture reader. The skirt, in redingote style with an organza pleated front panel, was complemented by an attached chapel-length train of Chantilly lace. A matching lace headpiece held her three-tiered veil of bridal illusion, edged with lace. She carried a nosegay of garnet red and white roses and babies' breath, accented with garnet ribbon streamers.

Tami Trautmen of Moorhead, a friend of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Jeannie Scofield, a cousin of the bride; Rochelle LaMotte and Jill Peterson, friends of the bride; and Dawn Sundby, a sister of the groom. Their gowns of garnet red crepe, styled with square necklines and spaghetti straps, featured crystal pleated floor-length shirts. Waist-length jackets topped the gowns. BPW Program Highlights The Dinner-Meeting

Diversified program highlighted the monthly dinner-meeting of the Thief River Falls Business and Professional Women's club held Monday evening at the Elks club. Program chairman was Clarice Gallher.

The program included a survey by city planner Jack Quinlivian to gain ideas for a new city development plan; a presentation by Kathy Kolden from the Martha Rogers Ripley Alliance; and a plea from Ellen Spray for support in asking the city and or cemetery associations to obtain a machine that will make it possible to have burials after the ground is frozen.

In asking for ideas for future development plans for Thief River Falls, Quinlivian asked the members to divide into groups and discuss the issue, listing the three top priorities. Ideas listed were: need for an overpass, or underpass, preserving the downtown business area, further housing in the downtown vacinity for the elderly; playgrounds near the family housing units and trailercourts, public transportation, such as buses; encouragment of industrial growth with bonding if necessary, more multi-family housing for low income families; and improving the sidewalks with ramps for the handicapped. In discussing sidewalk improvement, the majority of the members were opposed to the brick-type sidewalks installed downtown a few years ago.

The three top priorities listed were encouraging industry, preserving the downtown business area and securing public transportation.

Accompanying Quinlivan was J.J. Womack, who is a member of the City Planning commission, and Jan Thorstad, assistant city planner.

In giving information on the Battered Women's program, Mrs. Kolden stated that the organization has purchased the former Swedenburg hospital on North Knight to be used as a shelter for battered women and children in Region 1. Plans are to have the shelter open for operation in March. The shelter will provide housing for about 10 women and children, plus offices and housekeeping facilities. Although the project is funded by the State Department of Corrections, community donations of bedding, towels, household items, rugs, carpeting, children's toys and furniture will be greatly appreciated. Also needed will be volunteers to work as advocates, both for adults and children. She stated that at present weekly meetings of a supportive group are held with 10-14 attending.

In soliciting the group for support in changing the present burial policy during the winter months, Mrs. Spray stated that until the burial was completed the healing process was not only delayed but the traumatic grieving period was renewed with the spring burial. She listed towns, smaller than Thief River Falls, that have machines making winter burials possible. The group voted to contact the cemetery associations, to check into the matter.

Members also voted to give a donation to the Senior Citizens to enable them to spend a day at the Winter show at Crookston.

Clarice Collins reminded members to attend the informational meeting of the Northern Blood bank to be held Monday evening at the Legion club.

Information on the Young Careerist program was given by Phyllis Olson. She asked that all contestants be notified of the meeting to be held Saturday at the Best Western.

The report on the Winter Board meeting was given by President Vicky Erickson. She stated that according to a recent national poll, 56 per cent were in favor of ERA.

The meeting began with a roast beef dinner.

Engineer Week Draws Comment From Senator

"Anyone who has traveled at all in the United States must be impressed with the capabilities of engineers — buildings, transportation systems, power plants, communications networks — all are a visible demonstration of what engineers can accomplish when confronted with a highly complex problem, states Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, calling attention to engineers' week February 17-23.

As long as sufficient resources — money and manpower — can be applied, there is virtually no technological problem that engineers can't overcome. The Panama canal, the Manhattan project, and the Apollo program to put a man on the moon, are oft-quoted examples. "I have no quarrel with what engineers can do once they are pointed in the right direction," he said.

"But there are the engineers when decisions are made on what should be done: How many engineers are there in the United States Senate or the House of Representatives — or even on their staffs, for that matter? How would the national environmental policy act look if it had been drafted by an engineer? How many engineers are in the business of allocating resources in the executive branch? (I must acknowledge that there is at least one engineer in a high position at the White House.)"

"I don't know the answers to these questions, but I would be surprised to find the engineering profession represented by more than a small percentage of the principal decision makers in our government.

"Today we are faced with the greatest engineering challenge that has ever confronted the world. We are running out of controllable energy — energy that can be harnessed with the technology that we now have. Whether one thinks the problem is critical now or will become so some years in the future, without some technological breakthrough, the standard of living we now enjoy — and expect — will change dramatically," he added.

"What should we do? We have seen successive administrations and congresses struggle with this complex problem. Energy plans have come, been decimated, and been replaced by new energy plans. I'm sure the engineering professional groups have taken positions on the various aspects of those energy plans — for or against certain provisions — but have they generated their own plans? I'm sure engineers have all criticized certain energy legislative proposals — but have they ever written one?

"Let me illustrate with solar energy. Within the engineering profession, I can find opinions on the potential for solar energy that range from total endorsement to total rejection. Some say solar energy could produce 25 per cent of our total energy needs by the year 2000, while others say the cost of energy needed to produce a solar system exceeds the total fossil fuel savings that will accrue over the life of the solar system. Who is right?

"As a lawyer, how am I to know technologically whether to favor increased or decreased emphasis on solar energy? What is the position of the engineering profession on solar energy? If engineers can't reach a consensus, how can politicians and bureaucrats do so?" he asked.

Marv Hanson To Seek 2nd Senate Term

State Senator Marv Hanson announced today that he will seek reelection from District 1 to a second term in the Minnesota state senate. Counties included in District 1 are Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake, Roseau and the northwest corners of Polk and Beltrami.

Hanson stated that his campaign would focus on two concerns — revising state foundation aid to school districts and changing real estate tax assessments.

"The school aid formula must be revised so that our school districts receive a fair share of aids to meet escalating costs," he said. "I was able to make that change in the senate during the 1979 session of the legislature, but it failed to gain acceptance by the House of Representatives. If reelected, I will again seek this revision of school aids for increased support to our school districts."

Sen. Hanson also said that he would work to change real estate tax assessments so that farm land valuations reflect what those lands produce, rather than sales value.

"Currently prices of farm sales have escalated and farm assessments are shifting. To counter these shifts, the legislature has had to adjust assessment ratios in each of the last four sessions. If we assess farm land on what it can produce for the farmer and his family — rather than on speculative prices — the legislature wouldn't have to make continuous adjustments and farm valuations would be put on a fair basis."

Hanson is presently completing his first term in the senate. An attorney with offices in Hallock, he farms with his father and brother in Kittson county. Hanson was elected assistant majority

SIX PEOPLE WERE INJURED in this accident involving four vehicles on icy highway 32 about two miles north of Middle River about 6:30 p.m. Tuesday. Minnesota state patrol officers were continuing investigation of the accident this morning and unavailable to provide details. According to the Badger Enterprise — which provided the Times with the above photo from the accident scene — the mishap took place when a northbound car skidded sideways into the path of a vehicle driven south by Randi Heggedal, 23, Badger. The northbound car was also struck by a vehicle which the Heggedal car had just passed, and possibly by a fourth vehicle. Iris Hendershot of Roseau, 80, was transferred to a Grand Forks hospital from Thief River Falls in critical condition with multiple fractures. Velma Sonsteng, 65, Roseau, was hospitalized in the intensive care unit here with fractured ribs and multiple lacertaions and contusions. Her condition is considered serious. Also hospitalized were Randi Heggedal with fractured ribs, contusions, abrasions and lacertaions and Lucille Heggedal, 25, Badger, with a fractured right kneecap, abrasions and lacerations. Both are listed in good condition. Treated and released were Bert Gjovik Jr., 32, Strathcona, and Carol Flaten, 24, Roseau. Drivers of the vehicles were unknown at the time of this writing. The car in the foreground was believed driven north by Velma Sonsteng.

GITTE BIRLEV, spoke of the "traditional" lifestyles many Americans seem to lead that she has observed during her stay in the United States as an exchange student from Sweden. Many people seem to get to know people only on the surface, she said, although she has been able to meet some close friends here.

Swedish Girl Finds U.S. Is Traditional

have to work through high school to pay for their education after graduation like so many of them do in the United States, she said, since school is free there.

"But, it's hard to get a job without going to college in Sweden."

Even though Gitte left her job at a hamburger bar to come to the United States last August, she said she is puzzled by the way people eat so much hamburger here. She was making $5 an hour while employed at the bar.

"Wages go up after 6 p.m., after 8 p.m., and they're doubled after midnight," she said. "But taxes are high, too."

"There are no poor people in Sweden for sure," she said. "People receive social aid to help them out if they need it."

There are approximately 400,000 immigrants in Sweden today, Gitte said, and most of them come from southern Europe. Sweden itself has a population of 8 million.

Most immigrants develop their own churches in Sweden, upon arriving, but the state church is Protestant.

"People seem to be brought up more religious here (U.S.)," she said. "Most people go to church every Sunday. In Sweden, no one's forced to do anything. To get confirmed you don't even have to believe in God.". And, religion is not discussed in schools or on television.

There has existed a non-socialistic majority of people since 1976, Gitte said. Four or five years prior to that time, a socialistic viewpoint dominated the country.

Form of government is organized as a monarchy, with the king having no power at all, including no voting power.

"Many people think that the king doesn't do anything since he has no power, but he does." The king exists mainly because of tradition, Gitte said, but he is similar to the vice president of the United States.

There are 349 seats in Congress in Sweden, and also five parties that people vote on. The Prime Minister heads the leading party voted upon.

Ninety per cent of the businesses in Sweden are privately owned, she said, otherwise everything else is socialized. The larger corporations, such as hospitals, are owned by the state.

Every Swedish citizen, 18, can vote. A person also has to be 18 to obtain a driver's license, which costs $300. Gitte is in the process of obtaining her American driver's license, so she will be able to take part in more school activities. Cost for a driver's license is high, just as most other things in Sweden, she said. For example, a can of pop would cost 75 cents in Sweden.

Gitte, just as other Swedish people was raised with the metric system, so it has been difficult for her to use our measurement system.

"I'm having the hardest time in my food classes. To me, our system seems more realistic. I don't even know how much I weigh here, but that's okay," she said, laughing.

In Sweden there is no dating system between young men and women as there is here. The two are considered more as friends. There is no Sno-fest, no homecoming. Marriage is not a necessary requirement for the approval of love. People are not concerned with dressing up. And, through Gitte's visit in the United States, she has come to learn the "traditional" lifestyles many Americans tend to lead, she said.

She has also found that students are more individual in Sweden.

"Here (in America) kids are more controlled by parents and schools. But it seems that teachers seem to be working more for their students here."

Reasons for this, according to Gitte, are various rules such as the pass system for absences and homework.

"You have to work here in order to graduate," she said. In Sweden, everyone graduates — they just have a harder time succeeding if their grades are poor.

She has also noticed that children seem to have more respect for their parents here.

One of the few things that people do in Sweden according to tradition is the celebration of Santia Lucia which occurs December 13. The tradition began from a story of a girl in Italy whose husband punished her for being good to the poor. Today, participants wear white robes on this day with the leaders wearing crowns, and visits are made to rest homes and hospitals to share songs, conversation and food with the residents.

Roles between men and women are different between the two countries, too, Gitte said.

"Lifestyles between men and women are more equal there. You don't find many housewives. And, when a baby is born, the father gets paid for staying home and taking care of it. When the child gets older and both parents are working, the government has places set up for the children."

From as early as kindergarten, both boys and girls are taught to play with both kinds of toys, she said. As they become older, girls are steered toward classes such as woodworking, and boys are steered toward careers such as nursing.

"I don't really think much about things like that," she said. "I believe you should take what you like yourself without being pushed into it."

The local newspaper in Motala is similar to the Thief River Falls Times, she said. Then, there are two large nightly newspapers in the entire country of Sweden, and four or five morning newspapers.

"Each one is from a different political viewpoint," she said.

There are two channels on television, with educational programs dominating the schedule of shows, and there are no commercials.

"Commercials here drive me nuts," she said. "But here there are more channels to choose from so you can find what you want and get relaxed and entertained."

There are presently 1,500 Swedish exchange students in America, Gitte said, with approximately 67 of them in Minnesota, and 10 in the immediate area. All of the exchange students meet at a selected site during the year, she said. And, although Florida was selected as the meeting place this year, Gitte has decided to wait until April, when she is planning to travel to California with her American sister, Tawnya.

Because she lives out in the country, Gitte is not able to participate in as many activities as she would like. She is planning to go out for track this spring, when hopefully, she will have her driver's license.

"I like hockey games," she admitted. "It's such a neat feeling seeing the cheerleaders and the band." There are no school bands or orchestras in Sweden.

In Sweden there is one nationality dominating the family (inherited from the father), and Gitte is Danish. And, because her brother is also Danish, he would not be required to go to war if the country became involved in one.

"All men, 19, who are Swedish, have to go into military training for one year," she stated. "And, for women who want to go to war, it's fine." But she does not believe that requiring women to register for the draft is a form of women's liberation to show equality between men and women.

Gitte has had a somewhat difficult time meeting people here because there seems to be a tendency of people to meet each other only on the surface in many cases, she said. And real contact is difficult here because there are so many different groups of people. But she plans to come back to the United States, she said.

"After I finish college, I'd like to come back to the United States to become a travel agent."

Stangeland Studies Heating Fuel Costs

Home heating oil prices have almost doubled during the last year and Congressman Arlan Stangeland said Tuesday, following testimony before the House environment, energy and natural resources subcommittee, "We have to determine if these increases are fair or if the oil refiners and distributors are making excessive profits at consumer expense.

"Part of the problem we're facing," Stangeland said, "is establishing which information is correct. We've had conflicting reports from the department of energy and the general accounting office as to the price of crude, the amount of expense in refining and distributing that oil and the price at which it should actually be sold to consumers."

Nationally, the average price of home heating oil has increased 111 per cent since July of 1976, most of which has taken place since January of 1979. A major portion of this increase can be attributed to price increases by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), while further increases can be attributed to high inflation and higher costs for production and distribution.

During testimony, the general accounting office accused the department of energy of doing little to determine the equity of price increases passed on to the consumer. GAO representatives stated it was their belief that home heating oil prices were higher because of excessive prices charged by refiners and that these prices were higher than additional expenses caused by OPEC price increases and other production related costs.

"I don't think anyone will argue the fact that the refiners are in business to make a reasonable profit, but the information the subcommittee has been presented is insufficient for deciding if prices are fair or excessive. The department of energy is required by law to provide Congress with the cost of oil, the cost of production and the margin of profit and until they assure us their figures are accurate it will be difficult for us to make a reasonable decision on behalf of the consumer and the refiner," Rep. Stangeland said.

Stangeland further pointed out that he introduced last May a concurrent resolution expressing the sense of the Congress that the President should immediately establish a national energy council. This council was intended to restore credibility to energy data problems and the progress made toward solving those problems.

"The American public is rightfully demanding that they be told the truth about energy and if this resolution had been passed it would not have been necessary for this sub-committee to demand information from the department of energy," Stangeland concluded.

CONGRESSMAN Arlan Stangeland questions witnesses from the department of energy on the high price of home heating oil during a hearing held by the subcommittee on environment, energy and natural resources. The purpose of the hearing was to determine if oil refiners and distributors are making excessive profits at consumer expense.

Farmers Hit Hard By Acts Beyond Control

by Gov. Al Quie

Minnesota farmers have been hit hard this year by circumstances beyond their control.

First there was the 12-week grain handlers strike at the Duluth-Superior Harbor. Upper midwest farmers lost half a billion dollars because of that strike. And just as the farm economy was beginning to recover President Carter announced the Soviet Union grain embargo. Estimates are that farmers could lose an additional $1.2 billion over the next two years due to the embargo.

As governor of a state in which agriculture is the number one industry, I find these occurrences disturbing. Our state alone cannot fight these circumstances. Assistance and understanding must come from the federal level and through cooperation with other states.

In an effort to solve some of our agricultural problems I am focusing on the areas of agricultural transportation and farm credit. These important issues must be considered at the federal, regional and state levels.

On the national level I will testify about the impact of the grain embargo before the U.S. Senate Committee on Agriculture on Feb. 25.

At the regional and state levels I am concentrating on improving the transportation of our agricultural products over water. Our waterways are the backbone of our Minnesota agricultural transportation system. In 1979, 83 per cent of the total grain and oilseeds in export terminals were shipped by water. This compares to 1 per cent that was transported by truck and 16 per cent that left by rail.

A large percentage of these agricultural goods are shipped from the Duluth-Superior harbor. In an attempt to improve our shipping capacities at the harbor I called a special meeting of the Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission in late January to discuss harbor improvements. Through a joint effort with Wisconsin we may be able to deepen the Duluth harbor, allowing larger ships to serve our docks and increasing the tonnage shipped from our port. To do this we will need to plan carefully for the disposal of dredging material and consider the environmental impact upon the harbor.

I also support an early harbor opening this spring. Last fall we received a three-day extension on the closing date of the harbor. In those three days we were able to ship an additional 15 million bushels of grain. Customarily the port opens on April 1. With our mild winter this year I would like to see a March opening date.

In the long term, I also am supporting a 12-month shipping season. There are questions that need to be answered about year-round shipping, but I believe it is an option that may be the answer to our agricultural transportation problem.

In addition to creating a transportation problem, the Duluth grain strike also had a detrimental effect upon our farm credit. The Farm Home Administration reported that the 1979 fiscal year outstanding farm debt for Minnesota was 34 per cent higher than in 1978. This amounts to $513.3 million in outstanding debts.

This credit problem may be worsened by the grain embargo. At an Upper Midwest Council seminar in mid-February, one Federal Reserve banker said that the embargo has created the tightest money market ever.

When I testify before the Senate Agriculture Committee later this month I will be taking these messages to Washington, D.C. so policymakers there will hear how this grain embargo has effected our state agricultural economy.

At the federal, regional and state level I am working to improve our farm economy. Agriculture is important to our state and I want to make sure we are doing all we can for our farmers.

Emergency Aids At Rest Stops Help Travelers

When stranded by winter storms, motorists can find life-saving emergency supplies at all rest stops located along the state trunk highway system, announced Gerals Kittridge, director of emergency services, a division of the Minnesota department of public safety.

"These emergency rations are not a gourmet's delight, but could be a life-saving treat to a winter storm victim," Kittridge said.

A total of 36 rest stops will be stocked with coffee, tea, chocolate, powdered milk, sugar, dehydrated soup, crackers, hard candies and bottled water. Blankets, cards, paperback books and even a few games will also be available to help the stranded travelers pass the hours away.

"These rations will be issued only under dire conditions and at the discretion of rest area managers," added Kittridge. "Although emergency supplies are now available, travelers are urged to listen to forecasts, road reports and storm warnings before leaving on a trip. This is still the best way of avoiding a potentially dangerous situation."

The project is a joint effort by the Minnesota department of public safety, the Minnesota department of transportation (DOT), and the American Red Cross.

Division of emergency services provided the original containers, blankets, liners and hard candy.

American Red Cross supplied all additional food and assemblage. On Dec. 16, 1979, youth volunteers from the St. Paul area began assembling the 1980 emergency supplies at the Red Cross division headquarters in St. Paul.

Mn-DOT personnel painted the containers identifying the contents, and highway trucks delivered the supplies to the 36 rest stops.

In 1976 the project was begun as part of the highway emergency shelter program and to date has cost approximately $15,000. Because of the need demonstrated and the use of the emergency supplies, the project is now included in the Minnesota comprehensive plan for natural disaster assistance.

"The real cost of the program does not reflect the hundreds of hours donated by volunteers to collect, assemble and distribute the materials, nor does it reflect the lives saved by the emergency supplies," Kittridge said. "This project is a good illustration of cooperation by the government, the Red Cross, and individuals where every citizen benefits."

GARY KNOX ARTISTIC Impression Trophy was presented to Michelle Miner, Grand Forks, during the Thief River Falls free skating competition concluded Sunday afternoon at the Thief River Falls city arena. Five clubs participated in the competition including, Border Blades Skating club of Grand Forks, the Red River Valley Skating club of Fargo, Vacationland Skating club of Brainerd, the Bemidji Figure skating club and the Thief River Falls Figure Skating club (sponsor for the entire two-day event). Total of 63 competitors took part in the afternoon event, with 13 skaters participating from Thief River Falls.

STAYING IN TOUCH!

Energy Conservation — An American Necessity

The need for a strong national energy conservation program has never been more apparent than right now. Without a viable conservation program, along with the development of our domestic oil reserves and alternative sources of energy, we can expect to see current prices climb even higher.

Since 1972, the cost of energy has risen at a rate of 4 to 6 times greater than the rate of inflation during that same period. For example, in 1972, the national energy bill amounted to approximately $26.2 billion, or about $130 for every American. In 1980, the national energy bill is estimated to be close to $226 billion, or more than $1,000 per person. This represents a jump in the cost of energy of more than 900 per cent in just 8 years.

Energy conservation is the cheapest, safest, quickest and most environmentally sound method of improving our energy position and it is essential that everyone understands the magnitude of our energy problems and the benefits that can be accrued by conserving energy. In the past, the American people had little incentive to conserve energy and, until the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo, few people actually believed our energy supplies were being reduced and that conservation was a necessity.

One of the areas where energy savings can best be demonstrated is transportation. Currently, transportation costs account for approximately 26 per cent of the nation's total energy consumption. Transportation accounts for half of all the oil used, with the private automobiles consuming over 50 per cent of this total. Gasoline consumption is down approximately 7 per cent over 1978, but we can all do more. For example, if everyone would reduce their driving by just 3 miles per day, the nation could save 700,000 barrels of oil each day. In addition, more gasoline could be saved if everyone strictly observed the 55 mph speed limit. Consumers would save even more on operating costs (oil, parts, repairs, etc.) if cars were kept properly in tune.

Dramatic and immediate benefits can also be realized in the area of residential and commercial energy conservation. Presently, more than one-third of our total energy consumption is in the residential and commercial building sector. However, by implementing various low-cost-no-cost alternatives, homeowners can save substantial amounts of energy.

By diligently following a rigid energy conservation program we will not only save money and improve our national security, but we will also avoid some of the more drastic mandatory steps that may be necessary if we fail to voluntarily lower our energy usage. If all American households would take advantage of conservation measures, we could save the equivalent of 2 million barrels of oil per day, or about one-fourth of all the oil we currently import. A recent study conducted by the Harvard Business School states the U.S. might consume 30-40 per cent less energy than it does now and still enjoy the same, if not higher, standard of living. Potential energy savings could amount to the equivalent of all imported oil used in the U.S.

The energy position we find ourselves in is an American problem and energy conservation is one way in which we can all work to improve our nation's energy policy.

Plan Program On Loans For Improvements

Minnesota housing finance agency has announced the beginning of the 1980 home improvement loan program to provide below market interest rates to low or moderate income homeowners. The home to be improved must be at least 15 years old unless the improvements are for energy purposes.

A person or family with an adjusted income below $16,000 may borrow up to $15,000 at an interest rate of 16.8 per cent depending upon income. Term of the loan could run as long as 15 years. For more information contact the participating bank in your area or Judi Williamson at the NWRDC.

Participating financial institutions in this area are American state bank of Grygla, First National bank of Middle River, Marshall county state bank of Newfolden, Security state bank of Oklee, Plummer state bank, Red Lake county state bank of Red Lake Falls, First Federal Savings and Loan Ass'n, First Northwestern state bank and Northern state bank all of Thief River Falls.

Views On Dental Health®

PERIODONTAL DISEASE — EARLY DIAGNOSIS

You have just completed your regular dental checkup. You breath a deep sigh of relief. "No cavities, but your gums are in poor shape." You are mistakenly relieved. The sad fact is that more teeth are lost because of periodontal disease (gum disease) than from any other factor, including cavities.

Fortunately, it can be treated successfully if it is diagnosed early. Unfortunately, you have no way of knowing of its onset other than by dental examination because there is normally no pain or other symptoms in its early stages.

Once this silent disorder advances, though, the gums and even the jawbone may become inflamed and eventually break down. But this extreme can be avoided if the dentist regularly examines your mouth both visually and with x-rays. He can determine whether there have been any changes in the mouth tissues or the bone around your teeth. He will also look for early tooth decay, impaction, tumors in the jaw area and abscesses in tooth roots. To insure healthy gums and teeth, you must combine regular dental examinations with effective brushing and flossing.

Comment On OSM Program Rules Needed

Edgar A. Imhoff, regional director, Region III, Office of Surface Mining (OSM), has announced the public will be asked to comment on proposed changes in several of OSM's permanent program regulations on the mining of surface coal.

One of the changes proposed would exempt from mine permit requirements coal operations on physically unrelated sites of two acres or less.

OSM Director Walter N. Heine explained that this two-acre exemption would be confined to coal extraction and any necessary part of the extraction operation, including haul roads. Coal processing plants and preparation facilities would not be exempt, Heine said.

Changes proposed recently will be the subject of a public hearing February 25 in the Department of the Interior auditorium, 18th and C Streets, N.W., Washington, D.C., starting at 9 a.m. Notice of the hearing and the proposed rule changes appeared in the Feb. 6, 1980 Federal register.

Heine said OSM is seeking factual information on which to base criteria for determining whether two-acre or smaller sites that are physically unrelated should be eligible for exemption from permitting requirements. OSM is now considering such criteria as whether the coal extraction operations are conducted by the same operator, permitee, or principal; whether the operations occur along the same coal seam or seams; whether they use the same equipment, haul roads, loading or processing facilities; and whether the operations are so close that it might suggest that the operator is trying to avoid the permit obligations.

The following changes were also proposed: Regulatory authority should no longer have the discretion to deny an operator's request for an exemption from reconstruction requirements for an existing structure if that structure meets statutory requirements for exemption.

Definition of the public road should include all thoroughfares which have been and are being used by the public, regardless of whether they are owned or maintained by a public agency or a private party.

Existing State case law should be alternative basis for determining whether an operator has a valid existing right to mine notwithstanding certain congressional designations prohibiting or limiting coal mining.

Once a land owner has agreed to waive the requirement that mining not take place within 300 feet of an occupied dwelling, any subsequent owner of that land should be held to the provisions of that waiver so long as he or she knew of the waiver at the time of the purchase. Valid pre-Act waivers should also be recognized.

Acid-forming and toxic-forming materials should either be covered with at least four feet of nontoxic and non-combustible materials or treated to neutralize toxicity. Current regulations say the materials must be both covered and treated.

Public is invited to submit written comments on the proposed changes. Comments should be sent to the Office of Surface Mining, Department of the Interior, Room 135, South Building, 1951 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20240. To be considered, comments must be received no later than 5 p.m., March 26, 1980.

Requests for further information or for meetings with OSM officials to discuss the proposed regulations should be addressed to Mary M. Crouter at the above address or at 202-343-9158. Persons wishing to testify at the hearing are asked to contact Ms. Crouter prior to the hearing date, although all persons will be given the opportunity to present testimony at the hearing as time allows.

Legislative Report
Marv Hanson
District 1 State Senator

Agriculture and natural resources committee of the State Senate of which I am a member considered this past week a proposal by Senator Gerald Willet called the "Landowners' Bill of Rights". A key provision of this legislation would require that landowners thinking of selling to the state be provided a written description of their rights and protections under the law.

Present state laws contain a wide range of protections for landowners. However, those protections are of no real benefit unless the landowner is aware of them.

Under the provisions of the proposed legislation, the landowners would have to be provided a written description, in laymen's terms, of their rights under the law. No purchase could be completed until the landowner had acknowledged receipt of that document.

The bill also would require the state to review the landowner's appraisal when considering the marekt value of the land. This is not now required by present law.

In addition this legislation would require that a summary of the state appraisal report be given to the landowner so review could be made of the factors used by the state in determining the state's valuation.

This bill would also reduce the option time on land purchases by the state, cutting the time the state may hold options from more than a year to (in most cases) two months.

Basically, that change would decrease the time a landowner would have his land off the market while dealing with the state. If quick agreement in price cannot be reached, then the landowner would be free to seek other buyers.

The bill further states that the department of natural resources does not have condemnation authority and can purchase land only from willing sellers.

Other changes called for are greater use of private (as opposed to state) appraisers; the same person that appraises for the state cannot negotiate for the purchase of a property; and prohibiting the discussion of price before an appraisal has been made.

The impact of the bill would ensure landowners are informed of their rights and protections and would also expand those protections. At the same time the acquisition process would be streamlined, cutting both the cost and time involved in the sale of land to the state.

In floor action this past week the state Senate passed two proposals to help homeowners weatherize their home to save fuel and cut down heating costs.

One proposal adopted would provide a state tax credit equal to 15 per cent of the first $2,000 spent on home energy-efficiency improvements. That credit is equal to an existing federal credit — which means that if this becomes law, families could receive a full 30 per cent refund on weatherization expenditures combining the federal credit with this new state credit.

The second proposal passed applies to the federal energy credit and exempts that federal credit from the state income tax.

Together, these two incentives should enable Minnesota residents to make the expenditures necessary to weatherize their homes saving fuel and cutting fuel costs.

Should you want to contact me about these or other matters, write to me at 23J, State Capitol, Saint Paul, Minnesota 55155 or call (612) 296-4835.

Farmers Meet In Support Of Farm Credit

Twenty-five farmers met with congressmen from their home states of North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan recently in support of the farm credit act amendments of 1980.

Farmers are owners of Federal Land Bank associations, Production Credit associations and cooperatives located in the seventh district of the farm credit system.

There are 28 proposed revisions contained in the farm credit act amendments of 1979 (S. 1465 and H.R. 4782). While some proposals represent minor housekeeping changes, other major provisions would: permit Federal Land banks to make loans to young and other limited-equity farmers for more than 85 per cent of the appraised value of farm real estate when these loans are guaranteed by a governmental agency.

Provisions would also broaden the authority of Federal Land banks and Production Credit associations to finance processing and marketing activities directly related to farming operations of eligible producers, within limits established by district boards of directors, authorize banks for cooperatives to finance export and import transactions that benefit U.S. agricultural cooperatives, and reduce eligibility requirements for cooperatives borrowing from the banks for cooperatives to those organizations that have at least 60 per cent farmers as voting members.

Proposals represent the first major changes in the Farm Credit act since 1971. The act provides authorities under which the 37 banks of the Farm Credit System operate. These banks include the Federal Land banks, Federal Intermediate Credit banks with their affiliated Production Credit associations and the banks for cooperatives.

While started with government capital, the Farm Credit system has been entirely owned by its borrowers since 1968. The current legislation does not involve expenditure of any government funds.

Cooperative Farm Credit system is the largest agricultural lender in the United States, annually providing more than $75 billion in funds to farmers, ranchers and their cooperatives.

Farmers from the seventh district of the Farm Credit system actively have supported the Farm Credit Act amendments of 1980. In addition to the recent fly-in, many farmers and cooperative representatives offered oral and written testimony during House field hearings late last year.

Hearings by the subcommittee on conservation and credit of the House Committee on agriculture are expected in early March.

More than 70 senators and representatives have signed as co-sponsors of the legislation, including the following from North Dakota, Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin: Rep. Mark Andrews (R-ND); Sen. Milton Young (R-ND); Rep. Arlan Stangeland (R-MN); Rep. James Oberstar (D-MN); Rep. Toby Roth (R-WI), Rep. Donald Albosta (D-MI), and Rep. Bob Traxler (D-MI).

The sewing group had displayed quilts made for the foreign mission fields that will be sent off this spring. Leonora mentioned in her talk that morning how much in need the people are for quilts, etc. and that they do reach the mission fields and are given to those in need. She had met many ships and brought back boxes of quilts and had personally delivered quilts to the people in her charge.

Following the service a pot luck dinner was served and shortly after noon a film was shown to those who stayed.

This film coincidently was about Tiawan and pictured Leonora as a teacher in the schoolrooms there. Gas Prices Up, But Supplies Seem Adequate

This past month, gas prices took their highest leap since mid-August of 1979, but supplies are adequate in spite of the nationwide strike by oil refinery workers, according to the Minnesota state automobile association (AAA).

Average price per gallon at full-service stations increased 5.2 cents, while the average price per gallon at self-service pumps jumped 4.7 cents.

Only one of the 56 stations contacted by AAA reported running out of some grade of gasoline in the past month. Currently, however, the situation appears stable. "Nobody is running out of supplies or cutting their operating hours," said Ken Wingard, executive secretary of the Minnesota independent retailers association.

Dorothy Hosea, assistant director for information for the Minnesota energy agency, concurred that "there are few or no reports of stations closing."

Hosea noted that retailers who couldn't get supplies from their regular supplier were able to get them from other sources, and that stations that need the gas most are getting it first.

"Overall, the amount of gasoline from the state's pipelines and refineries getting into the distribution system is below normal, although there are no exact figures," Hosea said.

Supplies from the Williams Bros. pipeline are about normal, although only 30 per cent of the normal load is coming from their Roseville location.

Conoco refinery at Wrenshall didn't load much over this past weekend, but they are now hauling out about 75 per cent of their normal amount of gas, fuel oil and other products, according to manager Jack Dahlmer.

John Ehlen, manager of the Koch refinery at Pine Bend, said that "production-wise we're normal, but our movement of product out by truck is not quite normal."

At Ashland Petroleum, St. Paul Park, Bob Piculell, manager of transportation and logistics, said that they are operating full sacle, as the strike has not affected their operations.

"The price increases were no surprise after all the wholesale price increases we've been hearing about," said Nelsen. According to Wingard, 10 different companies had increased their prices from two to five cents each in the past week.

Currently, the average price per gallon at full-service stations is $1.108 for regular, $1.177 for premium, $1.147 for unleaded, $1.183 for premium unleaded and $1.087 for diesel.

At self-service pumps, the average price per gallon is $1.075 for regular, $1.136 for premium, $1.117 for unleaded and $1.186 for premium unleaded.

Farmers Union Asks Changes In Corn Sales

A recent government offer to accept bids from farmers for the purchase of corn as a grain embargo relief measure, is a step in the right direction, but the rules of the purchase offer made it ineffective in Minnesota, according to the Minnesota Farmers Union (MFU).

In a message to Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland sent Thursday, January 31, the farm organization asked for a new offer with more workable rules to benefit Minnesota corn growers.

U.S. department of agriculture's commodity credit corporation (CCC) offered on January 21 to accept bids from farmers to buy corn. However, the rules of the offer required that the farmer must transport the corn, if the bid is accepted, to storage warehouses meeting certain government standards. There are few, if any, of these warehouses in Minnesota that can store additional grain.

The CC offer also spelled out that the corn offered must be number 2 grade or better and have a moisture content no higher than 14 per cent. Due to an unusually late spring and large amount of rainfall most of last year's Minnesota corn crop cannot meet those standards.

In his request to Bergland, MFU president Cy Carpenter asked that a new offer be made by the CCC to purchase corn of number 3 grade (or better) with a moisture content of 15 per cent (or dryer). In addition, Carpenter said that the provisions of a new offer must allow for on-farm storage (as does the USDA's grain reserve program) or storage at local country elevators for the program to be used by Minnesota farmers.

"Many Minnesota farmers are now caught in a market squeeze and this offer by USDA to take some of the surplus corn off the market caused by the Russian grain embargo is a good idea," said Carpenter, "But the provisions of the offer have made it virtually impossible for Minnesota farmers to take advantage of it."

"Clearly, a better invitation ought to be made. If it does come, we encourage corn growners to check with county ASCS offices to file a proper bid, and bid a price that will net themselves a decent return. We still have a depressed market situation and farmers need assistance that this program could help provide. But let's make it workable."

BBB Advises Caution On Solar Units

Better Business Bureau of Minnesota has issued a consumer alert warning consumers to be wary of salesmen using deceptive tactics in the sale of solar home heating units.

Ron Graham, BBB president, said recent investigations by the Bureau have uncovered highly questionable sales practices. "In the past two weeks," he said, "the BBB has received over two hundred consumer calls reporting in-home contacts with solar companies."

BBB alert says most reports to the Bureau involve the offering of solar air panels. The panels, usually four by eight feet or less insize, are installed vertically on an outside south wall. A unit is installed by cutting two small openings into the house. As the air panel is heated during the day, a thermostat turns on a small fan which circulates room air into the solar heated collector, and out the other end into the room. Energy experts advise that the principle is sound, but the application is very limited, and the fuel savings relatively small.

Better Business Bureau reported three sales gimmicks have emerged. First — salesmen are grossly exaggerating the fuel savings to be achieved. Second — customers are given an illusion of substantial price reductions because their home is supposedly to be used in a pilot program, and third — the federal and state tax credit formula is being misapplied to project an exaggerated tax credit.

To obtain first hand information, a Bureau investigator arranged for an in-home sales presentation. Graham said the claims made to the BBB shopper were extremely misleading. A unit was said to have a value of over $2,000, and after tax credits, rebates and other supposed discounts the net cost was to be less than $400. And for fuel savings, the BBB shopper was told "you should receive a twenty-five per cent reduction in your gas heating bill."

BBB reported it is extremely doubtful the unit has a value anywhere near the so-called regular price. And, if the 50 per cent tax credit (combined state and federal) is computed against a phony regular price, instead of the actual net price, a consumer might be inviting IRS or State tax action. "The heating bill savings of 25 per cent is a gross exaggeration," Graham said. State energy officials advised the BBB that the unit would probably produce no more than two per cent to five per cent overall savings in a typical natural gas heated home.

Bureau announced three moves to combat sales gimmicks in the solar energy field.

1. Companies will be asked to prove all price reduction and fuel savings claims.
2. Consumers are asked to report any questionable practices to the BBB.
3. Findings of sales misrepresentation will be promptly referred to Attorney General Warren Spannaus.

Better Business Bureau of Minnesota said consumers should not let the introduction of these sales gimmicks prevent their inquiry and purchase of proven solar energy systems. Most solar companies are reliable, helpful information is available from the state energy agency, and with current government tax credits, solar energy systems can be a very good buy.

But remember, if you are considering solar heating — check first. . . and you won't get burned!

The story hour is open to all children over four years old.

More Meals Given To Day Care Children

More children will be able to get federally subsidized meals through day care centers and homes as a result of new rules published by the U.S. Department of agriculture.

"We're making more money available to cover the costs of providing meals to children in day care," said assistant secretary Carol Tucker Foreman. "As a result, we'll be able to make more meals and better nutrition available to children from low-income families. More day care facilities will be able to join our federal food program and day care providers already using the program will have more money to provide meals."

New rules for the department's child care food program implement a 1978 law (Public Law 95-627). Under the rules, people providing child care in private homes can be reimbursed by the federal government for more of the costs they incur in providing meals. In the past, day care homes had to either accept a standard rate of payment or maintain complicated records of their expenses, Foreman said.

Day care homes join the child care food program under the umbrella of a sponsoring organization, such as local government agencies or churches. Under the new rules, sponsoring organizations will receive additional money for their administrative costs. Previously money for their administrative expenses was tied to the number of low-income children in their programs. Now administrative money will be provided on the basis of the number of day care homes the sponsoring organization administers.

New rules also make it easier for day care centers and homes to join the federal child care food program. To qualify for the food program, day care providers must be fully licensed by their state to provide child care. New rules, however, make this licensing requirement more flexible.

If the state office which licenses day care providers has a backlog of pending applications or doesn't license a particular type of day care provider, the state office which administers the federal child care food program can determine whether or not the day care provider meets sufficient day care standards to join the federal food program.

In addition, sponsoring organizations for day care homes will now be able to get start-up money to expand the program. "The food program has been growing slowly in day care homes," said Foreman, "this seed money for sponsoring organizations will help them start up programs for these homes."

New regulations also specify monitoring procedures for states administering the food program. Day care organizations with serious management deficiencies will be dropped.

In addition, once a year states will be required to notify all licensed or registered day care centers and homes about the availability of federal funds.

To help states meet the costs of implementing the new child care rules and monitoring requirements, the department is providing states with an additional $1 million over the next year in administrative money.

The child care food program now provides meals to 600,000 children. Homes and centers are reimbursed for meals they provide to children based on the type of meal served and the income of the children's families.

Final rules concerning the child care food program were published in the Federal Register January 18. Proposed regulations were published July 1979.

Medical Ass'n. Outlines Women Smokers' Risks

What happens when a woman smokes cigarettes? Minnesota medical association notes that until recently there was only speculation because women traditionally have not smoked as long and as hard as men. Harmful effects of cigarette smoking to men has long been known. With increasing numbers of women cigarette smokers, smoking more cigarettes for a greater length of time, a pattern is beginning to emerge.

Researchers are now finding that women's smoking patterns are becoming more like men's. As they do, the number of cases of lung cancer, heart disease, emphysema, and cancers of the mouth and larynx appear to be on the increase.

Reliable statistics also indicate that women who smoke spend 15 per cent more days sick in bed each year with less serious ailments and lose nearly three times as many work days as women who don't smoke.

Minnesota medical association notes that the 1979 U.S. Surgeon General's Report On Smoking and Health reveals the following significant facts about women who smoke cigarettes, particularly as they relate to pregnancy and infant health:

Babies born to women who smoke during pregnancy are on the average 200 grams lighter than babies born to comparable women who do not smoke. Fetal body length, chest circumference and head circumference are smaller if the mother smokes; smoking during pregnancy may affect physical growth, mental development and behavioral characteristics of children at least up to the age of 11.

Maternal smoking increases the risk of fetal death through maternal complications such as abruptio placenta, placenta previa, antepartum hemorrhage, and prolonged rupture of membranes; preterm births are more frequent among smoking mothers and a large proportion of neonatal deaths occur among these preterm births.

Maternal smoking contributes to the risk of "sudden infant death syndrome"; maternal smoking can be a direct cause of fetal or neonatal death in an otherwise normal infant; there is a direct relationship between numbers of cigarettes smoked and nicotine in breast milk.

First-Time Home Buyers Rely On Relatives

Faced with higher housing costs, escalating mortgage interest rates and a credit squeeze, first-time home buyers in 1979 turned increasingly to relatives for financial assistance in making the down payment on their homes, reports the family housing bureau, a public information service of a Chicago based insurance company, in its fourth annual survey of recent home buyers.

Survey revealed that the median price of homes purchased by first-time buyers in 1979 was $50,800, up from $46,700 in 1978. To pay for the home, 32.6 per cent of first-timers relied on relatives to help make some of the down payment, compared with 8.7 per cent in 1978. The number relying on relatives for all of the down payments rose to 6.4 per cent, up from 2.9 per cent; and the number getting half or more of the down payment from relatives went to 15.2 per cent, an increase from 6.8 per cent in 1978.

At the same time, the proportion of the down payment received from relatives by first-timers rose to 14.4 per cent, up from 6.2 per cent a year earlier. Meanwhile, the proportion of the down payment from the first-timer's own savings and investments dropped to 62.5 per cent from 79.9 per cent, and the number of first-timers who made the entire down payment from their own savings and investments fell to 43.8 per cent from 73.5 per cent.

A significantly higher percentage of first-time buyers also reported that they borrowed money from savings institutions and other sources in order to come up with the down payment in 1979. Money borrowed from lending institutions accounted for 13.2 per cent of the average down payment for all purchases; 17.5 per cent of first-timers indicated they borrowed from this source. In 1978, money borrowed from lending institutions was 6.2 per cent of the total average down payment, and 13.7 per cent of respondents reported getting money from this source.

This reverses a three-year trend in which first time buyers had been increasingly able to handle down payment obligations on their own, according to the housing bureau. It also is evidence that the first-time buyer is finding it increasingly difficult to buy a home in today's economic climate, and suggests more resourcefulness is required to get into the housing market for the first time.

Survey was conducted in 11 representative markets nationwide. The buying patterns of the first time buyers and those moving up in the housing market were analyzed. In the survey sample 36.6 per cent of respondents were first-time buyers.

Source of down payment is an important consideration in any home purchase because it relates directly to the feasibility of making a home purchase. Another important factor is the time it takes to come up with the money required, the Family Housing bureau noted.

The survey showed that it took first-time buyers slightly more time in 1979 — 2.5 years — than it did in 1978 — 2.2 years — to save up for a down payment.

The biggest change was in the amount of time it took the first-time buyer to save the down payment for a home selling for less than $30,000. This was 3.9 years in 1979 compared to 1.7 years reported in 1978.

However, those first-timers purchasing a home worth more than $30,000 reported that it took an average of 2.4 years to save the down payment in 1979 vs. 2.7 years in 1978.

The buying habits of those moving up in the housing market in 1979 did not differ significantly from earlier study years. As expected, the repeat buyer paid more for a home than the first-time buyer and the home cost more in 1979 than it did a year earlier. The median sales price paid by repeat buyers in 1979 was $64,000, up from $59,180 in 1978.

As in the past, the great majority of repeat buyers used the sale of a previous home as a springboard for buying something better. In 1979 money from the sale of a previous home accounted for 70.9 per cent of the average down payment made by repeat buyers vs. 69.9 per cent in 1978. Savings and investments accounted for 21.9 per cent of the down payments, down from 25.7 per cent in 1978. Relatives accounted for 2.4 per cent of the down payment money in 1979, compared with 1.7 per cent in 1978.

Of those who owned a home previously, 55.8 per cent reported they got the entire down payment from the sale of that home. And 61.1 per cent reported nine-tenths of the down payment came from this source.

Again in 1979, a high percentage, 20.6 per cent, reported that none of the down payment amount came from sale of a previously owned home. The percentage in 1978 was 22.3 per cent.

A significant number of repeat buyers — 37 per cent — said they dipped into their own savings in 1979 to provide part of the down payment. Northland Unpredictable

Unpredictable best describes the 1979-80 Northland community college basketball team, according to head coach Chet Engelman who has his Northmen in the MJCAA state tournament field which begins Thursday at Normandale community college in Bloomington.

That Northland is in the state tournament isn't so much of a surprise; they're making their fifth MJCAA appearance in the past seven years. But the manner in which the season unfolded would cause ulcers in most coaches.

It began when sophomore Joe Kraska of Lancaster, counted on to be a starter at guard, suffered a knee injury in football this fall that shelved him for the entire basketball season. Then a pair of impressive recruits — Mike Singer of Roseau and Randy Lindfors of Fosston — left school for personal reasons. Those losses were followed by the announcement that freshman Lyndell Knight of Inkster, Mich. was ineligible because of a transfer rule and the Northmen were forced to forfeit their first six wins of the season. That accounts for the 8-15 overall record. More importantly the Northmen were 7-4 in the Northwest Division, good for their second straight title tie with Fergus Falls.

"Before the season started we thought we would have a very good ball club," said Engelman. "There's no way to tell how things would have gone if we would have had everybody with us. We would have had a nice ball club with them, that's for sure."

Ironically, all four — Kraska, Singer, Lindfors and Knight — may very well be with the Northmen in 1980-81. Kraska and Knight are very probable returners while Singer and Lindfors fall into the Maybe category.

Knight's quickness and sense of anticipation — keys to Northland's pressing defense — might have been missed most this winter. Lindfors would have added a big-strong player in the middle and Singer would have been a valuable floor leader and a top assist man.

"At that point," said Engelman of his early-season personnel losses, "we were a little hesitant. We didn't know what to expect. And I guess you would have to say we've been unpredictable since then. Our intensity has not been consistent. But we have generally played pretty well against the good teams we've faced. Hopefully that pattern will continue this week."

Harris Sets Scoring Record

Freshman Terry Harris has his name in the Northland community college basketball record books as the single season scoring leader at the school.

Heading into the 1980 MJCAA state basketball tournament where Northland will be playing at least two games, Harris has 617 points — passing David Dickey's 611 points of 1974-75 with a 26-point performance Saturday in an 82-80 overtime loss at Brainerd that ended Northland's regular season schedule.

The 6-5 Deerborne Heights, Mich. ball player carries a 26.8 scoring average for 23 games. He led the state in scoring for much of the year and was ranked as the eighth leading scorer in the nation in the latest NJCAA figures.

Meanwhile, Harris' scoring partner this winter, 5-5 sophomore guard Vince Parker of Inkster, Mich., has moved into sixth place on Northland's career scoring list with 734 points. He's averaging 19.8 points per game, but he won't go any higher than fifth even with a minimum two state tournament games coming up because No. 4 on the all-time wcoring list in Tony Burke with 805 points before he left after the 1971-72 season.

David Dickey is No. 1 career scorer at the school with 1,073 points in 1973-74 and 1974-75 seasons, followed by Nick Neibauer with 843, Burnie Stephens 826, Dale Hanson 823 and Burke.

Swimmers Have Surprising Success

One of the surprises this winter in Thief River Falls athletics is the Lincoln high school swimming team. The Prowlers' fine 7-1 dual meet record was hardly expected after graduation took most of the team's point producers from a year ago.

"I really thought it was going to be a disaster as far as the season went," admitted Thief River Falls coach John Kopari. But a combination of strong Thief River Falls performances and weaker-than-expected opposition has the Prowlers looking at a 7-2 dual meet finish. They'll be at Bemidji Monday where a win by Thief River Falls would be considered a major upset, but they will be heavily favored to win at Moorhead in a season-ending dual Fri., Feb. 29. Bemidji is unbeaten in dual meet competition, including a 97-72 victory here.

Thief River Falls' strong performances have come from expected sources like Jon Pinkerton in the sprints, Dan Schoonhoven in the butterfly and backstroke, Steve Poissant in the breaststroke and Keith Grochow in the breaststroke, along with surprisingly strong showings from Dennis Booth, who was recently switched to the distance events, Grochow in the butterfly and the 200-yard medley relay where Schoonhoven, Grochow, Poissant and Pinkerton have turned in some of the best times of the year in Section 3.

"Its been kind of an interesting year," notes Kopari.

Miscellaneous

+ Cable TV viewers in northwestern Minnesota will be able to watch the 1980 Minnesota state high school hockey tournament, it was announced by Sjoberg's Cable TV after the Thief River Falls company received permission last week to make a switch at tournament time to pick up KSTP, an ABC affiliate in the Twin Cities that has the broadcast rights for the tournament. The boys and girls state basketball tournaments will be broadcast here over KMSP, Sjoberg's regular cable offering.

TRF Rally Falls Short In 57-48 Tournament Loss To Crookston

A good news, bad news joke? Members of the Crookston high school basketball team might be asking themselves that sobering question today after celebrating a 57-48 victory over Thief River Falls Tuesday in the opening round of the 1980 North Half Region 8AA tournament at Moorhead State University — the good news — that will pit the Pirates in the Friday night semifinals opposite powerful Moorhead — the bad news. The Spuds embarrassed Park Rapids 86-44 in Tuesday's tournament opener.

First round games will be completed Thursday when Detroit Lakes plays East Grand Forks at 7 p.m. and Fergus Falls meets Bemidji at 8:45. The winners tangle in Friday's second semifinal game. Championship game will be played Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

The Prowlers dug themselves a hole Tuesday, tried to climb out, but then had the thing collapse around them just when it looked as if they might pull off a remarkable come-from-behind victory.

Thief River Falls' performance did not match the Prowlers' strong late-season play that gave them a second-best 13-5 record in the tournament. Instead, they struggled both offensively and defensively in falling behind by 16 points in the third quarter.

"We seemed tired, and I don't know why," sighed Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters. "We did not move on offense or defense."

But facing what looked like an insurmountable 49-36 deficit midway through the fourth quarter, Thief River Falls suddenly took charge, capitalizing on sloppy Crookston play to score eight quick points in 52 seconds to trail just 49-44 with 3:10 still remaining.

Reserve Mitch Muzzy started it innocently enough with a long jumper. Jim Nyland put in a fast break lay-up and added a 10-foot jumper in the space of three seconds as Crookston began to mishandle the ball, and Kyle Hams connected from the top of the key to make it a suddenly interesting five-point ball game.

"For three quarters we looked so smooth," mentioned Crookston coach Marshall Olson, "but then we got careless. That fourth quarter scared the heck out of us."

But the Prowlers couldn't pull it out. They had the chance, but they couldn't produce. Down 51-46, Thief River Falls had two opportunities to close the gap. But Greg Miller and Hams both missed the front end of bonus free throw opportunities with 2:14 and 1:56 remaining, respectively.

Jerome Simmons, scoreless to that point, then sealed the outcome when he took off on a fast break lay-up with a long tip from a jump ball underneath the Prowlers' basket when Hams' missed at the free throw line was tied up. That made it 53-46 with 1:50 left. A free throw by Simmons and a Tim Knotek rebound shot after Thief River Falls turnover had the Pirates' lead back to 56-46.

"I thought it was a tremendous effort on our part," said Peters about the Thief River Falls fourth quarter come-back try. However, those missed free throws were critical, he said. "If we would have gotten those two one-and-ones we might have won the game. They (Crookston) were panicking. We had two of the top three free throw shooters up there, too."

It was a see-saw struggle at the start as Crookston emerged with a 13-12 first quarter lead, surrendering a lay-up by Miller at the buzzer when Todd Young blocked Simmons' shot with just seven seconds left.

Two free throws by Miller and a nifty drive by Hams were sandwiched around a Kyle Roelofs rebound shot at the start of the second quarter, giving the Prowlers a 16-15 edge.

Crookston shook the Prowlers at that point, though, moving at ease inside Thief River Falls' zone defense to score 14 of the next 16 points. A three-point play on a drive and free throw by Brian Bachmeier capped the Pirates' game-controlling surge, giving them a 29-18 cushion with 1:46 to go in the first half that ended 31-22.

That kind of thing continued through the third quarter when Knotek, the smooth 6-3 forward, scored ten straight Crookston points to push the difference to 43-27. It was 43-31 when the quarter ended.

"We had good patience on offense," said Olson about his team's strong play through three quarters. "We really moved the ball around and got some nice shots. We played good defense, too. The zone really worked."

Peters agreed. "Crookston played tough defense," he noted. "They have played us tough defensively all year. They have really given us problems."

It was the third Crookston win of the year over Thief River Falls, with the Pirates beating the Prowlers 62-55 and 55-49 during the regular season.

In the statistical department, Thief River Falls shot 40 per cent from the field (19-for-47) and made 10 of 16 free throws. Crookston shot 44 per cent (24-for-55) and sank nine of 15 free throws. The Pirates finished with a 27-24 rebound edge and the Prowlers topped the busy turnover department 24-22.

Crookston will match its 11-8 record against Moorhead's 16-2 mark Friday. Thief River Falls finished 13-6.

In the South Half Region 8AA tournament being played at St. Cloud State this week, Cold Spring-Rocori defeated Alexandria 63-51, St. Cloud Tech handled Little Falls 72-42, St. Cloud Apollo knocked off Sauk Rapids 61-54 and Brainerd eliminated Melrose 61-57 in overtime to set up Thursday's semifinals that will match top-seeded Apollo against Brainerd and second-seeded Tech vs. Rocori. Finals are Saturday.

North and South champions will meet in the Region 8AA championship game Fri., Feb. 29, at St. Cloud State.

BATTLE OVER a loose ball produced a jump ball between John Erie of Crookston (top) and Greg Miller of Thief River Falls during Tuesday's first round game in the North Half Region 8AA high school basketball tournament at Moorhead State University. Crookston eliminated Thief River Falls 57-48.

A PROBLEM FOR Thief River Falls Tuesday against Crookston in the opening round of the 1980 North Half Region 8AA high school basketball tournament was the Prowlers' vunerability inside, shown here as Tim Knotek of the Pirates found space between Jim Nyland (44) and Greg Miller (52) for the first half basket. The Pirates beat the Prowlers 57-48 in the Alex Nemzek fieldhouse on the Moorhead State University campus.

Warriors Beat Prowlers 7-5

Warroad broke open a one-goal hockey game by scoring twice in the first minute of the third period Tuesday and the Warriors went on to beat Thief River Falls in a 7-5 Section 8 high school hockey shoot-out.

"It wasn't exactly a defensive struggle," said Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand who was obviously displeased with the results. "Twelve goals in 45 minutes is ridiculous. We're disappointed in our overall defensive play — which includes everybody."

Eddie Christian of Warroad and Wade Hoppe of Thief River Falls both had the hat trick last night, with both players scoring twice in a wild third period.

Interestingly, last night's scoring feats by Hoppe and Christian makes them co-leaders in the Section 8 scoring race with 44 points apiece. Frank Fee of KROX in Crookston said Section 8 scoring, like Section 8 games, had a Tuesday cut-off date. Matt Baab of Mount St. Benedict and Bob Clauson of Crookston Central were close behind with 43 and 42 points, respectively, in the tight scoring race. Baab got his points in 16 games, Hoppe 15, Christian 14 and Clauson 14.

Christian began the final period by giving Warroad a 5-3 lead at the 26-second mark. It was 6-3 just 17 seconds later when Darin Olimb scored.

Hoppe brought the Prowlers back into contention, scoring on a power play at 1:58 and making it 6-5 at 4:14. But Roberts' third goal was an open net job with 25 seconds remaining to ice it.

Jeff Ulrich and Tom Bjorkman also scored for the 12-6-1 Prowlers who will close out their 1979-80 regular season schedule at home Friday against Fergus Falls.

Girls Lose To Lakers; Host East Grand Forks

Beaten by highly regarded Detroit Lakes 68-45 Tuesday, the Lincoln high school girls basketball team will close out its 1979-80 regular season schedule Thursday when the Prowlers host East Grand Forks in a 7:30 p.m. ball game.

Thief River Falls, 6-10 for the year, held the heavily favored Lakers to a 12-12 first quarter standoff but fell behind 29-20 at halftime and lost ground in the third quarter when it became 53-33.

"They're good," confirmed Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg when talking about the 14-2 Lakers, considered by many to be a Region 8AA favorite this year. "I guess we didn't play that badly; we were just out-classed. We hustled the whole game."

Detroit Lakes' Brenda Peterson was impressive with a 22-point night, while teammate Lynn Christenson added 16. Tara Nicholson scored 12 points for the Prowlers.

The Lakers shot an even 50 per cent from the field for the game thanks to their fast break offense that found them making 31 of 62 shots. The Prowlers shot just 28 per cent, going 20-for-72. From the free throw line Detroit Lakes was 6-for-13 and Thief River Falls was 5-for-10. The Lakers out-re-rebounded the Prowlers 40-32.

It was a clean sweep for the visitors who won the junior varsity game 43-33 and took the freshman game 40-29. Both of those Thief River Falls teams will close out their seasons Thursday with 5:45 p.m. games against East Grand Forks. The junior varsity, 8-8, will play at Lincoln while the freshmen, 4-10, play at Franklin middle school.

Jill Saurdiff scored 16 points, pulled down 17 rebounds and came up with six steals Tuesday to lead Grygla past rival Goodridge 57-41 in a girls high school basketball game played at Goodridge.

"Jill Saurdiff really played well for us," praised Grygla coach Bill Radeunz whose ball club finished its 1979-80 regular season schedule with a 15-3 record.

Grygla, ahead 13-10 at the end of the first quarter and up 25-17 at halftime, broke it open in the third quarter when the Eagles opened a 46-33 margin.

Sheri Anderson led Grygla with a game-high 19 points. Chris Foss added 12 points to the Eagles' total. Mary Joe Kiesow scored 18 points for the Huckies and Angie Berndt added 12.

Nordics Pull Away From Warroad In Final Quarter

Marshall County Central broke open a close ball game with up-set minded Warroad by outscoring the Warriors 28-3 in the fourth quarter Monday for a 66-40 District 32 high school basketball tournament quarterfinal win at Newfolden.

Warroad, beaten by the Nordics 69-41 and 45-30 during the regular season, fought to a 25-25 halftime draw and trailed just 38-37 going into the final eight minutes.

But that's when the roof caved in on the Warriors who fell prey to the Nordics' full court pressure defense.

"Our depth and pressure finally wore them down in the fourth quarter," explained Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "We kind of ran them into the ground."

The Nordics' balanced offense showed Jeff Dahl with 14 points, Ray Kvalvog 12 and Dan Maki 10, but Ueland was most happy with the play of Brian Skadsem, who finished with nine points. "He (Skadsem) came up with some key steals early in the fourth quarter to ignite us," mentioned Ueland, "and that turned the completion of the game around."

Marshall County Central, now 14-6, will face Roseau, a 62-61 winner over Karlstad in Monday's doubleheader opener, at 7 p.m. Friday in the District 32 semifinals. All District 32 games are being played in the Marshall County Central gym at Newfolden. Fainls are being played in the Marshall County Central gym at Newfolden. Finals are planned Saturday.

The Nordics finished Monday's game with a 39 per cent shooting mark from the field, hitting 25 of 64 shots. The Warriors shot 32 per cent by making 16 of 50 shots. From the free throw line the Nordics were 16-for-23 and the Warriors were 8-for-13. Marshall County Central held a 27-24 rebound edge and Warroad topped the turnover figures 15-8.

A final second shot by Scott McKeever was in and out at the buzzer Tuesday as the Skippers lost a 38-36 District 32 quarterfinal decision to Greenbush at Newfolden.

Middle River led at the quarter breaks of the low-scoring game 11-8, 20-17 and 32-28 but had to play catch-up ball at the end. Then when the Skippers rebounded a missed Greenbush free throw with six seconds remaining, McKeever, the game's high scorer with 17 points, was given the last shot.

The Skippers, who beat the Tigers 70-51 early in the year, ended the season 16-4.

Northmen Play Mesabi In First Round MJCAA Tournament Game

Unbeaten in Minnesota junior college athletic association play and 21-1 overall, Golden Valley Lutheran is considered the favorite heading into the 1980 MJCAA state basketball tournament, scheduled to be played at Normandale community college in Bloomington beginning Thursday.

"But," reminded Northland coach Chet Engelman, "Golden Valley was the favorite last year, too, and they didn't win it. Anything can happen at tournament time. I know that's an old cliche, but Willmar was proof of that last year. They weren't even suppose to be in the state tournament, but somebody got upset in the last week of the regular season and they snuck in; upset Mesabi, upset Golden Valley and upset Anoka-Ramsey, to win the state, then upset two more teams in the region playoffs and ended up in the national tournament in Hutchinson, Kan."

Northland, co-champion in the Northwest Division with Fergus Falls, will draw Mesabi as a first round state tournament foe Thursday afternoon at 3. A win over the Norsemen, who beat the Northmen 81-74 back on Jan. 13, could bring a semifinal confrontation with Golden Valley Lutheran, an 86-68 first round state tournament winner over Northland in 1979. The Royals play Bethany Thursday at 9 p.m. to complete the first round.

"At this point we have just as good a chance as anybody else," said Engelman about his team's state tournament prospects. "We're looking forward to playing Mesabi again. We led them by six points with six minutes remaining and lost to them under less than ideal conditions at their place. Who we would play in the second game is the least of my concerns right now. To beat Mesabi we've got to get ahead. If they get ahead they'll flat out hold the ball. We've have to get out in front and control the tempo. After that it's just a matter of playing with intensity and concentration."

Rest of Thursday's opening round matches will find Willmar playing Anoka-Ramsey at 1 p.m. and Fergus Falls going against Vermilion at 7. Those winners will play the 7 p.m. semifinal Friday night. The Northland vs. Mesabi winner will play the Golden Valley vs. Bethany winner at 9 p.m. Friday.

For the first time the MJCAA state tournament will feature a full consolation bracket. Consolation games will be played Friday afternoon beginning at 1 and will feature the consolation championship game Saturday at 11 a.m. Third place game will be played at 1 that afternoon, followed at 3 by the title game.

Engelman predicts an interesting first round. All eight tournament entries have met their first round foes during the regular season when Mesabi beat Northland, Fergus Falls beat Vermilion, Golden Valley Lutheran beat Bethany and Anoka-Ramsey beat Willmar. However, all but Golden Valley's win over Bethany was a home court triumph.

"We'll have to minimize our mistakes," noted Engelman. "Our turnovers have really hurt us this year. If we play well and lose we can still walk away in good shape. But we don't have to give it away."

Northland is appearing in its fifth state tournament in the last seven years. The Northmen were MJCAA consolation champions in 1974 and 1975. They lost first round games in 1976 and 1979.

"We'd like to bring back another trophy," mentioned Engelman whose team will pick up its Northwest Division prize at the state meet.

Conservation Directory Is 25th Anniversary Edition

When the National Wildlife Federation published its first conservation directory it contained the names of 3,744 individuals who were then active in 630 organizations.

That was the leadership of the conservation movement in 1956.

This month the NWF is publishing the 25th anniversary edition of its annual guide to who's who among "organizations and officials concerned with the protection of wildlife and other natural resources."

It is a 300-page book (compared to 96 pages in 1956) and it lists more than 11,000 officials of approximately 1,700 conservation groups. The number of organizations has nearly doubled and the number of "concerned" people has tripled.

The 1980 listings include state, federal and congressional committees and agencies involved with the environment and natural resources; U.S. and Canadian fish and game administrators; and international, provincial, and territorial citizens' agencies and groups.

Groups range in size and interest from the Prairie Grouse Technical Council of Stevens Point, Wis. (96 members) to the Trumpeter Swan Society, of Maple Plain, Minn., (200) to the Campfire Girls of America (500,000) and the National Wildlife Federation itself, with its 4.1 million members and supporters in all 50 states, Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

A few are still headed by officers who led them in 1956. With most, there has been a complete changing of the guard.

Other sections of the conservation director include:

+A guide to major colleges and universities offering professional training for careers in the fields of conservation and the environment.

+An index of wildlife, environmental, and other conservation publications.

+A list of U.S. national parks, wildlife refuges, forests and seashores.

+Sources of conservation movies and other audio-visual materials.

+A listing of the top conservation officials of 113 foreign governments, from Afghanistan (where the Minister of the Interior is — or was — the head of the zoological faculty at Kabul University) to Zambia.

From 1904 to 1950 the U.S. Fish and Wildlife service produced a similar reference work. The NWF, a nonprofit citizens' group, assumed that task in 1953, after the government publication folded, and then in 1956 first published the combination address and phone book as the conservation directory. The federation was then quartered in what had been a Takoma Park grocery store, far from downtown Washington.

Just as the size of the conservation movement and its address-phone book have increased, so has the price of the publication. The hand-stapled 1956 booklet sold for 40 cents. The bound paperback 1980 conservation directory is available for $4 from the National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th St. NW, Washington, DC 20036, with a discount of 20 per cent given on orders of 50 or more to be mailed to a single address.

Community College Basketball . . .

Women's State Basketball Tournament Opens Thurs.

Northwest Division co-champions Brainerd and Fergus Falls will face Central Division representatives Golden Valley Lutheran and Inver Hills Thursday in the opening round of the 1980 Minnesota community college women's state basketball tournament.

Hosted by Inver Hills community college in Inver Grove Heights, the state tournament first round draw will find Fergus Falls playing Inver Hills at 12 noon Thursday, with Austin meeting Mesabi at 2 p.m., Vermilion vs. Rochester at 6:30 and Brainerd takes on Golden Valley Lutheran at 8:30.

Friday's semifinals will have the Fergus Falls vs. Inver Hills winner playing the Vermilion vs. Rochester winner while the Austin vs. Mesabi winner faces the Brainerd vs. Golden Valley Lutheran winner.

Saturday's schedule includes the consolation championship game at 12 noon, third place game at 2 p.m. and title game at 4.

Brainerd and Fergus Falls shared the Northwest Division title this winter with 11-1 records, splitting their home-and-home series. Brainerd finished with a 54-38 victory over Northland Friday night, with the Northwomen closing out a 4-16 campaign with a 58-45 loss at Anoka-Ramsey Saturday afternoon. Northland finished with a last-place 2-9 Northwest Division record.

"I don't think our record is really indicative of our season," mentioned Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "We played some good basketball at the end of the year and we lost some close games."

Brainerd 54
Northland 38

Thirty-seven turnovers sealed Northland's fate in Friday's 54-38 loss at Brainerd. Unable to maintain possession, the Northwomen fell behind 10-0 in the game's first three minutes and never challenged Brainerd, trailing 32-18 at halftime.

Northland shot 33 per cent from the field (17-for-52) and went 57 per cent at the free throw line (4-for-7). Brainerd shot 37 per cent from the floor (26-for-71) and just 29 per cent from the line (2-for-7). Northland finished with a 49-31 rebound edge, but Brainerd had fewer turnovers (19).

Anoka-Ramsey 58
Northland 45

Cutting their turnovers down to a season-low 13 didn't help the Northwomen Saturday as they shot poorly in a 58-45 season-ending loss at Anoka-Ramsey.

Northland shot just 26 per cent from the field (21-for-82) and made just three of 15 free throws. Anoka-Ramsey, on the other hand, shot 46 per cent from the floor (27-for-59) and sank four of six free throws.

Julie Anderson of Northland and Krystal Becker of Anoka-Ramsey shared game-high scoring honors with 22 points.

Anoka-Ramsey, ahead 32-16 at halftime, needed the shooting edge because the hosts were charged with 24 turnovers and lost the battle of the boards 47-46.

COMPETING IN an invitational archery tournament sponsored by the Thief River Falls archery club Sunday, Dave Anderson of Grand Forks was credited with a "Robin Hood" shot when he split an arrow during the competition in the indoor range located above the old arena.

Mid Winter Eases Winter Kill Problem

Relatively mild temperatures and light snow cover this winter have caused a drastic reduction in one annual problem for the Department of Natural Resources.

The DNR's fisheries section reports that as of Jan. 30, only two state lakes have been opened to unlimited or "promiscuous" fishing because the fish population is in danger of dying out due to lack of oxygen.

Last year at the same time a total of 137 lakes had been opened to unlimited fishing, so that sportsmen could take as many as possible before the lakes "froze out".

Winterkill occurs when a thick covering of snow on the ice cuts off the sunlight to the lake bottom. The result is that aquatic plants, that would otherwise continue to grow and give off oxygen to the water, die, and as they decompose consume whatever oxygen remains in the lake.

Lakes that lose all of their oxygen are typically shallow and weedy.

During many winters the DNR rescues thousands of game fish from lakes that are threatening to winterkill and transfers them to deeper lakes where they can survive.

Archerfish, which lives in fresh and salt waters from India to Australia, shoots its meals out of branches hanging over the water, according to Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine. Taking careful aim, the fish spits pellets of water at insects and spiders, then eats them as they tumble into the water.

1980 Conservation Stamps Are Issued

Stamp collectors and wildlife enthusiasts often live in different worlds, but many have one interest in common. Each year they watch for the issuance of a new sheet of conservation stamps by the National Wildlife Federation.

The 1980 stamps hit the mails recently and, as in the recent past, they again depict 36 different species of mammals, reptiles, plants, insects, birds and fish. They are reproduced in full-color miniature — about twice the size of postage stamps — from the paintings of such nationally-known wildlife artists as Maynard Reece, Chuck Ripper, Arthur Singer and Dan Eckleberry.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt became the first NWF stamp collector when he received the first sheet of stamps at the White House on March 20, 1938. Since then NWF — the nation's largest private conservation organization — has distributed more than six billion stamps.

Contributions are used to acquire and preserve wildlife habitat and to help fund NWF's conservation education program, which last year distributed nearly 1.8 million free books and pamphlets on environmental and wildlife subjects.

The stamp program started when a Kansan wrote NWF's first president, Jay Norwood (Ding) Darling, a Pulitzer Prize-winning newspaper cartoonist and conservationist, suggesting wildlife stamps as a fund-raising device for the then-struggling federation.

Darling liked the idea and painted the first 16 stamps himself — eight mammals, and eight species of waterfowl. The Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. now displays the original paintings.

Four very different animals are among those pictured on this year's stamps.

Once an over-hunted species, the black bear has retaken some of its former habitat and even moved into areas once ruled by another reduced species — its terrifying cousin, the grizzly bear.

Tarpon is a fiesty saltwater fish known for battling anglers throughout the Atlantic and North Atlantic. Some varieties weigh as much as 25 pounds, although most tarpons check in at under 10 pounds. A powerful leaper, it is not uncommon for a tarpon to jump entirely out of the water.

Ringtailed cat, which looks like a svelte raccoon with a bushy 18-inch tail, resides in the southwestern U.S. and Mexico. Once kept by gold miners as pets, this nocturnal rodent-eater is considered a nuisance by poultry farmers because of its fox-like raiding of chicken coops.

Little brown bat ranges over most of the U.S. and Canada. It eats mostly insects, doesn't suck blood, and congregates by the thousands in — you guessed it — caves to hibernate in winter. Bats are the only true mammals who fly.

This year NWF is selling stamp albums in which to collect the miniature wildlife portraits. Each album contains descriptions and biological data on the animals pictures. Each purchaser of a $2 stamp album receives a complimentary sheet of the 1980 stamps. Write the National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

In Memoriam

Should you go first and I remain,
One thing I'd have you do:
Walk slowly down the path of death,
For one day I'll follow you.
I'll want to know each step you take
That I may do the same,
For someday down that lonely road
You'll hear me call your name.

Sadly missed by

by Dr. Hugh Patterson

Just 35 miles south of Ogden is the Salt Lake City metropolitan area. They have one of the nation's great airports and if you wish to fly out and ski, Salt Lake has fine accommodations and is near eight fine ski areas. Bus service is available to many of them. If you want to go first class stay at the Hotel-Utah and ask for room 612. Down town on North Tempel avenue they have an excellent K.O.A. campground where we have often stayed. The weather here is usually mild. It is about 30 beautiful miles to our next two great ski areas up Little Cottonwood canyon.

First, you come to the Snowbird ski area, our subject this week. This area is a Mecca for expert skiers. The scene of it's 3,100 feet of vertical is magnificent. Its major runs are very challenging, and often covered with fine deep powder.

One of our nation's mechanical wonders takes you up in a tram hanging on a cable and conveying 120 skiers at a time. It lifts you 2,900 feet of vertical in six and one-half to eight minutes. From the top the view is breath taking and so are the slopes. They are all for experts. I ran it twice last year.

The area has one beautiful novice run, but they will also enjoy lower Big Emma and west second south. Intermediates will enjoy several other runs.

Accommodations at Snowbird are excellent with ample room for organizations that may wish to meet here. The season is late November to May 1. Tow tickets last year were $11 but chair only tickets were $8.

The U.S. Department of Labor's Office of Workers' Compensation Programs (OWCP administers the Federal Employees' Compensation Act, the Longshoremen's and Harbors' Compensation Act and the Black Lung Benefits Reform Act of 1977.

Drug, Alcohol Use Discussed Here March 10

Back by popular request for the parenting class series is Ken Froschheiser, Thief River Falls chief of police, who will address, "Drugs and Alcohol Use — What Every Parent Should Know" Monday, March 10 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Washington elementary library.

He will discuss the drug situation in this area, examining the drug problems the law enforcement encounters, and deals with. Participants will view an extensive display of drugs and paraphernalia confiscated locally, including marijuana, LSD, cocaine and a variety of pills.

Many parents have questioned "how can I tell if my child is using drugs and what can I do if he is?" Chief Froschheiser demonstrates the king of drug paraphernalia that may be found in the home. He describes symptoms and effects of drugs that can be recognized in a user and provides information about the avenues a parent can take in this area to help a child that is abusing drugs and alcohol.

This information is useful to any parents interested in knowing how to prevent a drug problem developing within their family, or for providing their children with useful facts. Question and answer period is included.

Pre-registration would be helpful for class planning. A $1 fee is charged. Contact adult education, Thief River Falls AVTI, phone 681-5424.

On Tuesday, March 18, "Discussions on Discipline", a change for parents to share concerns about discipline and gain new perspectives that might be helpful, is the class topic.

WINDOWS OF THE SOUL

Eyes have been called the windows of the soul. Clarity, expression and size — all of these are supposed to reveal character. A child's eyes seem innocent. But small, closely-placed eyes may also indicate deception. Some even say that you can tell a criminal by his eyes.

Calling it nonsense, even scientists find it hard to dispel the old wives' tales that have persisted for centuries.

Eyes, in a certain sense, can be the windows of the soul — precious windows through which you look at life. Don't judge another man by his eyes. Look instead through eyes of understanding and compassion, for in God's sight we are all equal. If your inner vision has been a bit faulty lately, why not start going to church next Sunday?
